$30 Million Freeway Plan Proposed for Area Traffic

FREIGHTER AGROUND ON SAN JUAN ISLAND

Two Victoria-based tugs were racing to the grounded freighter Olympic Palm at press time.

The 24,729-ton vessel became stranded off Orcas Island in the San Juan group about 11:30 this morning. She was fully loaded, carrying 11 million board feet of lumber.

Going to her rescue are the Island Mariner and Island Monarch, towboats of Island Tug and Barge Ltd.

LONG, DRY SPELL in Victoria meant earlier-than-usual growth on Beacon Hill Park's famed Fruit Salad tree. "Only in Victoria could the fruit be so well advanced by April 1," says park stroller Miss C. S. Dench of Rose Manor. A retired school teacher who taught for many years in Alaska, Miss Dench predicted a fine tourist season. Early tourists told The Times the spring crop bears out the Bennett government claims about B.C. and makes them believe all its other claims on April Fool's Day.

Senators Give Nod To Pension

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate passed the Canada Pension Plan bill today.

OTTAWA (CP) The Senate banking committee has approved the Canada Pension Plan and was to send it back to the Senate for third reading, usually a formality, this afternoon.

After questioning Health Minister Judy LaMarsh and Revenue Minister Benson for three quarters of an hour this morning on various aspects of the bill, the committee voted to report it without amendment.

It was probably the last time Miss LaMarsh will have to answer searching questions about the pension plan before it becomes law.

The health minister, who piloted the plan through most of its stormy passage through the Commons, wound up her brief statement to the senators by saying she believes the pension legislation is "only one half of the apple."

An increased program of social assistance to those who did not come under the contributory pension plan was the other half.

PLANNED INCREASES

She said the government planned to make further increases in the flat-rate old age security pension, should conditions demand it.

The flat-rate pension, now $75 a month for everyone 70 and over, will apply to everyone 65 and over by 1970.

Miss LaMarsh also told the committee Canada could overcome poverty. "We don't have to accept the inevitability of the poor anymore."

- Spend $14 million on major road construction including east-west extension of existing streets and widening of them;
- Establish a one-way street system downtown involving four pairs of roads;
- Widen Pat Bay Highway north of Telegraph Road to four lanes;
- Widen all bridges;

Report Urges More Parking

By ROGER STONEBANKS

A $30 million freeway program for Greater Victoria was recommended today in a massive report on transportation needs.

In addition, $14 million should be spent on a number of east-west extensions and other improvements, the report states.

The recommenations were made by a Toronto consulting company hired by the Captital Region Planning Board two years ago.

The 116-page report was received this afternoon by the board at a special meeting in city hall.

The improvements were recommended to cope with a 76 per cent increase in vehicle trips expected by 1981.

See Map, Stories on Page 45

As well as freeways, the report also recommends four pairs of one-way streets in the city; an additional 4,000 parking spaces in downtown Victoria, and a modification of all bus routes.

The 15.5-mile freeway system would replace the Patricia Bay Highway south of Telegraph Road in Central Saanich and the Trans-Canada Highway east of Thetis Lake.

A third freeway would run from James Bay across a bridge over the Inner Harbor linking with the Patricia Bay Freeway in the Douglas-Cloverdale area.

Would Parallel Present Route

The Pat Bay Freeway would roughly parallel the existing road and finish at the Blanshard Street extension now being built.

The Trans-Canada Highway would depart from the existing road at Portage Inlet and join the Pat Bay Freeway in the Douglas-McKenzie area.

All the freeways would be four lanes except on the Pat Bay route between the Trans-Canada and Victoria West interchanges where it would be six lanes.

Beyond Telegraph Road, the report recommended widening the Pat Bay Highway to four lanes with control of driveway access.

The report said realignment of the existing Pat Bay Highway where a freeway is proposed would generally parallel the existing route.

This created the least disruption in existing land use and accomplished the basic requirement for a safer, high speed and high capacity road.

Cost of this freeway was estimated at $9.1 million and the route could be built from interchange to interchange from the south to allow traffic to use finished portions.

Widening Proposal Ruled Out

The report rejected rerouting the highway west of Elk Lake or through Cordova Bay or widening the existing route.

Widening was ruled out first because it would not provide satisfactory service nor provide for future capacity.

The Elk Lake rerouting was ruled out because of rough ground and because the existing highway would still need to be widened to serve east coast needs.

The Cordova Bay route was ruled out because it would cost $10.9 million since the right-of-way passes through residential areas requiring removal of many homes.

The Trans-Canada Freeway would leave the existing highway at Portage Inlet and link up with the Patricia Bay Freeway in the Douglas-McKenzie area.

A better facility was needed than exists at present and the new route would fit in with freeway and arterial road development.

The report said many streets are running at practical capacities. Routes from the west were saturated while those from the north and east were running at 74 to 89 per cent of capacity.

It was projected the area's population would increase 50 per cent to 248,800 persons in 1981 while the number of cars would rise to 90,600 from 48,700 in 1963.

Freeways provide rapid and safe travel, the report said, and by removing access traffic enable other streets to perform their functions.

Minimum Speed In Peak Times

Over-all speeds of 35 to 60 miles an hour should be possible and there should be minimum speeds of 35 miles an hour during peak periods.

In rural areas, freeways would have wide centres and landscaping. In urban areas their level would be depressed where possible.

Four-lane freeways can carry up to 50,000 vehicles a day with six lines handling 70,000.

The 1963 traffic flow on the proposed six-lane freeway area was 25,000 vehicles a day.

The report said arterial highways should be co-ordinated with freeways to distribute traffic to and from local streets.

There was a lack of cross-town roads north of Hillside and

Birmingham Mayor Threatened By Bomb: Negro Home Blasted

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A dynamite bomb damaged a Negro home today and two other bombs were disarmed at the homes of Mayor Albert Boutwell and city councilwoman Nina Miglionico.

Police cars were dispatched immediately to the homes of the eight other council members.

The bomb at Miss Miglionico's house was found on the second step of her front porch by her father when he came out to get the morning paper. Police said he reached inside the box containing the bomb and ripped the timing mechanism.

Police who were dispatched to the mayor's house about a mile away found a bomb at the side of the brick structure. Officers disarmed it.

There was no warning, no threats of the bombing of the residence of Negro accountant T. L. Crowell across town from the mayor's home.

His son, Weymouth, 13, was treated for a cut head.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

"My little boy, he was crying," said the frightened mother, an elementary school teacher. "They took him to the hospital. He was bleeding, but he was more frightened than hurt."

It was the first actual bombing in Birmingham since Sept. 24 1963, when a shrapnel explosive hurled bolts and pieces of metal over a wide area in a quiet Negro neighborhood. Only a few days before, a bomb killed four Negro children attending Sunday school in the 16th Street Baptist Church. Two other Negroes died in the violent aftermath.

WRECKS GARAGE

The blast at the Crowell home wrecked a garage in the rear. Police said the explosive had been placed on a concrete slab in the alley about 25 feet from the Crowell house. The garage

WALLACE SAYS FIEND LOOSE IN ALABAMA

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. George Wallace today branded the bombing of a Negro home and the attempted dynamiting of two official residences as the work of a "fiend" and offered a $5,000 reward for information leading to arrests.

The governor said he hoped other citizens would add to the reward and make it more than $100,000 to entice someone to come forward to disclose information.

Wartime Commander General Crerar Dies

OTTAWA (CP)—Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, 76, commander of the 1st Canadian Army in the Second World War, died here today.

Gen. Crerar had been in ill health for some time. He was taken to hospital March 24 with a cardiac condition.

During the Second World War, Gen. Henry Duncan Graham Crerar became the first Canadian general to command Canadian forces in the field. In the First World War, as a young lieutenant, he fought through the Battle of Ypres, surviving the gas attack launched by the Germans in April, 1915.

CRERAR
. . . distinguished career

He retired from the army in 1946 when he was 57 years old. His 35 years in the army had been climaxed by the Second World War, during which he emerged as the most distinguished military leader in Canada's history.

Gen. Crerar, a native of Hamilton, had won the Distinguished Service Order and the Military Cross in the First World War. In the Second World War he was made a Companion of Honor and Company of the Order of the Bath. From the United States he received the Legion of Merit and the Distinguished Service Medal; from France, the Legion d'Honneur and Croix de Guerre avec palme; from The Netherlands, the Grand Cross of the Order of Orange Nassau with swords.

Johnson Inherits Top Crisis

Nothing of importance has turned out as John F. Kennedy, the international statesman, had hoped, writes Bruce Hutchison in a new series of articles starting in today's Times.

His successor, Lyndon B. Johnson, has "inherited a crisis even larger than Lincoln's since it embraces all mankind." The United States, with all its power, no longer controls the times or the revolution convulsing them, Mr. Hutchison notes. As a result of this there is frustration and disillusion in Washington, a "sense of loneliness and abandonment."

Mr. Hutchison's intimate and penetrating reports from Washington begin today on Page 5.

Compulsory Breathalyzer Tests Due

OTTAWA — Changes in the criminal code to provide for compulsory breathalyzer tests for impaired driving suspects are likely in the near future.

A top justice department official said today the changes would also provide for stiffer penalties for impaired driving offences.

Friday End Predicted For Session

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Prorogation of the second session of the 26th parliament—the longest in Canada's history—now appeared certain for Friday.

The Senate passed the Canada Pension Plan through its banking committee with little difficulty Thursday morning. It was sent back to the upper house for third reading this afternoon.

The "opting out" legislation will then be taken up by the senate. It too may be sent to a committee but indications were that it would pass the senate in short order.

Meantime in the Commons interim supply was expected to be concluded today or Friday at the latest. The MPs may wind up their business to take off a few hours Friday waiting for the senate to complete its business then prorogation could take place Friday night.

The government hopes to open the third session Monday with the throne speech.

17 Neutrals Issue Appeal On Viet Nam

(Times News Services)

WASHINGTON — Seventeen neutralist nations formally appealed today for both sides in the Viet Nam conflict to enter negotiations "without prior conditions."

A copy of the written appeal, drafted at a conference of non-aligned nations at Belgrade, March 15, was handed to Secretary of State Dean Rusk today by the ambassadors of Afghanistan, Ghana, Ethiopia and Yugoslavia.

The group expressed "deep concern" over "the ever worsening dangerous situation in Viet Nam."

Rusk promised that the United States would "consider profoundly and seriously this appeal."

However, there was no sign that the Southeast Asia struggle was actually headed for the conference table. U.S. officials said North Viet Nam has yet to show it intends to abandon its attacks on the south—and without such intent by Hanoi, peace talks would be worthless.

The same appeal was being presented by the countries to Britain, Russia, France, Red China, North and South Viet Nam, Poland, Canada, the Communist national liberation front in South Viet Nam, and to United Nations Secretary General U Thant."

Northwest Sky Lighted Up by Satellite's Return

A flaming ball which streaked across Western Canada Wednesday night was almost certainly a U.S. spy satellite.

Officials were scrutinizing the [illegible] first it was believed the [illegible] bright ball of fire was [illegible]

It streaked across Western Canada travelling from north-east to south-west.

In it's wake it left shooting flames and explosions which kept police and an astrophysical observatory switchboards busy with calls from bewildered people wanting to know what had happened.

Dr. Kenneth Wright, of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, Victoria, said the object appeared to have landed in the vicinity of Vernon.

Today aircraft were being used to aid ground searchers in tracing wreckage of the missile.

Meanwhile official phone calls between the Queen Elizabeth Planetarium, Edmonton, Washington and New York, tried to establish for certain if satellite 48a had definitely come down.

Dr. Wright said the object appeared to be taking the same track the satellite was to have taken.

He estimated speed at the point of landing to be in the region of 3,000 miles an hour.

On its passage across Canada the ball showered sparks across the countryside, lit up areas in its path and reportedly exploded on several occasions.

They believe it to be satellite 48a which was due to enter the earth's atmosphere between 11 a.m. Wednesday and 11 a.m. Friday.

At first it was believed the [illegible]

Dr. Wright said the explosions would probably be caused by pieces splitting off under intense heat and pressure.

The flashing, streaking object was reported from areas as far apart as Kamloops, across the Okanagan and the Kootenays in the southeast to Fort St. John in the north. It was also spotted from Nanaimo and in parts of Washington and Idaho.

It was not seen in Victoria due to overcast skies.

In some cases observers reported rumblings which shook houses, rattled windows and made lighting fixtures swing.

The satellite was launched last year from the U.S. Air Force base at Vandenburg, Calif.

LONDON — A teen-ager asked Britain's Prince Philip Wednesday if he would like to "chuck it all" and retire to a desert island.

The Prince, with a grin, said he wouldn't.

The question was one of many put to Queen Elizabeth's husband by four teen-agers in the BBC radio program "Let's Find Out" which will be broadcast on Sunday.

The Prince also was asked about his travels, his schooldays and the role of the monarchy in a democracy.

One teen-ager said later, when asked about the Duke's reaction to the desert-island question: "He gave the impression that he enjoys his role tremendously, and the last thing he would want would be to be on a desert island."

LONDON — Smellovision has arrived, said Professor Samuel Tolansky on a BBC television program Wednesday night as he fed coffee beans and sliced onions into a complicated scientific apparatus.

He urged viewers to position themselves in front of their sets and take a deep sniff. Those who smelled the odors should tell the BBC not later than midday today.

Dozens of viewers fell for the April Fool's Day gag. One even called the BBC to congratulate it for its "historic transmission of smell."

CAMBRIDGE, Eng. — The biggest critics of birth control pills for women are men, a Cambridge University scientist said today.

And the reason may be that men dislike the idea of women being free to enjoy sexual intercourse at all times, Professor Alan Parkes, 64, said.

"Almost all the hostile comment on this tremendous advance has come from men who do not carry the baby. Their instincts may well have been offended by the idea of women being given a biological carte blanc for intercourse," he said.

FARCET, Eng. — Residents of this Huntingdonshire village are up in arms because the local vicar sent out Easter greeting cards asking for help in paying his gasoline bills.

On the foot of the colorful cards sent by the Rev. William Maloney was this postscript:

"Do you know that by ancient custom all collections on Easter Day are given to the vicar? Now don't tell me you thought I was paid by the state.

"This is a good opportunity for you to help me to pay my petrol bills."

Recipients of the cards said they were "insulting" and "saucy."

But the vicar was unrepentant.

"I had something to say and I don't give a damn who is annoyed," he said.

Windsor Couple Attend Service For Princess

LONDON (UPI) — The Duke and Duchess of Windsor today attended a memorial service in Westminster Abbey for the Princess Royal. It was their first public appearance in Britain since he abdicated 29 years ago.

A large crowd standing outside the abbey cheered the former King Edward VIII and his American-born duchess as they arrived in a chauffeur-driven maroon Rolls-Royce.

At the same time, Queen Elizabeth II led other members of the royal family to the private funeral of the princess, her aunt, near Leeds. The Princess Royal was the duke's only sister. She died Sunday.

The duke, who is recovering from three eye operations, was forbidden by his doctors to travel to Leeds for the funeral. He and his wife were the only members of the royal family among the crowd of 2,500 at Westminster Abbey. Other mourners included Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Lady Churchill, Sir Winston Churchill's widow, who celebrated her 80th birthday today.

VISIT ENGLAND

The duke abdicated the throne in 1936 to marry the duchess, a divorcee. Since then they have lived in exile abroad, visiting England occasionally but never taking part in official ceremonies where her lack of status as a "royal highness" would have been evident.

The problem did not arise today, as they were the sole representatives of the royal family. Court experts said their attendance did not affect her standing. But it was seen as another indication that they might soon end their self-imposed exile from Britain and return here to live.

The funeral was held in a tiny church near Harewood House, home of the princess' elder son, Earl Harewood, where she collapsed and died last Sunday. She was 67.

HOME GARDEN

Bait Those Slugs To Save Delphiniums

By JACK BEASTALL

The delphinium ranks high with most gardeners, for the variety of color and magnificence of the spikes far excel the meagre specimens that satisfied our grandparents.

Jack

The colors, rather than the size, are their greatest attraction, the astonishing range of blues, the shot silk mixtures of blue or lavender and pink, and the lovely whites with their black centres looking at you so seriously.

The evolution of our garden hybrids remains a mystery, for the delphinium is so widely distributed over the globe that nobody is quite sure where or when the first hybrid appeared.

In the wild the plants range from California to Tibet and China, over the Alps and eastward into Russia, Persia, Kashmir, Sikim, up the foothills of the Himalayas and down into Abyssinia and Kenya.

Their trail covers half the globe, but these wildings bear little resemblance to the delphiniums of our gardens.

Nor are we gardeners the only lovers of delphiniums. Slugs believe the young shoots to be the finest spring delicacy their palates can encounter.

Little wonder that gardeners so often report their delphiniums are not producing spring growth. The growths were there, and so were the slugs, but the gardener was not present with the metaldehyde bait, which to a slug, surpasses the most succulent delphinium.

'U.S. FOREIGN POLICY ECHOED BY PEARSON'

TORONTO (CP) — T. C. Douglas, national New Democratic Party leader, said Wednesday night that Canada is blindly following the United States lead in Viet Nam.

He accused Prime Minister Pearson of acting as an echo of U.S. foreign policy.

Canada, said Mr. Douglas, is "saying what the U.S. wants us to say; doing what they want us to do, and losing the respect of the rest of the world."

EUROPEAN ISSUES

U.K. Chief Plans Talks in France

PARIS (Reuters) — British Prime Minister Wilson is due to arrive here Friday for talks with President de Gaulle in which the issue of European political union is expected to play a dominant role.

His meeting with de Gaulle will be the first Anglo-French "summit" since de Gaulle stopped Britain's entry into the European Common Market two years ago. Wilson is due to return to London Saturday.

While neither British nor French sources here have given any hint as to the subjects to be discussed by the two leaders, the subject of European political union is regarded as essential to the talks, whether or not it figures on their agenda.

French observers said differences between the two countries all are the result of the conflicting positions between France's commitment to Europe and British determination to retain strong ties outside the continent.

Other possible subjects for the talks include:

1. International monetary problems and de Gaulle's recent initiatives for a return to gold in international payments.
2. Co-operation of the two nations' aircraft industries.
3. Color television — France and several east European countries are supporting the French system as a standard for Europe, while Britain favors the American method.
4. Viet Nam.

New Mental Health Act Takes Effect

British Columbia's new mental health act became effective today.

Health Minister Eric Martin has termed the act the start of a new era for mental health treatment in the province.

The act is designed to put mental health treatment in the same category as physical health treatment.

It allows communities to establish mental health societies and develop their own treatment centres. It also changes the rules for the admission and release of inmates of mental institutions.

Mr. Martin said he hopes that the federal government will soon enter a cost-sharing formula with the provincial government for mental health facilities.

One of the provisions of the new act is to change the name of the Crease Clinic and the mental institution at Essondale to Riverview Hospital.

Shotgun Death Brings Woman Year In Jail

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — An attorney said today he will petition for probation for Mrs. Hubert A. (Kathryn) Marlin, convicted for the shotgun slaying of a Husky football player she found in bed with her daughter.

A jury of 11 men and a woman Wednesday found Mrs. Marlin, 44, guilty of involuntary manslaughter in the death of Charles Ray Neal, 20. Judge John Draper sentenced her to 11 months and 29 days in the Nashville Metropolitan Workhouse and fined her $10 plus court costs.

Viet War 'Atrocious' But Rome Backs U.S.

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Vatican weekly L'Osservatore Della Domenica said editorially Wednesday that U.S. troops and planes in Viet Nam are defending the interest of all the free world.

"If the Americans retreat from Viet Nam," the editorial said, "they would open the door to Chinese expansion in an area of the world which the common interest of all nations wants to remain free and peaceful."

The editorial deplored the sufferings of the people caught in the throes of what it described as "this atrocious situation."

The editorial had no criticism of U.S. action in Viet Nam but blasted the Communists as blocking peace.

"The Americans are capable of withdrawing from a pacified country and have demonstrated this. The others pay lip service to the liberty rights of peoples. But in fact they oppress them with terroristic violence. . . ."

. . . FREEWAY PLAN

12 extensions were proposed to existing roads, a number of which already are underway.

These streets should provide for average speeds of 25 to 35 miles an hour and curb parking allowed only if these speeds can be maintained.

New Roads Proposed for Area

Most of the changes should be to four lanes width. Some should be six lanes while many will remain two-lane.

The new roads proposed are:

McKenzie Avenue, Douglas to Cedar Hill.
Ruby Road, Simon to Sinclair.
Tattersall Drive-Pear Street, Douglas to Cedar Hill Cross Road.
Finlayson Street-Jutland Road-North Dairy, Gorge to Shelbourne.
Royal Oak Avenue, Douglas to Burnside.
Blanshard Street-Rose Street, Blnashard to Topaz.
Haro Road, Sinclair to Cedar Hill Cross Road.
Shelbourne Street, Denman to Begbie.
Lochside Drive, Royal Oak to Blenkinsop.
Rock Bay Avenue to Store and Bay Street to Queens.
Millstream Road, Goldstream to Sooke.
Vancouver-Graham-Jackson, Pandora to Linwood.

Among local streets, the university, waterfront and National Defence area in Esquimalt were considered particular local problems requiring special attention.

A roundabout route was needed at the university and the proposed Ruby and Haro extensions will complete this.

Additional turning lanes at key intersections on approach roads to the university and controlled driveways for parking were recommended.

The present two lanes along the waterfront on Marine Drive-Dallas Road were sufficient for present and future needs but sightseeing vehicles stopping frequently caused congestion.

It was recommended that additional space be provided for parking either by widening the road or providing off-street parking areas at selected points.

The annoying problem of having to wait for four or five traffic light changes while making left turns from Esquimalt Road to Admirals was noted.

The report recommended advance green lights at this intersection and two others—Esquimalt and Lampson, and Lyall and Lampson.

Parking should be prohibited at approaches to these intersections.

Among a number of other recommended improvements are re-alignment of Highway 1A along the CPR track to four lanes, controlled access on the Trans-Canada between Thetis Lake and Goldstream and widening of all bridges.

Three Phase Program Studied

A three-phase program of construction was recommended to start next year.

The first five years consider improvements which would relieve the central area and widen bridges. The freeway system would be started and the right-of-way acquired.

Most expensive project in this phase is $7 million for 2.8 miles of the Patricia Bay Freeway from the Blanshard extension to Royal Oak.

The second phase, from 1971 to 1976, would include spending $8.3 million on the Victoria West Freeway for the Inner Harbor bridge and approaches.

In the third phase $4.6 million would be spent improving the Pat Bay Highway from Elk Lake to Swartz Bay, partly with four-lane freeway and partly four-lane highway.

The report's recommendations will go to municipal councils and the provincial government, which jointly paid about $70,000 for the traffic study.

Turks Fire Criticism At Report

ANKARA (Reuters) — Turkey said today the United Nations mediator in the Cyprus dispute, Galo Plaza, exceeded his authority in his recent report on the troubled island and it considers his position terminated.

A foreign ministry communique said Plaza, a former president of Ecuador who became mediator last September after the death of Sakari Tuomioja of Finland, exceeded his authority by discussing the fundamentals of the Cyprus question.

It said his views on the question of the bases could not be taken into consideration and could not be a basis for future work.

Plaza's 66-page report, which gave a detailed analysis of the political aspects of the Cyprus dispute, was presented to the Security Council Wednesday.

WAIT FOR PROVINCES

Constitution Plan Delayed

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson informed the Commons Wednesday that Parliament will have to wait until the provinces have taken action in regard to the Favreau-Fulton formula for amending the constitution, before it is dealt with by Parliament.

This could mean a year's delay before the highly controversial formula for bringing the constitution home to Canada may be under detailed examination in the Commons.

The prime minister's statement was made in the House after reports emanating from Quebec City that the adoption of the measure by the Quebec legislature may be delayed 10 or 12 months.

B.C. Hydro Cuts the Rates

THE LATEST REDUCTIONS IN B.C. Hydro rates — the fourth since the government took over the business—will be welcomed by customers as further evidence that public ownership of an essential utility can pay dividends.

Since the rate cut does not go into effect until next month, the beginning of the crown corporation's fiscal year, it will not be reflected in the annual report for the year now ending. However, on the basis of past performance, it can be predicted that the estimated $7 million saving to consumers will result in some diminution of net revenue. The reductions put into effect between 1961 and 1964 had the effect of halving net earnings—a drop from $17.6 millions to $8.8 millions.

In one sense this is all to the good since a publicly-owned utility should not exist to make a surplus beyond that necessary to maintain and add to its capital equipment. Additionally, Premier Bennett is to be congratulated for keeping his promise progressively to lower the cost of electricity in the province.

Inevitably, though, the question will be raised as to why the rate cuts have not gone further than they have. It can be pointed out that in fiscal 1960, the last full year of operation of the old B.C. Electric as a private company, income taxes and dividends totalled $25 millions. This was money no longer paid out when the B.C. Electric became part of the crown corporation and, in theory at least, should have been available for rate cuts immediately. Instead, after five years, the savings passed on will amount only to $20 millions annually.

Another way of considering the matter is based on the amount of money employed in the business by the crown corporation compared with that used by the private business.

Over the first three years of operation as B.C. Hydro, the period for which figures are available, an average of $13.5 millions a year was reinvested. In the final three years of private operation the average amount put back into the business was only $3.9 millions after payment of taxes and dividends.

At the same time cost of servicing the debt load has risen enormously. For the combined B.C. Electric and B.C. Power Commission in fiscal 1960, total interest charges amounted to $28.4 millions. By March, 1964, for B.C. Hydro, this had risen to $44.7 millions and the report for the year just ended will undoubtedly show a much higher figure, reflecting the borrowing for the Peace River project construction.

Even with the heavy increase in volume of business which B.C. Hydro has enjoyed during these boom years, it seems unlikely that there will be much room left for further rate cutting until the sources of lower-cost power on the Peace and Columbia rivers have been put on stream.

One other aspect of the rate cuts deserves consideration: The obvious determination of B.C. Hydro to compete strongly in the heating business with its low rates for both residential and commercial customers. As owners of B.C. Hydro, the public will applaud the enterprise of their corporation in going after customers in this new field. Will there also be some concern that a crown corporation is now in direct competition with private business?

A Haircut and a Scrub-Up

ONCE AGAIN CIVIC VICTORIA is enlisting the support of downtown businessmen and property-owners in another phase of its "paint up" campaign.

This is a progressive effort to enhance the appearance of the city, to preserve and show to best advantage the desirable architectural features of the urban centre, and to offer the help and encouragement that skilled planners at the City Hall can provide.

The city proposes color schemes, offers advice on certain improvements, seeks co-operation from owners and tenants to create harmonious yet distinctive areas, and hopes thereby to continue the revitalization of Victoria's core.

Spokesmen for the project make a very practical point in their advocacy of the scheme. While it involves expenditure by those occupying or owning the structures, it is an expense which they may reasonably anticipate as part of property maintenance and redecoration. And, convinced that attractive appearances are an aid to merchandising, they see the outlay as a good business investment.

Earlier phases of the plan have not been wholly satisfactory. Such plans cannot succeed without co-operation from the private individuals and companies involved. But sufficient has been done to illustrate the virtue of the campaign. Where advice was accepted, where merchants and businessmen supported the idea in a practical way, they produced results which have proved the point made by the city sponsors of the scheme.

The point is simple. A city with pride, and with the existing potential for the improvement of its architectural appearance, shows vitality as it converts the potentialities into actualities. That is the purpose of "Paint Up 65", another opportunity to revive the vigor of the downtown area for the benefit of those located there and the community as a whole.

The Bergsma Appeal

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT is to be commended on the decision it has reached in regard to the Bergsma case.

The case involves the ruling of a lower court judge rejecting the application for citizenship by Netherlands immigrants Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bergsma on the grounds that, professing atheism, they could not take the oath of allegiance required in the application for citizenship.

The action of the lower court judge was sustained on appeal by a higher court ruling which declared the judge had functioned properly within his jurisdiction.

The legal factors involved are, of course, matters for the decision of the bench. But the Canadian government is obviously far from satisfied with a situation which, in effect, denies to applicants for citizenship the religious liberty which virtually all Canadians assumed to have been guaranteed by the Bill of Rights.

Taking the proper course, the government has offered to finance the costs of carrying the appeal through to the Supreme Court of Canada. If the ruling there, because of a presumed conflict between the Bill of Rights and the citizenship act, still denies the Bergsmas citizenship on religious grounds, then, says the minister of citizenship and immigration, an amendment will be introduced to change the act.

The principle here is clear. If Canada is to enjoy freedom of religion, then no one should be deprived of citizenship solely because of an honest confession of non-adherence to any religious belief.

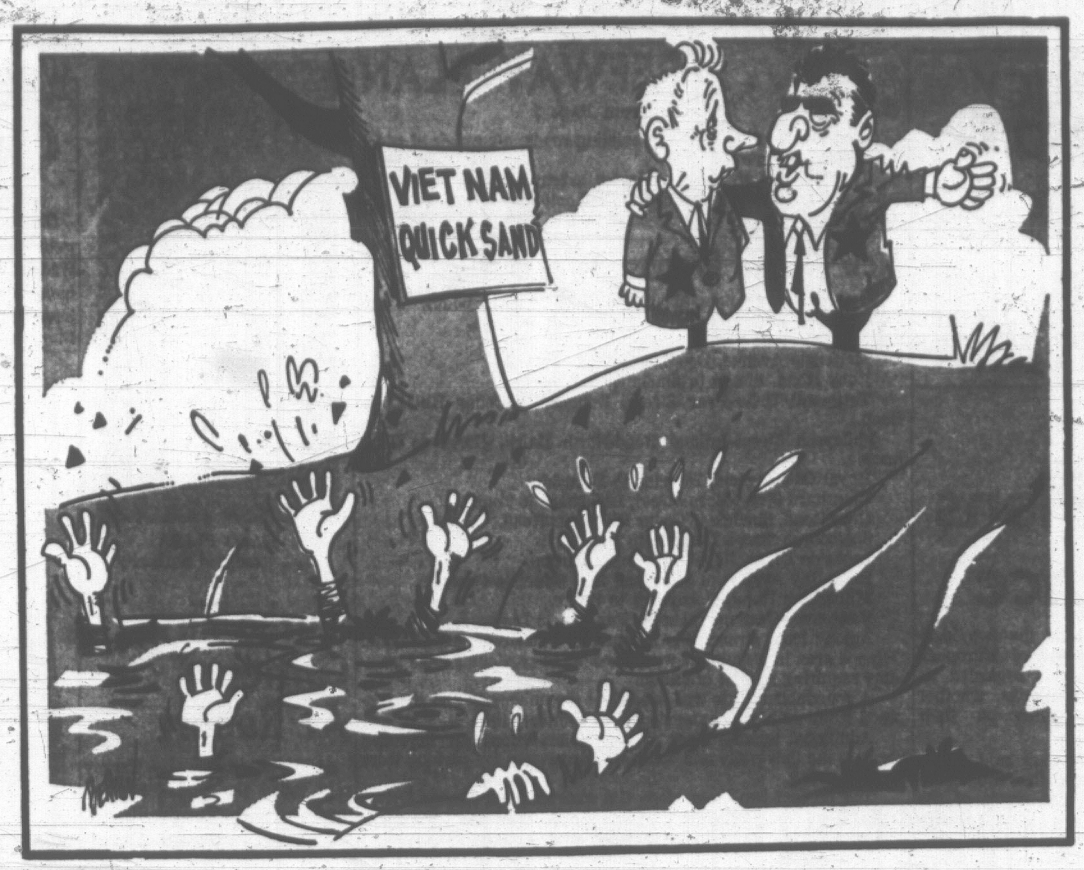

The government, supported by members of the opposition, very properly endorses that position.

A Little Gold From Victoria

VICTORIA'S COMMERCIAL shipment of daffodils to cities in eastern Canada is a familiar part of the business operations of this community. It is still one in which this capital takes delight.

Here is floral evidence of a relatively equable climate and justification of the slogan that the Canadian spring comes first to Victoria.

With the blossoms goes the unspoken hope that they will bring joy into homes of cities where winter lingers. If we in Victoria appear to be a little smug about the whole business, it's only because we are.

—Bierman, Victoria Daily Times.

FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

A Fruitless Protocol Quibble

IN his controversy with Mr. Lesage, Mr. Diefenbaker has raised a constitutional issue which seems entirely unnecessary and is likely to be unprofitable. The Quebec legislature has before it a motion to concur in the proposed amendment to the British North America Act which is intended to bring about the patriation of the constitution of Canada. Mr. Diefenbaker's objection is to the form of the resolution, an humble address to Her Majesty The Queen in the name of the legislative assembly of the province of Quebec.

Western

On Friday last, on a question of privilege, the Conservative leader said: "I rise, sir, to say that it is not constitutionally proper for any province to be placed in a position of exercising the right of address to the Sovereign. Such addresses to the Sovereign, asking for action in the British Parliament, cannot, according to constitutional authorities, be made by a province or any of the provinces. To do so would be to permit the provinces to circumvent Parliament, which alone can pass such addresses."

Narrows Ground

When challenged on this doctrine by Mr. Pearson, Mr. Diefenbaker took narrower ground. Meeting the argument that provincial legislatures had in fact passed such addresses, he said on Monday: "Again I emphasize that any address that was passed by any province at any time had to do particularly with those things which came within the jurisdiction of the province." His contention was that Quebec had no right to address the Queen in a matter which concerned the rights of other provinces.

This is a shaky case for the reason that the Nova Scotia address of 1868—less than a year after Confederation—sought the removal of the province from Confederation, which was certainly a matter affecting the interests of the other provinces.

But whether shaky or not, the Diefenbaker argument surely misses the main point which, incidentally, is not in controversy. The essential question is: What is the status of such an address if passed by a provincial legislature? Is there an obligation on the part of the British Parliament to heed such a provincial petition?

Procedure

The answer seems to be in no doubt. Whenever such a petition has been opposed by the federal advisers of the Crown, it has been ignored by the British Parliament. On the other hand, the British Parliament has never refused; nor would it refuse, a joint address from the two Houses of the Canadian Parliament.

If this position had been challenged by Mr. Lesage, the Conservative leader would have had firm grounds for protest. But it has not been challenged by the Quebec premier. Mr. Lesage proposes, according to the established procedure, to forward the address to the Sovereign through the governor-general, who, as Mr. Pearson noted on Monday, acts on the advice of his responsible federal ministers.

The prime minister was quite specific. "Since this action requested in the address by the legislature of Quebec is the same as that which may be requested in an address by the Parliament of Canada, it would be appropriate to advise the Crown, in forwarding it to London, in the event that it is sent forward to the governor-general through the lieutenant-governor of Quebec and through the governor-general to London, that it should be acknowledged as the expression of the view of the legislature of Quebec about a matter on which action could be taken only on the basis of a decision by the Parliament of Canada on the address to be placed before it."

The last words in this paragraph are of crucial importance. If the draft amendment should be altered by the Parliament of Canada, there would obviously be no point in forwarding the Quebec address which in any case would have no standing if a different address went forward from Parliament.

In reality, the various resolutions being placed before provincial legislatures are intended to convey to the federal government and Parliament the assent of the several provinces to the draft constitutional amendment. There is no constitutional requirement for this form of ratification. Quebec has chosen a method which differs from that of other provinces. But the effect is the same. What is the point of raising a storm over a completely artificial issue when there are real issues to which the attention of the country should be seriously (and, one would hope, reasonably) directed.

FROM STOCKHOLM — By ROLAND HUNTFORD

Chinese Checkers in Europe

"MEETING?" said the man at the Chinese Embassy, "what meeting?" Nothing could puncture his determined inscrutability. Yet there was a hint of play-acting in his attitude.

All Stockholm knew of the conference of Chinese ambassadors in Western Europe at the Chinese Embassy. Their arrival at the Stockholm airport was reported in the local press, and, in the normal course of diplomatic protocol, the Swedish foreign ministry had been informed of their presence.

No Ordinary Meeting

The outward forms, therefore, were those of a routine regional ambassadors' meeting, common practice for most countries. But that this was no ordinary meeting was suggested by its duration and composition. It lasted for more than a week, and, besides the ambassadors in Switzerland, Denmark, Finland, Norway and France, the charges d'affaires in London and The Hague, three high officials of the Chinese foreign office had come from Peking. They arrived by way of Bucharest, where a similar conference had been held of Chinese ambassadors to Eastern European countries.

The senior diplomat was Lo Kuei-po, deputy foreign minister. He paid a courtesy call to the Swedish foreign ministry, where polite formalities were exchanged. Apart from this, the Chinese diplomats isolated themselves and acted with the utmost secretiveness. They met in conclave either at the Chinese Embassy in a quiet street of an elegant Stockholm quarter or at the ambassador's secluded residence on an island suburb called Lidingo. One thing is certain: they had no contact with the Russian Embassy.

It is generally accepted that the Chinese are assessing the results of their recent activity in extending diplomatic and trade contacts with the West, and deliberating over their next steps in this direction. Swedish officials and foreign diplomats in Stockholm read into the meeting a Chinese intention to exploit a deteriorating Russian position, and Lo Kuei-po is assumed to have come from Peking to give the ambassadors a thorough briefing.

The choice of Stockholm puzzled many. The Swedes profess to explain it by the city's position as a neutral capital with a modest foreign press corps, which would allow the Chinese to work in comparative peace.

No 'Bugging'

"They know, for example, that we couldn't wire their embassy," said one official, "and it would be hard for a third party to do so: this is not necessarily so elsewhere."

And yet, there was a suspicion that in choosing Stockholm, the Chinese wanted both to irritate and be sure of engaging the wholehearted attention of the Russians. Had they simply preferred neutral ground, they could have selected Switzerland, which is better situated and more convenient. But it seems as if they were anxious to hold their meeting as close to Russia as possible.

From this point of view, Helsinki would have been best. Finland borders Russia, and the Chinese Embassy in Helsinki is the biggest and most elaborate in Western Europe. But that would have involved them in the complexities of Finnish neutrality, which depends so much on conciliating the Russians. It can be assumed that if the Chinese intended to go to Helsinki they received clear Finnish hints not to do so.

Stockholm, therefore, seems something of a second-best, although it probably served its purpose well enough. It is not far from Russia and is on the Baltic, which the Russians like to think of as a "mare nostrum." Moreover, there were a dozen Russian resident correspondents. The Chinese could, therefore, be certain of making more of an impact than if they had to compete with other events in the hurly-burly of a conventional news centre.

Very Loud Silence

It is not for an Occidental to penetrate the involuted workings of an Oriental mind, but the almost ostentatious secretiveness of the Chinese in Stockholm seemed to indicate a desire for the best of all publicity, which is inquisitiveness well frustrated. The Russians, of all people, can be expected to act on the proposition that if something is hidden it must be worth hiding, and rise to this particular bait.

So, therefore, whatever the ambassadors were discussing in the placid air of Stockholm, their presence alone could be interpreted as throwing down the gauntlet and it is reasonable to suppose that their palaver may presage a Chinese offensive in Western Europe of diplomacy, trade and public relations.

Perhaps the real significance of the Stockholm meeting will turn out to be that for the first time the Chinese are becoming serious contenders on the European stage.

THROUGH SERVICE

In one way I think that today is our greatest opportunity. We missionaries really were hampered in the past by our inevitable association with European colonial dominance. We go now not with any great power; we can't order people around. We can only commend the faith that we have by the relationship which we develop with our colleagues in Africa and Asia, by the service we are able to give.

—John Taylor, of the Church Missionary Society.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Looking Back

From The Times of April 1, 1890:

Quietly and without trouble, Chinese laborers have been replaced by white men at construction projects throughout the city. Bricklayers requested the Chinese be discharged and employers acquiesced. The change will increase costs because Chinese were paid $1.25 or $1.50 a day while white laborers doing the same work got $2 or $2.50. The difference was ascribed "to the fact that white men have to live, not merely exist."

Letters

Princess Mary's

Travelling into Victoria March 29 I noticed flags flying high on public buildings such as post offices, municipal halls and schools.

In Victoria only the Parliament Buildings and the Empress Hotel had flags at half-mast for the Princess Royal, though others conformed later in the day.

One of the glaring exceptions was the Bay Street Armory, shared by the Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) Regiment, which should have been the first to mark the passing of their colonel-in-chief.—F.H.C.

Bilingualism in Canada

If English-speaking Canadians are ever compelled to learn French then would it not be only fair that the French should be compelled to learn English.—A Multi-lingualist.

Better Burns Monument

I have often wondered why, in this city with its popular Burns Club and so many admirers of the beloved Scottish poet, he is honored by no better monument than the amorous marionettes on exhibition in Beacon Hill Park. I would like to see them replaced by a life size statue or a simple bust that would bring out the broad shoulders and fine head of the poet, with nobler lines inscribed on the base.—James Morton, 710 Rupert.

Low Cost Housing

The interesting face of James Bay may continue to change, backed by the influence of investment. But why has it offered no vision of plans for low cost housing? Is the chief interest of the developer for low cost land only?

There are many people in James Bay and Victoria who need low-cost housing now. James Bay was acclaimed by one investor to be the best spot in all of Canada for his building plans. It is doubtful that they included low-cost housing. To exile the old needs in housing from James Bay will dim the brightness of the face of it. The foundation of building plans is the need of the people, especially in housing.—Mrs. B. Brazil, 676 Battery.

Red Shortfall

New York Times

THERE is a refreshing candor about the Soviet admission that the Communist-ruled nations will fall far short this year of attaining the 50 per cent of world industrial production they had earlier boasted they would have in 1965. This attitude contrasts strongly with the flood of vituperation Moscow unleashed little more than a year ago in reply to the Central Intelligence Agency's calculations calling attention to the slowing down of the Soviet growth rate.

The shift to frankness is probably related to the ouster of Nikita Khrushchev. Soviet economists and statisticians do not have to worry now about discussing matters that cast shadows on his reputation as an economic genius, particularly since the present rulers have made clear their belief that he was an incompetent bungler in this area.

Put most simply, the Communist economies have moved ahead much less rapidly and the non-Communist economies have moved ahead much more rapidly than Premier Khrushchev expected in the years he was loudly trumpeting his predictions of "inevitable triumph" in the economic race.

The debacle of China's "great leap forward," the frequent unsatisfactory harvests in many Communist nations, and the sheer confusion plaguing many of the Eastern European economies all help explain their poor performance.

On the free world side, persistent production growth in the United States, the Common Market nations and Japan have helped frustrate the Khrushchev vision.

Moscow's analysts now claim the goal sought for this year will be reached by 1970. Their past record as prophets, however, does not inspire very much respect these days. Presumaby they count on the gains made possible by the radical shift toward free market practices to help them achieve this postponed target.

But it takes two to make a race, and there is no reason to believe that the economies of non-Communist nations will vindicate Moscow's prediction by slowing down. Rather there are many good reasons, aside from the Communist competition, for Western policymakers to continue putting high priority on maintaining and even increasing the rate of development of their economies.

Ties With France

(Jean-Marc Leger, in "Le Devoir" of Montreal)

The "entente" (with France), to call it by its official name, is important for Quebec from three points of view: it organizes France-Quebec relations, providing a system and rules for what heretofore has been only a matter of men and opportunity; it cements the desires of the two governments for the extensive development of co-operation and exchange in all departments of education and scientific research. (It is estimated that the operation of the entente will require credits in the order of $2 millions a year provided in equal shares by both parties); and finally, it has eminent value as a precedent which will give Quebec the knowledge necessary for future judicious participation in numerous ententes, not only in the areas of education and culture, but in others in which it has jurisdiction, such as labor or social security.

And perhaps the psychological significance of the event will prove to have been as great as its cultural and political importance not only for the French hosts of the Quebec delegation but for the delegation itself. It was the first time that Quebec had acted directly on an international plane, signed a treaty, conferred without an intermediary; in brief, in a limited but major field, conducted itself as a sovereign government. . . .

Also noteworthy is the echo raised in French circles by the appeal of M. Gerin-Lajoie favoring the creation of a Francophile cultural community of world proportions, a sort of Francophile commonwealth in which the Franco-Quebec entente would be seen as the first stone. It is a vast, ambitious, difficult but necessary project, in which one may believe that Quebec will play a pioneer or activating role.

GERMANY: LONG WAY TO UNITY

By KARL WILLY BEER
(From the semi-official West German publication, Deutsche Korrespondenz.)

BONN—The Federal Republic cannot depart from four-power responsibilty for Germany as the basis of its future policy. This is roughly the outcome of a discussion conducted in the Bundestag (lower house of parliament), in political parties, on radio and television and in the newspapers.

This inner-German debate was inspired by the extensively expressed views of President de Gaulle on the future of Germany. De Gaulle's verbal vision of a European solution to the German question took no account of the responsibility of the four big powers—the Soviet Union, the United States, Britain and France—for the recreation of German unity. As it later transpired, from explanations by the Quai d'Orsay and de Gaulle himself, this non-mention did not mean French renunciation of the four-power procedure.

Words, Not Deeds

The Soviet Union has never supported its repeated declarations with actual deeds, in fact has done everything possible to dilute the remaining four-power co-operation. But in the vital position of Berlin, at least, the Russians have been unable to influence the responsibility being fulfilled by the three Western powers in the face of threats, blockades and ultimatums.

Although the Western powers have made various abortive attempts in recent years to induce the Russians to participate in consultations on execution of the four-power responsibility, America, Britain and France have stuck firmly to their obligations. Britain and the United States were the first to reaffirm this in connection with de Gaulle's latest remarks. It was France, in December last year, that indicated to Bonn that it saw no starting point for a new "initiative" in the German question for the time being, as far as the Soviet Union is concerned.

Based on Potsdam

Had France withdrawn from four-power responsibility for Germany, it would have been a heavy blow, also for France's and Germany's allies. Policy on Germany has been based for the last 20 years on the Potsdam conference at the end of the Second World War, which fixed the commitments of Moscow, London, Paris and Washington to work for German unity.

Since 1948, the Soviet Union has as good as backed out of this obligation, after torpedoeing the Allied Control Council for Germany. However, since the war, a whole series of conferences of foreign ministers and heads of government have repeatedly reaffirmed the validity of this responsibility.

The French president has given fresh impetus to the discussion with his European eye-view of the German question. It is not de Gaulle's plan to replace the four-power responsibility with a European responsibility for Germany. Bonn believes he wants to fit a new motor in the seized-up four-power mechanism.

Europe First

A certain political school of thought has for some time been advocating "first Europe, then German reunification." More recently, this has come to mean that the division of Europe into east and west must be overcome before German reunification is feasable. It is possible de Gaulle thinks along similar lines. French policy has made by far the most progress through the systematic and individual establishing of contact with the countries of eastern and southern Europe.

Since the French leader's press conference on February 4, we have known that de Gaulle sees the road towards European unity as a long one. He regards German reunification as the fruit of many meetings and long and difficult negotiations with Germany's eastern European neighbors. But he also believes the four-power medium should continue to play its part.

Moscow Unhappy

The West is undoubtedly tired of vain appeals to the Soviet Union, and it is only the intransigent Soviet Union that profits. But Moscow cannot feel too happy about French efforts to encourage Soviet satellite countries to reach direct understanding with West Germany. Growing independence of these countries is nibbling away at Moscow's power and prestige.

If de Gaulle were to succeed with his "European solution" concepts it would undoubtedly be to the hearty applause of Germany—and the United States. De Gaulle also realizes that Germany cannot do without four-power responsibility for Germany. But Germans are happy that France wants to mobilize the whole of Europe to achieve a German settlement.

Lyndon Johnson's Grim Inheritance: A Crisis Embracing All Mankind

BY BRUCE HUTCHISON

WASHINGTON — A tiny beacon of perpetual fire glows above the grave of John F. Kennedy at Arlington. Pilgrims still come here from every corner of the land to worship a young man's gallant memory.

But the age of Kennedy, with all its strange mixture of boyish idealism and cold-blooded politics, its elegance, style and intellectual quest, has become no more than a memory now. The age of Lyndon B. Johnson is not only a very different thing: it is set in a very different world.

Nothing of importance has turned out as Kennedy, the international statesman, had hoped.

His Grand Design for the North Atlantic lies in ruins and other men must re-assemble the broken pieces, some day, somehow, if Western civilization is to last. The alliance of free men which he led in his finest hour, changing overnight the whole course of human events at the unlikely turning point of Cuba, may not be in ruins but it is in aching travail.

PRES. JOHNSON
A Flame of Hope . . .

Are these the pains of death or new birth? The great pragmatist who has succeeded Kennedy and dominates his nation as Kennedy never did, cannot know the answer to this or any other vital question. The master of consensus sees only that the alliance has none. An untidy world refuses to fit any pattern, neither the slavish pattern of Marx nor the free pattern of America.

Native Star

Johnson must grope blindly over a terrain dark, unmapped and stretching beyond this small planet into sidereal space. Still, he has his native star to guide him—a burning faith in the genius of his people, an almost religious trust in human possibilities learned on the old Texas frontier, a certain wholesome innocence unknown to the polished aristocrat from Boston.

Beneath all the outer brashness, the crude manipulation of men, the candid egotism and the insatiable appetite for personal power, there burns in this president a flame of quenchless hope as if to answer and salute that other flame across the river.

Johnson will need all those instincts of natural leadership, all the pride in the majesty of his office, all the unlimited confidence in his own talents, to carry him through a long journey. For as these dispatches will try to indicate, the thirty-sixth president has inherited a crisis even larger than Lincoln's, since it embraces all mankind.

Is Johnson big enough to solve the crisis? Of course he is not. No man, in a singe lifetime, can begin to solve it. At best he can only guide it along the edge of an abyss without visible end.

Lunatic Asylum

As one of the most powerful men in Washington put the prospects to me: "None of us, not even the youngest, not even our children or grandchildren, will live to see a sane world. For many decades at least we'll have to live in a lunatic asylum and we'll be damned lucky if we can keep it from burning down."

That is the measurement of Johnson's grim inheritance. That is the nature of our times. With all its unequalled power, the magic of its economic system and the buoyant spirit of its people, the United States does not control our times or the revolution convulsing them. No man or nation is in control.

The sudden realization of this fact, and the sense of frustration flowing from it—the grand disillusionment that follows the collapse of the Grand Design — instantly strike the visitor to Washington after a year's absence. The capital's mood is angry but there is more sorrow in it than anger — sorrow mainly because the allies of the United States simply do not grasp its true purposes.

Their growing skepticism, above all, their supposed ingratitude to the only power capable of defending them, rankles deeply here. Washington is saddened by a sense of loneliness and abandonment. It sometimes feels like a titan pinned down by mischievous pygmies. All the allies ask the United States to settle every problem but if it tries to settle them in its own way it is condemned as a fool or a war monger.

Humor Passes

This humor of exasperation quickly passes, however, melted by the president's irrepressible optimism. He recently complained in public, with unusual petulance, that Americans make more trouble than foreigners for any occupant of the White House but he does not know the meaning of failure or retreat. For him life is an unbroken advance, a march without pause, a gaudy procession will all the bands playing.

Yet among less sunny and more thoughtful men the misunderstanding of foreign friends is irksome, and puzzling, too.

A few days ago Mr. George Ball, undersecretary of state and the second man among the makers of American policy, remarked rather wistfully in Toronto that even Canadians and Americans "can never fully understand each other." Each country, he said, possessed "a kind of interior life, a private family life, in which no outsider can fully participate and from which every outsider is to some extent excluded."

If this be true of next-door neighbors on an open border, how will it ever be possible to explain the American Dream or, short of that, actual American policy to remote outsiders in Moscow, Peking Saigon and darkest Africa?

How is the United States to deal with the immediate and ironic riddle of power which seems unlimited but, in its ultimate dimensions, cannot be used?

Pondering the riddle another major architect of policy said to me: "You Canadians worry a lot over your sovereignty. That's understandable. But what about American sovereignty? It's hedged about by no less than 42 treaties all over the world, every one of them limiting our freedom of action, but every one increasing our responsibility. Sure, we have the Bomb, the final sanction, but we can't go around threatening to drop it. In fact, the Bomb itself is a limitation of sovereignty because no one dares to drop it. So no one has sovereignty in its old style any more. This sort of world just can't afford it."

Putting the quandary of the Johnsonian age in simplest terms, the United States can hope to lead its allies but no longer can coerce them.

None has significant physical power nowadays, as power is reckoned in the only true arsenals of Washington and Moscow. Nevertheless, all of them, even the smallest, has another form of power, the power to harass, erode and perhaps to obstruct the world-wide objectives of the United States.

New Phenomenon

As seen here (not without prejudice) those objectives represent a new phenomenon in human experience. For the first time a dominant world power has no colonial possessions and wants none. Its only purpose is to protect itself and offer to other lands the prosperity and freedom of its own. But strangely as it seems in Washington, the other lands are reluctant to accept anything more than American money, protection and blood. Everywhere the best of intentions are thwarted by misguided men, large and small.

President de Gaulle has made a shambles of American policy in Europe. Now he is attempting even to discipline American policy at home through his preposterous revival of the gold standard. In so doing he threatens to make a shambles also of the world's monetary system.

Collapsed

West Germany, which President Kennedy was inclined to regard as the pillar of American strength in Europe, begins to look like a broken reed outside its own boundaries. The other European allies count for little in the American contest with the two Communist empires.

The United Nations, when most needed, has collapsed like a child's toy balloon and must be ignored in practical politics, for the present anyway.

Thus, in the immediate test of Viet Nam, the United States finds itself with only one friend of real value and reliability. Perhaps the single good thing growing in that jungle of uncertainty is the reconciliation of old friends. The United States and Britain, as the protector of Malaysia, have been driven together by joint peril in a unity of thought and interest unknown since the days of Roosevelt and Churchill.

. . . Saluting the Perpetual Beacon

A queer, improbable partnership between Johnson and Wilson may appear from the outside as a mere marriage of convenience but it is far deeper than that. In a fashion quite alien to the character of Kennedy, Johnson (a conservative in foreign policy as he is a radical domestic reformer) turns instinctively to time-tested friends who speak his own language not only of the tongue but of the mind.

Those friends, it should be quickly added, include Canada. Its government may be dubious of American strategy in Viet Nam, and may see itself as an honest broker of future negotiations, but it recognizes the trouble in southeast Asia as only one aspect of a much larger process. In that process it must stand by its neighbor and only defender.

Isolationism?

To be sure, these are all vague and general statements, to be elaborated later. What do they mean? Do they mean that the United States, smarting from the criticism of ungrateful allies, will return some day to isolationism, or to the "neoisolationism" of limited retreat preached by Walter Lippmann? I asked this question of a man who certainly knows the real opinions of the American government.

"Isolationism!" he retorted, somewhat irritably. "The only isolationism you need to worry about is the isolationism of our friends. And that's something to worry about all right."

Since Woodrow Wilson's tragedy in 1920, the United States has moved around a complete circle to international leadership at the summit and now is alarmed by the apparently opposite movement of its friends.

Stood Together

In the American government's view, one of the largest factors in forcing Khrushchev's retreat from Cuba was the quick realization that the entire Western alliance stood unshakably together. There was no chance of Russian miscalculation. The present sorry state of the alliance, however, makes miscalculation possible, even probable.

That, as Washington believes, is the supreme danger, from Viet Nam to Berlin. The United States is shocked, almost incredulous, to discover that most of its allies, except Britain, Canada and Australia, cannot seem to understand the inevitable result of defeat in southeast Asia. It would shake the whole defence line of the Pacific from Australia to the Philippines and up to Japan. It would reverberate to the heart of Europe and there shake the confidence of Germany, the core of the world struggle.

If the United States' word is not good in Viet Nam, who will trust it anywhere? That calculation, whether the peripheral strategy succeeds or not, is the centre of American policy. From the centre this policy radiates outward in many directions to be outlined in another dispatch.

Canada Continues the Quest For Way to Halt Viet Nam War

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin will confer with United Nations Secretary-General U Thant in the next few days in a continuing quest for a method to halt the desperate "test war" in Viet Nam.

Martin has repeatedly deplored the fact that there is no opening in the present situation which would allow the United Nations to play a proper role in the Asian conflict.

But he does hope that Thant, in his capacity as secretary-general, personally might be able to do something useful in trying to promote the idea of a cease fire.

Once again Canada is on the spot as a prominent middle power with men in the field enjoying opportunities for contact with all combatants in Viet Nam.

The fact that all parties involved directly or indirectly in the conflict are regarding it as a "test war" points up the fact that Viet Nam poses the most deadly threat since the Second World War.

General Giap, the leader of the North Vietnamese army who defeated the French in Viet Nam in the last decade, had this to say recently:

"South Viet Nam is the model of the national liberation movement of our time . . . If the special warfare that the U.S. imperialists are testing in South Viet Nam is overcome, this means that it can be defeated everywhere in the world."

Opposite Context

Martin, in a speech last weekend, also held this view but in an opposite context. He suggested that if aggression is not brought under control in Viet Nam, campaigns of Communist subversion could conceivably spread through Asia (including India), the Pacific (including Australia and New Zealand), and into volatile nations of Africa and Latin America.

"No one wants to see a world war over this kind of situation," Martin said, "but we must not overlook the fact that it takes two sides to make a truce. If both could be forthcoming we could at least discuss the necessary conditions for a cease-fire."

Further complicating the situation is the sword-rattling which has emanated in recent days from Moscow and Peking.

Russia, which has always been a favorite of North Viet Nam's venerable leader Ho Chi Minh, already provides equipment to the nation, and has now said there are Russian volunteers ready to enter the fight if necessary.

China twice now has said officially it is prepared to send reinforcements if things go too far.

No Negotiation

Although Russia's Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko has flatly rejected the idea of negotiations towards a settlement at this time, informants suggest Moscow is not anxious to see the conflict expanded.

It is also not anxious to see its giant rival, Communist China, fully involved in the war or to be involved in the same war with it. Canadian sources suggest that, in spite of its tough stand, Russia is now "frantically trying" to find ways to bring the situation to a halt.

At the moment the degree to which the Vietnamese battle will progress lies theoretically in the hands of Washington and Peking.

It has been suggested here there will be no cease fire as long as North Viet Nam appears to be winning—and it has been doing quite well.

Should future U.S. military policy result in weakening North Vietnamese efforts, then China would have to make the awful decision on whether or not it will become actively committed.

It is the feeling here that both large nations will hesitate in that rarified atmosphere of possible global war.

Canada, as a member of the control commission is in a better position, along with India and Poland, to maintain contact in the area than even the major powers.

Blair Seaborn, the Canadian commissioner stationed in South Viet Nam, has a mobility not afforded formal diplomatic representatives and can move freely between Saigon and Hanoi. In recent months he has had a number of discussions with the North Vietnamese, but had had to report there is no evidence of any interest at the moment in either a cease fire or negotiations.

One possible move to get the situation into the realm of high level discussion may be to consider calling a conference on neighboring Laos. This would involve the same countries of the 1954 Geneva convention as those which were involved with Viet Nam.

This back door approach, which has been tentatively suggested by Martin, could provide an opportunity to discuss possibilities of cease-fire talks.

It is but one of many suggestions but, in the aura of extreme tension, officials feel anything is worth considering.

Question of Privilege

An Editorial in The Ottawa Citizen

An important constitutional question was raised by Premier Lesage the other day when he mused aloud about the possibility of having Mr. Diefenbaker called before the bar of the Quebec legislature.

Fortunately, the question won't really have to be decided, because Mr. Lesage has since said that Mr. Diefenbaker, at the time he committed his alleged offence, did so in Parliament, when he was enjoying parliamentary immunity.

Mr. Diefenbaker, leader of the opposition in the federal parliament, had risen the other day on a point of privilege to question the constitutional right of the Quebec legislature to prepare an address to the Queen. Mr. Lesage has since pointed out that the address wouldn't be sent to the Queen directly from Quebec, but rather through Ottawa, where the federal government is situated.

At the same time, he felt that Mr. Diefenbaker had committed an attack on the privilege of the Quebec legislature, and wondered for a fleeting moment whether Mr. Diefenbaker shouldn't be haled before the bar of the Quebec House.

What would be the procedure? Mr. Lesage would have to send his security guards to Ottawa. Could they get past the federal security guards on Parliament Hill, in order to lay hands on Mr. Diefenbaker? It goes without saying that Mr. Diefenbaker would have the right to have the charges against him read in English; but need he pay any attention to the Quebec security guards at all, whether in English or French?

Suppose the Quebec guards couldn't get past the federal guards? Could they lie in wait for Mr. Diefenbaker near his Rockcliffe home? What if the Ontario provincial police ordered them to keep moving? The imagination boggles at all the constitutional difficulties that might have been raised.

Remember when Bonded Stock came in that plain old bottle?

Well it doesn't anymore.
That fine old bottle has launched its last sip.
We've designed a new container for Gooderham's Bonded Stock. Tall and refined with classic lines.
(Our whisky's now in the best shape ever).
And we age Bonded Stock longer now as well.
To make every drop just a little more mellow.
One thing though. Bonded Stock's smooth lightness we don't change. Our blenders know a good thing when they taste it.
Judging from the number of people who buy Bonded Stock Whisky, so does the rest of the country.

Gooderham's have been distilling fine whiskies since 1832

Four Hanged, Strangled, Report Says

OTTAWA (CP) — Four of the last 30 hangings carried out in Canada resulted in death by strangulation, a Commons document reported this week.

A justice department return tabled for John R. Matheson (L—Leeds) also reported that 11 of the 30 persons executed were "examined and found dead."

Mr. Matheson had asked for a report from the autopsies showing the cause of death in each of the 30 cases. No names were involved.

The other death causes listed were:

"Fracture dislocation of the cervical vertebrae," seven.

"Fracture of the vertebrae column," three.

One each of the following: "Fractured neck, fracture of the cervical column, fracture dislocation of spine and severance of spinal cord, fracture and dislocation of the cervical spine."

Mr. Matheson also wanted to know how long it took the condemned person to die in each of the last 25 hangings.

He was advised that this information was reported in only two of the 25 inquest reports. One was 10 minutes, the other 15.

Budget Boosted To Lure Tourists

The department of conservation and recreation will spend more than $900,000 this year in an attempt to attract more tourists to British Columbia.

The amount to be spent is an increase of $200,000 over last year.

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan told delegates to the spring conference of the Provincial Tourist Advisory Council, Wednesday, that the money would be spent in diverse ways.

Part of it will go on a drive to increase circulation of the government publication "Beautiful B.C.", which now has 44,000 paid subscribers and a press run pushing 100,000.

Mr. Kiernan said he hopes circulation will reach 120,000 for the spring and summer issues of the magazine.

The winter issue, last one off the press, came close, hitting sold-out circulation of 100,500 copies.

Other money will be spent on the production of films for TV showing in the United States and Eastern Canada.

Mr. Kiernan said that last year British Columbia films had 300 showings in the United States alone.

INSPECTION FEE RAISED

Hotels and motels will pay more this year for the government inspection service.

Those with 10 units or less will pay $5, those with 11 to 30 units or rooms $10 and those with more than 30 rooms, $20.

All hotels and motels must submit to inspection before they can obtain a "government approved" sticker and be listed in the official government booklet of approved accommodation in B.C.

A the time of inspection all must meet minimum standards of comfort, cleanliness and courtesy.

'Why All the Secrecy About Hotel Bars?'

Members of the Provincial Tourist Advisory Board want the B.C. Liquor Control Board to revise its ideas on cocktail lounge advertising.

At present regulations prevent a hotel from stating that it has a cocktail lounge.

"It isn't good enough," said one delegate to the spring conference of the council Wednesday at the Empress Hotel. "If I have a cocktail lounge why shouldn't I be able to say so in the Green Book?"

The Green Book is an official publication listing all government-approved accommodation in B.C. Roughly a million copies will be distributed this year carrying a general description of accommodation listed — but not mentioning cocktail lounges.

Delegates were told that the ruling could not be changed by resolution, but they could ask the liquor board to consider changing the regulations.

Enterprises Building Bids To Be Asked

The long delay in getting the new Goodwill Enterprises building at Wilson and Bay Street off the gorund is worrying project officials.

George Gray, president and manager of the firm which employs the handicapped, said Tuesday the building has been planned for four years. Three years ago the estimated cost was $250,000.

"The constant increase in labor and the perennial rise in material cost, including the 11 per cent excise tax now levied by the government on construction materials, have changed this figure," Mr. Gray said.

The money for the new building has come from the Rotary Club of Victoria, by revenues from the Goodwill operations, from individual gifts and from a gift from the McPherson estate.

The final decision to go ahead came following the fire which destroyed the Brackman and Ker building last year where part of the Goodwill operation was housed.

Construction bids will be called early in April. To gain time, project officials decided in January to go ahead with land-clearing operations.

"We had to see how much rock had to be moved from the site before tenders could be called," Mr. Gray said.

"We are now going ahead with what funds we have," he says, "but there are going to be disappointments."

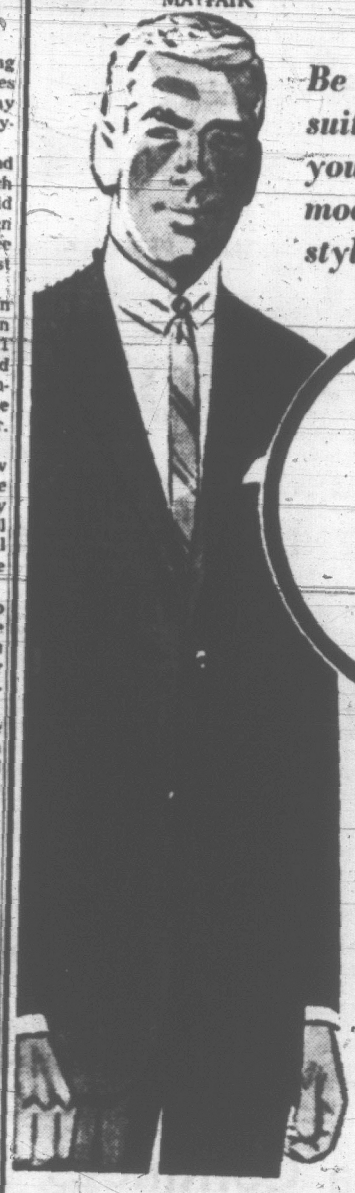

Mr. Gray says that some features may have to be scaled down or even omitted from the plans.

The Goodwill retail and workshop departments are at 560 Yates Street. The warehouse and sorting divisions are now housed in rented facilities at the Westcraft Building on Douglas Street.

HOUSE, CAR WON

6,700 Hopefuls Jam Huge Bingo

More than 6,700 players attended the 39th Kinsmen Giant Bingo Wednesday night.

Victoria Memorial Arena was filled with the four last players admitted seated high in the press-box. An additional 1,200 people were turned away at the door and about 600 people were told there were no more tickets available at the Eaton's box office in the morning.

The hopeful crowd, believed to be the largest ever to attend a function in the arena, was playing for cash prizes varying from $25 to $500. The grand prize for the evening was a 1965 Mustang hardtop convertible.

The winner of the car was Mrs. Peter Balback of Sooke. She competed for the tie-breaking number with four other cardholders who each received a consolation prize of $25.

The ticket for the $35,000 Kinsmen model home was drawn in front of the audience at the end of the Bingo game.

The car winner drew the ticket out of a barrel containing an estimated 37,000 ticket stubs.

Winners of the home were Mrs. Arlene Sequin, 839 Villance, and Fred Lambert, 642 Johnson. They were not in attendance in the arena at the time of the draw.

Mr. Lambert, who is a locomotive engineer with the CPR, is due to retire in two months' time after 48 years at work.

He said this morning that he will meet today with his co-winner to decide what they will do with the house.

Reserved tickets are now available for the next Kinsmen bingo on June 2.

JAYCEE FAIR SPACE NEAR SELLOUT POINT

The 1965 Jaycee fair promises to be the biggest and best ever.

This confident report was given Wednesday night by Reg Owens, chairman of the exhibition committee.

Speaking at the bi-monthly chamber meeting, he said floor space for the fair, May 17 to 22, is already almost sold out.

And with more than a month to go booth space has already netted $900 more than last year.

Special features at the fair will include a 32-foot long table covered with cakes baked by Greater Victoria school students.

For those who take more interest in their faces than their stomachs, local artists will paint portraits—while-you-wait.

There will also be some entertainment, though no names are yet being released.

Fulton Rumored Ottawa-Bound

In January local Progressive Conservatives asked E. Davie Fulton, provincial leader of the party, to accept their nomination as a federal candidate in the next federal election.

Mr. Fulton declined the honor with reservations.

Friday he returns to Victoria to address the spring quarterly meeting of the federal and provincial executives of the party and rumor is rife that he will choose the opportunity to announce his return to federal politics.

Since accepting the leadership of the provincial party Mr. Fulton has run for office once, in the last provincial general election.

At that time he challenged Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi in the Kamloops riding and was soundly defeated.

Since then, on several occasions, Mr. Fulton has denied any intention of returning to the Ottawa scene, saying that his first job lay in mending PC fences in B.C.

Sharing the speakers' platform with him this weekend will be Stuart Fleming, MP for Okanagan and Revelstoke.

ALDERMEN LOOK AT RECORD BUDGET

Cost-Cutting Nets $17,170

Day-long devotion to 1965 estimated spending peeled only $17,170 from $158,058 worth of increases considered by city aldermen Wednesday.

Estimates committee went through four sets of estimates out of 15 having a proposed net increase of $865,000 this year.

Committee members cut their biggest slice out of general government estimates—$15,920 from the proposed increase of $124,098—but added $5,950 to the same group for a net trimming of $9,970.

The balance of total estimated spending will be considered today and Friday in an effort to keep tax rate increase to a minimum.

Aldermen were shown in a preliminary review of increased spending proposed in departmental estimates that a 7.4 mill tax boost would be necessary to cover the budget.

School costs, over which council has no control, could add another 2 mills, comptroller James Bramley estimated.

Last year, cost-cutting aldermen trimmed 3.3 mills from a record budget that ended up at $11.5 million.

Fire department estimates were cut Wednesday by $7,200, covering salary items, tires, telephones, alarm maintenance, hose and building repairs.

Social welfare estimates went through unscathed, although costs are due to rise $15,960.

The committee took $500 out of public health estimates, then put $600 in bolster Victorian Order of Nurses operating grant.

Aldermen lopped $1,600 from salary estimates in general government, along with $6,[illegible] for office supplies and equipment.

AXE FALLS

The axe fell heaviest on miscellaneous expenses: $1,500 from conventions and training institutes; $1,000 from travelling expenses; $1,000 from sundry expenses; $1,500 from the uncollectable accounts provision, and $1,750 from other items such as parade floats, damage claims, publications account and condemned buildings demolition.

Items added covered $3,700 for accrued sick pay on retirement and $2,250 for special public receptions. A sundry account for expenses left to the mayor's discretion was cut by $750 at the mayor's suggestion.

Mayor Tours Island Areas In Fund Drive

Mayor R. B. Wilson and William Armstrong will be spreading the word up-island next week on the Three Universities Capital Fund Campaign.

Mr. Armstrong, who is Vancouver Island fund chairman, and Mayor Wilson will visit Nanaimo Monday, Port Alberni Tuesday and Campbell River Wednesday.

They will be meeting municipal and business officials in soliciting support of the fund.

University of Victoria president Dr. Macolm Taylor will accompany the group on part of the trip.

Teamster Group Hits $25,000 King Grant

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — About 500 Teamsters Union members here have signed a petition protesting a $25,000 donation by teamsters president James R. Hoffa to Dr. Martin Luther King.

The petition, which threatened to "take other steps" if Hoffa continues to support civil rights organizations, was circulated in teamsters local 612 Wednesday by two Birmingham truck drivers, Johnny Lynch, 30 and Harry Lowe, 30.

Lynch said the petitions will be mailed to other locals in Alabama and other states today.

DEATH ENDS ESCAPE BID

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (UPI) — Two Vietnamese deserters facing death at hands of a firing squad were shot and killed today when they fled for their lives.

The two men tried to run away from their captors in the middle of a ceremony marking the reopening of a bridge blown up in October by the Communist Viet Cong.

Their execution was to have been the high spot of the ceremony.

Charges Loom As Executive Dies In Fall

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Charges may be filed today against a one-time West Point cadet in connection with a fatal fall of a U.S. Steel Corp. executive from a downtown hotel.

The suspect, a young engineering graduate, said he was interviewed for a job by the victim and the two then embarked on a drinking bout which ended in a fight.

Jan Ronald Guy, 26, of Lubbock, Tex., was arrested by police early Wednesday shortly after the body of Alfred S. Price Jr., 38, of Monroeville, Pa., was found on a fourth floor roof of the Pittsburgh Hilton Hotel.

Price, general supervisor of personnel at U.S. Steel's Edgar Thomson works in nearby Braddock, Pa., hurtled five floors after crashing through a window on the ninth floor of the hotel.

'Car Pact to Wipe Out Hundreds of Jobs'

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MP Alfred D. Hales charged in the Commons Wednesday that the Canada-United States automobile agreement will wipe out hundreds of jobs in Canadian-owned auto parts plants.

"We have not got all the picture, but on the surface it would appear to be a complete sell-out to the U..S so far as the automotive and car parts industry is concerned," he said in a supply debate.

Mr. Hales, MP for Wellington South, spoke as President Johnson asked the U.S. Congress to give quick approval to a bill abolishing tariffs on cars assembled in Canada and any other country interested in signing a reciprocal agreement.

Canada abolished its tariffs on American cars and the new parts going into them by cabinet order Jan. 18, two days after President Johnson and Prime Minister Pearson signed the agreement at the Johnson ranch in Texas.

Mr. Hales, 55-year-old merchant in Guelph, Ont., said the pact will remove all the incentives encouraging the "big three" car manufacturers—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler—to buy auto parts from Canadian companies.

DOMINATION TO ARISE?

"The result can only be rapidly increased domination of Canadian industry by U.S. capital and the disappearance of Canadian-owned companies."

Mr. Hales opened debate on a bill giving the government authority to spend $700,000,000 to meet ordinary expenses in April and May.

The interim supply measure and supplementary spending estimates of $245,000,000 for the fiscal year ended Wednesday are the only two legislative items remaining.

Scheme to Ship Propane to Japan

VANCOUVER (CP)—Trans-Mountain Pipe Line Company is planning a $3,000,000 system for loading propane gas in refrigerated tankers for Japan, says E. C. Hurd, company president.

But realization of the proposal depends on findings of feasibility surveys by a company shipper in Alberta, he told the annual meeting Wednesday.

If volume warrants, he said, the company will eventually build a propane pipeline from Alberta to the West coast, following the existing crude oil line to Vancouver.

Mr. Hurd said the plans now being considered call for shipment of 200,000 tons of propane a year, by jumbo rail tank car, to the company's Westridge dock property here.

The gas would be liquified at minus 44 degrees Farenheit at Edson, Alta., and railroaded to the Westridge dock under pressure. At Westridge, the company would build facilities for refrigerating the gas at about minus 50 degrees Farenheit. The gas would be stored in insulated tanks and loaded aboard refrigerator ships, he said.

Construction of facilities at Westridge is scheduled to be completed by late next year.

TRANSPORT BY-PRODUCTS

Mr. Hurd also announced Trans-Mountain will transport between 2,000 and 4,000 barrels a day of Alberta condensate and perhaps some butane to the west coast.

Both condensate and butane will be the by-products of processing of natural gas at a plant to be built this summer five miles from the company's Edson pumping station.

Mr. Hurd reported Trans-Mountain deliveries of crude for the first quarter of 1965 averaged 227,600 barrels daily, a slight increase over the first quarter of 1964. He forecast deliveries for 1965 would be about the same as last year, which averaged about 218,000 barrels a day. The 1964 figure showed an increase of 14 per cent over 1964.

He forecast an increase in deliveries of Alberta crude to refineries in Washington state. However, he cautioned that the increase would not be at the spectacular pace of the last four or five years, but about equal to the growth rate of commerce and industry in the served area.

CANADIAN BREWERIES NAME CAMPBELL CHIEF

TORONTO (CP)—John G. Campbell, 49, was elected president this week of Canadian Breweries Ltd., succeeding Ian R. Dowie who resigned last week over a difference of opinion concerning the company's future operations.

E. P. Taylor, chairman of the board, in announcing the election at the company's annual meeting, expressed strong dissatisfaction with Canadian Breweries' earnings last year.

Union Demands 'Stagger' Steelmen

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The U.S. basic steel industry was described today as staggered by Steelworkers union demands that pay and benefits be increased by nearly $1 an hour during the next three years.

"This puts the billion-dollar bundle to shame," said one industry figure. He referred to 1959 when the union asked for 15 cents an hour in wages alone and settled after a 116 - day strike for a total package of 40 cents.

"Preposterous," was the reported reaction of R. Conrad Cooper, chief of the four-man industry team bargaining with the United Steelworkers of America (AFL-CIO).

Industry sources said the size of demands dims hope for settlement before May 1 when the union is free to strike.

These same sources said the package showed signs of the union's internal struggle for leadership which forced a two-month recess in negotiations.

Steelworkers already are among the highest paid industrial workers in the U.S. They average about $3.37 an hour in pay and another $1.04 in benefits.

Their demands, which become known Wednesday, include:

Double time for all overtime, pay increases in the first and third year ranging from 12.5 cents for the lowest paid workers to 28 cents for top grades, a shortened work week, an eighth paid holiday, improved pensions and expanded supplemental unemployment benefits.

POUND DROPS, GETS SUPPORT

LONDON (AP)—The pound sterling fell an eighth of a cent to $2.78 15-16 (U.S.) on the foreign exchange market today.

Buyers for the Bank of England stepped in to support the currency, as the bank usually does when the rate drops below $2.79. Britain is pledged to maintain the pound at not less than $2.78.

Granby Reports Net Loss

VANCOUVER (CP) — A net loss of $1,016,944 in 1964 was reported Wednesday by Granby Mining Company Ltd. in its annual report.

The report says the company's Jedway Iron Ore Ltd. operation in the Queen Charlotte Islands was responsible for the loss.

The 22,500 shares of Jedway owned by Granby "are considered valueless" says the report.

Granby's Phoenix Copper division had a profit of $864,939 before depreciation and depletion, says the report.

A stripping program so that iron ore could be recovered by open pit mining was started at Jedway last year, and is scheduled to be completed in April.

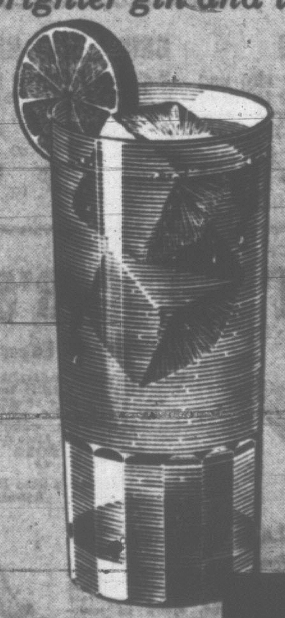

Granby's $12,000,000 Granisle Copper Ltd. operation at Copper Island, near Babine Lake, is scheduled to go into production early in 1966.

15,000 Railway Jobs Eliminated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The railway industry reported Wednesday night it has eliminated the jobs of more than 15,000 locomotive firemen in less than a year.

Another 6,000 of the remaining 22,000 firemen are expected to be eliminated from diesel engines in the second year since the 1963 ruling under the United States' first peacetime compulsory arbitration law.

Affects of New 'Miracle Drug' Amaze Doctors During Tests

By JOHN BARBOUR

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Researchers are looking into the mysteries of what may be one of the most fantastic and weird drugs of all time.

It passes through your skin, enhances the action of other drugs, kills pain, relieves inflammation, stops the growth of some bacteria, tranquillizes and acts as a diuretic among other things.

It's called DMSO—short for Dimethyl Sulfoxide — and the doctors who use it experimentally are almost as amazed at what it does as some of their experimental patients.

It is a potent solvent, has wide industrial uses and will dissolve one's clothes if they are made of synthetic fibres.

But as a drug it is not yet ready for prescription use by doctors and has only been used experimentally. But it is showing some very unusual results.

It may be years away from federal approval, however.

Dr. Stanley W. Jacob of the University of Oregon medical school said Wednesday toxicity tests have been and are being run in a number of animals, and so far the compound appears to have a lot of toxicity.

There were three reports on the drug and its uses to a science writer's seminar held by the American Cancer Society. Dr. Jacob, Dr. Edward E. Rosenbaum of the University of Oregon and Dr. Arthur L. Scherbel of the Cleveland Ohio Clinic made the reports.

● The drug gave pain relief to persons with superficial second-degree burns of the hand and forearm and for some third-degree burns.

● It has relieved pain and reduced swelling in twisted ankles.

● In some cases of acute bursitis — severe shoulder pain and inflammation—the drug has relieved pain and for most patients helps bring recovery in from one to seven days.

● It relieves pain in common arthritis—but does not cure it.

● In scleroderma, a progressive and deforming disease that begins with the skin and leads to internal organs, the drug has dramatically helped nine of 10 patients. It stopped pain and cleared up ulcers of the fingertips, relaxed the tight leathery skin and made hands mobile and strong again.

It seems to have a dissolving effect on collagen—the tough fibres of the body's connective tissue and could be useful in diseases involving abnormal collagen.

It has been tried on one animal cancer without effect, but doctors are looking into its use in a number of areas.

HARVEY BAILEY
. . . 32 years in prison

'Altered Way Of Thinking' Says Parolee

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP)—Harvey Bailey stepped out of the penitentiary Wednesday into a world that no longer shudders at his name.

The 32 years since he was put away have changed Bailey, one of the biggest names in the 1930s, a time of spectacular crimes.

"I've changed my way of thinking more toward the side of society," said Bailey, now 78.

He received a life sentence for conspiracy in the kidnapping of Charles F. Urschel, an oil millionaire in Oklahoma City July 22, 1933. He was sentenced to from 10 to 50 years for the $32,000 robbery of the Citizens National Bank at Fort Scott, Kan., June 17, 1932.

He was serving his robbery sentence in the Kansas Penitentiary at Lansing when, May 30, 1933, he and 10 other convicts escaped, taking along the warden and two guards. The warden later credited Bailey with preventing the others from killing the hostages.

Freed on parole Wednesday, Bailey will go to work in a Joplin shop as a cabinet maker—a trade he learned from his father and polished in prison.

Impairment Appeal Bid Dismissed

An appeal against a 14-day prison sentence for impaired driving was dismissed by Judge Montague Drake in Victoria County Court Wednesday afternoon.

The sentence was imposed in city magistrate's court on Dec. 30 by Magistrate William Ostler after he found George A. Riley guilty of impaired driving on Cook Street on the night of Sept. 26.

It was Riley's second offence.

In County Court, Dermod Owen-Flood argued that the conviction was contrary to the evidence and that it was wrong in law.

He said Magistrate Ostler had failed to give Riley the benefit of a reasonable doubt and that he erred in permitting police officers to give their own personal opinions on his condition.

Police witnesses testified that Riley's speech was slurred, he was unsteady on his feet and had difficulty telephoning his lawyer from the police station.

Kenneth Murphy appeared for the Crown.

Court Lifts Sentence On Assault

A young man described by the magistrate as a "smart alec" and a "tiresome nuisance" got off with a suspended sentence Wednesday for assaulting a police officer.

Magistrate William Ostler said any case of assault on a policeman is a serious matter but the offence involving Roy Di Castri, 627 Bay, was minimal.

The magistrate said Di Castri only shoved the officer and a pre-sentence report indicated he would not have done even that if he had not been drinking.

Magistrate Ostler criticized Di Castri for the way in which the accused spoke about his "influential friends" to the police who arrested him.

The magistrate said the increasing disrespect shown by some of the public towards police is a "dangerous trend." He said that often those who seem to dislike the police are the first to call for police help when they need it.

Di Castri was placed on probation for six months on a $250 bond.

MILLIE MAKES IT CLOSE

Puck nestles in net as sprawling Seattle goalie Jim McLeod fails to stop shot by Milan Marcetta of Victoria in Western Hockey League playoff Wednesday night at Seattle. Millie's goal trimmed Seattle lead to 3-2 in third period but Maple Leafs finally dropped 4-2 decision to Totems. Second game of best-of-seven semifinal is scheduled Friday in Seattle. Victoria Club Works Today After 4-2 Loss at Seattle

SPORTS
DOUG PEDEN
Sports Editor

By HAL MALONE

SEATTLE—"If you have the pride you will get the money." These were the last words Rudy Pilous spoke to Victoria Maple Leafs before they went on the ice here Wednesday.

Sixty minutes later, the Leafs had neither. But they did receive something. Hot words and dark looks in quantity from a coach who was so hot you could get third-degree burns merely by passing near him.

"You," said Mr. Pilous, using the plural, "stunk the joint out."

It is fairly true that the Leafs cast off a rich, unfragrant odor in submitting to Seattle Totems 4-2.

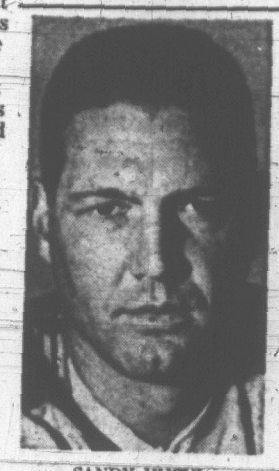

Friday night they will have an opportunity to cleanse themselves in the second game of the best-of-seven Western Hockey League semifinal.

The Leafs played as if money was no object. Maybe it isn't. But even the losing team in the final gets to pick up $551 per man; not exactly petty cash.

Truthfully, the Leafs only did a few things wrong before 3,102—the smallest coliseum social gathering in two years.

They didn't check. They didn't skate. They didn't pass.

They didn't cover up for each other. And they didn't shoot well. Otherwise everything was dandy.

SANDY HUCUL

Give Guyle Time . . . and Watch Out

On the positive side, they did give Guyle Fielder as much time as he needed to pass the puck. This is like jumping out of the plane and remembering you forgot to pack the parachute.

Fielder, who is called Tom because his name is Guyle, assisted on the first three Totem goals. He has a bad habit of doing this sort of thing. Poor fellow only scored 14 goals in 70 games but he managed to win the scoring title (yawn—for the eighth time) by contributing 78 assists.

Golden Boy wasted no time. At 2:25 he pulled three Leafs out of their long-johns and slipped a pass to Mo Mantha. At 3:10 he waited until Bob Barlow broke loose. Beautiful pass. Quick shot—2-0.

For the first 11 minutes the Leafs played, as Mr. Pilous later remarked, not unlike "the Vardello School for girls."

Gordon Redahl took the first decent drive at 11:42. In it went while Seattle's Gordon Sinclair was paying penance for hooking.

Neither team did any scoring in the second period. Neither team did anything, period. For six minutes the Leafs worked up a mild sweat but quickly gave it up before it could yield results.

Sinclair and Jim Powers each had Leaf's Al Millar on the hook but couldn't cash their chips.

They Shouldn't Be Tired, Says Rudy

Bob Sabourin gave Seattle a 3-1 cushion at 12:05 (assisted by guess who?) while both teams were short. The Victoria miscreant was Sandy Hucul, a four-time loser to referee Bill Friday.

Victoria climbed through the back window at 15:32 on a goal that was not exactly classic. Claude Labrosse's weak shot caromed off Danny Belisle's stick and came to Milan Marcetta, unchaperoned in front of the goal. Having nothing else to do with it, Marcetta popped it in.

Praying for a charge of the lightheaded brigade, Pilous summoned goalkeeper Millar to the bench with 1:16 to play.

To his horror, Seattle captured the puck and started away. Millar, plowing onward like an overburdened Percheron, reached the bench in time to hear the hoots of the pack as Gerry Leonard drove the clinching nail in Victoria's coffin.

Pilous was rendered unspeakable. But he quickly recovered to announce that the Leafs would practice today.

Practice the day after a game?

"Why not?" asked Mr. Pilous. "They shouldn't be tired. They didn't skate enough to be."

Oh . . .

Candle Burning For Millar

SEATTLE—Pranksters had a greeting for Victoria goalie Al Millar here Friday night when the Maple Leafs and Seattle Totems opened their Western Hockey League semifinal playoff.

In the final league game between the Totems and Leafs here last Friday, lighting troubles made visibility difficult during the closing stages. Millar upset his goal, retired to the dressing room and otherwise protested a decision to continue the game under dim lights.

When he came on the ice Wednesday night, Millar found a candle burning on top of his goal and a fan prepared to present him with a battery-powered lantern.

Millar, who had blanked the Totems for 20 minutes under troublesome lights, might have done better without brightness. He gave up two goals in just over three minutes.

TIME OUT

by JEFF KEATE

"You having trouble, Mr. Pilous?"

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

SEATTLE—The hotel lobby is the hockey players' Rialto, a little United Nations where opinions are dispensed often and at no charge.

A few of the players lounged in a semi-amorphic state amid the palm trees and trailing Wisteria. The only time you can tell they breathe is when a living fauna wiggles past. You would be amazed at their sudden interest in advanced biology.

Now Alphonse Millar had the floor. Mr. Millar is the resident goalkeeper for Victoria, entrusted with defying the enemy. Does his job well, too. Ask any player who has ventured too close to Millar's crease. He keeps them in stitches.

"Take this National Hockey League expansion business," Mr. Millar was saying. "You know where the six teams will come from?

"Baltimore and Pittsburgh will make it," he said, ticking off fingers. "St. Paul and St. Louis (two more fingers) and San Francisco and Los Angeles.

"You know why? Because that will give them balance. Two teams in the east, two in the midwest, two in the far west.

"Seattle and Portland? Nah. Nobody else out on the coast."

Millar's soliloquy will come as a shock to ambitious Western Hockey League operators in those cities.

Seattle May Only Support Winner

Portland is the showcase of the WHL in attendance. The natives do not receive NHL telecasts and there is no competing professional sport (apart from the girls with the fans at the Rivoli). Bud Polle, the chief resident at San Francisco, says the Portland franchise is like having a licence to print money.

Seattle has suffered through a torrid crush at the turnstiles. Attendance is up 100,000. The Totems drew 12,536 customers for a regular league contest against Portland and turned another 1,000 away. But there is reason to suspect that Seattleites play footsies only with a winner. After Portland snatched first place beyond recall, less than 8,000 paid up here for two nothing games.

Al Leader, the WHL president, was invited to comment on the exclusion of Portland and Seattle as NHL livestock centres.

"That's a new version," said Mr. Leader. "The last story I heard had Portland and Seattle serving as farm franchises for NHL clubs."

So you believe that Frisco and Los Angeles are the only western cities likely to graduate to the elite?

"I didn't say that," quoth Mr. Leader. "They are logical choices, but they have problems."

Mr. Leader is God-fearing and true-blue and clean living but he declined to define "problems."

Where Can They Find a Sponsor?

Discretion deems that it is better to shut up than shoot off at the lip when you have to earn your bread with your WHL brethren and simultaneously stay on a "hello there, old buddy" basis with NHL governors.

The problems of expansion, it says here, are multifold. Clarence Campbell, the lord high priest of the NHL, said licences would be granted to cities having, among other things stadiums seating a minimum of 13,500. Only two applicants, Baltimore and St. Louis, fit the picture. Another prime prerequisite is a national television contract.

Optimists maintain that a boob-box pact will follow the granting of new franchises as a werewolf pursues a fraulein. But don't bet on that, Clyde.

Both NBC and ABC—TV have expressed loud disinterest in trying to peddle hockey on a national basis.

Less than three months ago a ranking CBS official flatly said he would as lief try to sell Lyndon Johnson on making Goldwater ambassador to Viet Nam as locate a sponsor for network hockey. More lief in fact.

"What the hell do they care about hockey in Tallahassee, Florida, or Pine Bluff, Arkansas?" he asked. "Yet you must have affiliated stations in those areas or the deal, from the sponsor's viewpoint, is like yesterday's soup . . . too thin."

One Way to Duck Monopoly Charge

There is a gnawing suspicion that NHL fathers knew this all along.

If they did, their benevolence in appearing to give the NHL an image of an open shop is no more real than the girl who tosses off a wink . . . and walks around the corner into the arms of her six-six 230-pound boyfriend.

Why the sham? Well, the major baseball leagues have long twitched nervously under the cool glare of U.S. legislators who utter nasty expressions like "monopoly" and "violation of anti-trust laws."

The same laws perhaps apply to other areas of professional entertainment.

What better way for NHL governors to divert attention from their untidy nest than to blurt out "not us. Why, we welcome company. It's just a question of meeting our standards."

That's standards as in steak for breakfast, two yachts per family and no income tax.

Nothing to it, really.

LEAFS JUST TOUGH

PUNCH IMLACH

'Dirty' Label Angers Punch

MONTREAL (CP)—An irate coach Punch Imlach—still rankled by earlier charges that his club plays "dirty hockey"—Wednesday night predicted "a hard series, and make no mistake, we came to win."

Toronto Maple Leafs, defending champions, had just arrived in Montreal for their first engagement in the semi-final Stanley Cup playoffs with the Montreal Canadiens. The first game gets under way at 5 p.m. PST tonight.

The Toronto coach took issue with statements attributed to Chicago Black Hawks centre Stan Mikita. Tht National Hockey League scoring champion had gained widespread publicity with his statement that the Leafs were the dirtiest team in the NHL.

ADVERSE REACTION

"Since the press gave such publicity to Mikita's statements, what I want to know now is if the referees are going to listen to the crowds in the playoffs, because of the stigma thrown on us by this guy," Imlach said.

The Toronto coach said the ensuing notoriety has caused adverse crowd reaction in every rink the Leafs have played in since that time.

"Sure we play tough hockey, but don't tell me we're any worse than a couple of other outfits in this league," Imlach said.

PULFORD WILL PLAY

Questioned as to the status of Bob Pulford—sidelined with a groin injury for the Leafs' two final league games—Imlach confirmed the hard-working centre will be in tonight's starting lineup.

Imlach said, "There's nothing hampering any member of this club right now. Tuesday's practice (in the Detroit Olympia) was so lively the crowd actually applauded when it finished."

Reports from Detroit indicated the Leafs were knocking each other down with gay abandon Tuesday and Wednesday and were so edgy several minor scuffles erupted.

HABS HAVE REST

In contrast, the Canadiens had a day off Monday at their Laurentian hideout and held a light workout Tuesday at the forum. Wednesday they went through a 75-minute drill, concentrating on shooting and speed spurts. They returned immediately to the Laurentians until game-time tonight.

Both general manager Sam Pollock and coach, Blake expressed satisfaction with the condition and relaxed confidence of the Habs following Wednesday's ice time.

Reay Won't Say If Hull to Play

DETROIT (CP)—Bobby Hull, whose troublesome knees have caused Chicago Black Hawks a great deal of concern during the last month, still looms as the big question mark for tonight's Stanley Cup semifinal opener here.

Although Black Hawks' coach Bill Reay has refused to commit himself, the word following Wednesday's workout was that the blond left winger would be in the starting lineup against the National Hockey League champion Detroit Red Wings.

The clubs clash here tonight and Sunday and then switch to Chicago for games next Tuesday and Thursday.

HAD BEST WORKOUT

Hull, who finished the season with 39 goals after a fantastic first half, had his best workout Wednesday since returning to action earlier in the week.

His knee miseries began early in February when he appeared headed for a record goal-scoring season. The high-scoring winger had 38 goals to his credit in 48 games when he first injured his right knee as a result of a check from Toronto's boisterous defenceman Bob Baun.

He missed four games, but upon returning, injured his left knee in a collision with New York Rangers' Arnie Brown. March 21, he took a check from Detroit's Alex Delvecchio, skated only one more shift and then retired to the sidelines for the remainder of the regular 70-game schedule.

Aside from Hull, the visitors have no hospital cases to worry about. Defenceman Pierre Pilote has been slow recovering from a bruised side, but figures to play tonight.

While the Chicago team drilled at Detroit Olympia Wednesday, coach Sid Abel had his Red Wings relaxing at their Toledo hideaway. And Abel makes sure they relax.

"We have only a few rules," he said. "Like a midnight curfew. Like using common sense in eating and drinking. Like not inviting friends down here. All I want is for everyone to relax."

Abel agrees his club is a little different when it was pointed out that Chicago, Toronto and Montreal have been hustling through brisk workouts, while the Wings have been taking it easy.

"I figure that we are sharp. I know that we are in good condition. I think it's better to forget all about hard work until we hit the ice for the first one with the Hawks."

WIN AT PORTLAND

Canucks Grab Playoff Lead

PORTLAND—Goalie Dave Kelly learned Wednesday night that past performances often don't mean a thing in hockey playoffs.

Kelly, who had gone all season without suffering a defeat on home ice, was the victim of an unexpected Vancouver uprising as the Canucks whipped Portland Buckaroos 6-3 in the opening game of a best-of-seven Western Hockey League semifinal.

Canucks, who had soundly thumped the Bucks 6-0 in Vancouver but who had won only one of six league games in Portland during the regular season, got superb goaltending from Gilles Villemure as they handed Kelly his first loss in 12 games.

Villemure finished with 36 saves while Kelly blocked 22 shots for the league-winning Portlanders.

MALONEY STARS

Veteran Phil Maloney spurred Canucks to the win, assisting on three goals. His first assist came when Ron Matthews tied the game 1-1 at the 15:20 mark of the first period. Bruce Carmichael made it 2-1 for Vancouver at 6:17 of the second and the Canucks never looked back, entering the final 20 minutes with a 3-2 edge.

Jim Baird, Dave Duke, Dune McCallum and Billy McNeill were the other Vancouver scorers.

Art Jones pleased the hometown crowd of 6,383 by scoring two and assisting on the third Portland tally, which came from Dick Van Impe.

BLACK HAWKS OWNERS . . . . . . TELL HOCKEY FANS

'We're Not Really Greedy'

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago Black Hawks said today they decided on $2 to $4 a seat closed circuit viewing of their Stanley Cup hockey playoff games because no television sponsor or broadcasting company would pick up the tab for home TV.

Co-clubowners James Norris and Arthur Wirtz, under fire by Chicago fans since announcing the closed circuit policy, explained their position in a quarter-page paid advertisement, saying they are "not the greedy, avaricious owners as we have been labeled."

Sixteen regular season Black Hawk road games have been telecast to Chicago. The paid "Memo to Chicago Hockey Fans" in the Chicago Tribune said the club offered a package of all season road games and cup contests to any broadcaster "for a low figure."

"It is unfortunate for our fans and the Black Hawks that not one broadcasting station could or would clear the time for all of our away-from-home games, and we finally accepted a deal for 16 of our away - from - home games.

The "memo" did not appear in the Chicago Sun-Times, the city's other morning newspaper, which initiated stories on a ticket scalping scandal resulting in the arrest of two Chicago Stadium box office employees.

Thousands of fans demonstrated against the closed-circuit announcement last week when the Black Hawks closed their home campaign against the Detroit Red Wings.

A 20-minute shower of rubbish — including galoshes, large paper wads, hats, drinking cups and other debris was thrown onto the ice. Circulars protesting the policy were distributed by the thousands.

The highest stakes always ride on the finals, but this doesn't mean the windups have a monopoly on the best matches.

A case in point is Sunday's first round of match play in the Times-sponsored Vancouver Island Open golf championships.

All 32 championship qualifiers are still five weeks away from the lucrative loot, but Sunday's merry-go-round at Uplands throws out a pair of matches worthy of any final.

JOHN CARLOW
. . . meets old rival

The big games of the first round match Vaughn Trapp with Bill Wakeham while defending champion Laurie Carroll is scheduled to face former B.C. Amateur champion Laurie Kerr.

The Lauries are long-time rivals and their respective merits are well-known to district golf fans.

The ability of Wakeham, a two-time winner of The Daily Times Trophy, is also known. Trapp, who shared third low qualifying honors with Carroll last week at Gorge Vale, spurs most of the interest in this particular co-feature.

Son of Oak Bay professional Paul Trapp, Vaughn impressed last Sunday with his long driving and a par-matching 73 round. Wakeham qualified with a 79, two under the cutoff figure.

JINX TO BEAT

Co-medallists Ron MacLeod and Dave Fanthorpe also figure in a pair of interesting tussles. In addition to being confronted with worthy opponents, the co-medallists will have to shrug off a jinx. No medallist in the past eight years has survived the semifinals.

MacLeod, who tied Fanthorpe for qualifying-round honors with a two-under 71, meets John Carlow, the 54-year-old Gorge Vale president. It marks the third time in five years Carlow and MacLeod have been drawn against each other in the first round.

The last time, in 1962, Carlow came within an ace of scoring a major upset. He was one up on MacLeod as they moved to the 18th tee. MacLeod squared the match and went on to win on the 19th.

After that opening-round scare, MacLeod never looked back as he marched to his first Island Open triumph.

Fanthorpe could also run into grief Sunday. His rival is Norm Boden, the youthful Mt. Brenton professional who captured the Times title in 1961.

The handicap division will lead the way off the tee Sunday, starting at 8 a.m. Twosomes in the championship move off at 9:25.

Uplands members are reminded that the first tee will be closed for play until 10:45.

Youngsters Rush To Enter Classes

The rush of Victoria youth to get into school was overwhelming.

It took only five days to reach the maximum 100 applications for the Victoria District Golf Committee's junior clinic.

The clinic, part of the committee's junior development program, will be conducted by Greater Victoria professionals. It will be held at Golflands, Vanalman Road, April 20-22, starting at 1 p.m.

No more entries can be accepted.

Retriever Trials Draw 48 Entries

"IFTC Sinser's Bulldozer of Crevamoy . . ."

"FTC Moose of Lomac . . ."

"FTC Olrega's Siwash Rocko . . ."

Regardless of what you may think of the names, that's royalty, son!

Mothers may not wish handles like that on their offspring, but dog-breeders do. This, of course, is the weekend to go to the dogs.

The Vancouver Island Retriever Club's first licensed trials will be held Saturday and Sunday, starting about 8:30 each day. Saturday's trials will be held on the Fish and Game Club's grounds at Goldstream and then moves to Lost Lake (off Lohbrunner Road) on Sunday.

The entries are headed by Bulldozer, Moose and Siwash Rocko—rated among the best in B.C. Bulldozer, international field trial champion as well as national champ in 1958, is owned and handled by Evelyn Sinser of Vancouver.

DAYSMITH, TOO!

Fergus Upset By Junior Whiz

EDMONTON (CP) — Jamie Paulson, 16-year-old junior star from Calgary tabbed as a future Canadian badminton great, displayed his skills Wednesday as he reached the semifinal of the men's singles in the Canadian Closed badminton championships.

Given only an outside chance to overcome the court experience of Bert Fergus, veteran Vancouver star and fourth-seeded in the singles, Paulson took control of the quarter-final match with smashes to the baseline.

His hard-hitting game overpowered Fergus, 33-year-old high school principal, and by the midway mark of the second and deciding set had Fergus slowed to little more than a walk.

MEETS MACDONNELL

Paulson won 15-2, 15-7 and today moved against Wayne Macdonnell of Vancouver, the defending champion, who smashed his way through three opening-day matches in sharp style.

In the other half of the event Jim Carnwath of Woodstock, Ont., second-ranked, tangled with Bruce Rollick of Vancouver, 1965 British Columbia champion.

Carnwath, Jean Miller of Montreal and Mimi Nillson of Vancouver, all earned berths in three semi-finals.

JUNIOR ACES

Paulson and Sherri Boyse, 15, of Calgary, were expected to dominate the junior competition. Paulson is defending singles champion and Miss Boyse, who reached the closed singles before elimination in a tough, three-set match, is favored to succeed Alison Daysmith of Victoria as the junior singles queen.

It was against Miss Daysmith, now a senior, that Miss Boyse scored one of the biggest victorits of the day as she won a second-round match 11-9, 4-11, 12-9.

The only other major surprise of the opening day's activities came in the men's doubles quarter-final where the Montreal's Yves Pare and Harold Moody trimmed second-seeded Macdonnell and Fergus, 15-10, 15-10 in what Macdonnell later called "an inspired performance."

In the women's singles semi-final Mrs. Miller met Jean Folinsbee of Calgary while Mrs Nillson played Sharon Whittaker, a former Victorian who is seeded second.

Mrs. Miller and Bev Chittick of Windsor, Ont., moved in against Mrs. Nillson and Miss Daysmith in one-half of the women's doubles semi-final and Dorothy Tinline and Marjory Shedd, defending Toronto champions, met Pat Espley of Montreal and Miss Whittaker in the other.

Wednesday's results included:

Women's Singles — Alison Daysmith, Victoria, def. Judy Jackson, Saskatoon, 11-8, 11-1; Sherri Boyse, Calgary, def. Daysmith, 11-9, 4-11, 12-9.

Men's Doubles—Jim Irvine and Gerry McIlveen, Edmonton, def. Vic Conley, Vancouver, and Bill Chudyk, Victoria, 11-15, 18-13, 15-13; Geoff Harris and Greg Harris, Edmonton, def. Eric Hibberson and Bob Macmurchie, Victoria, 15-0, 15-10.

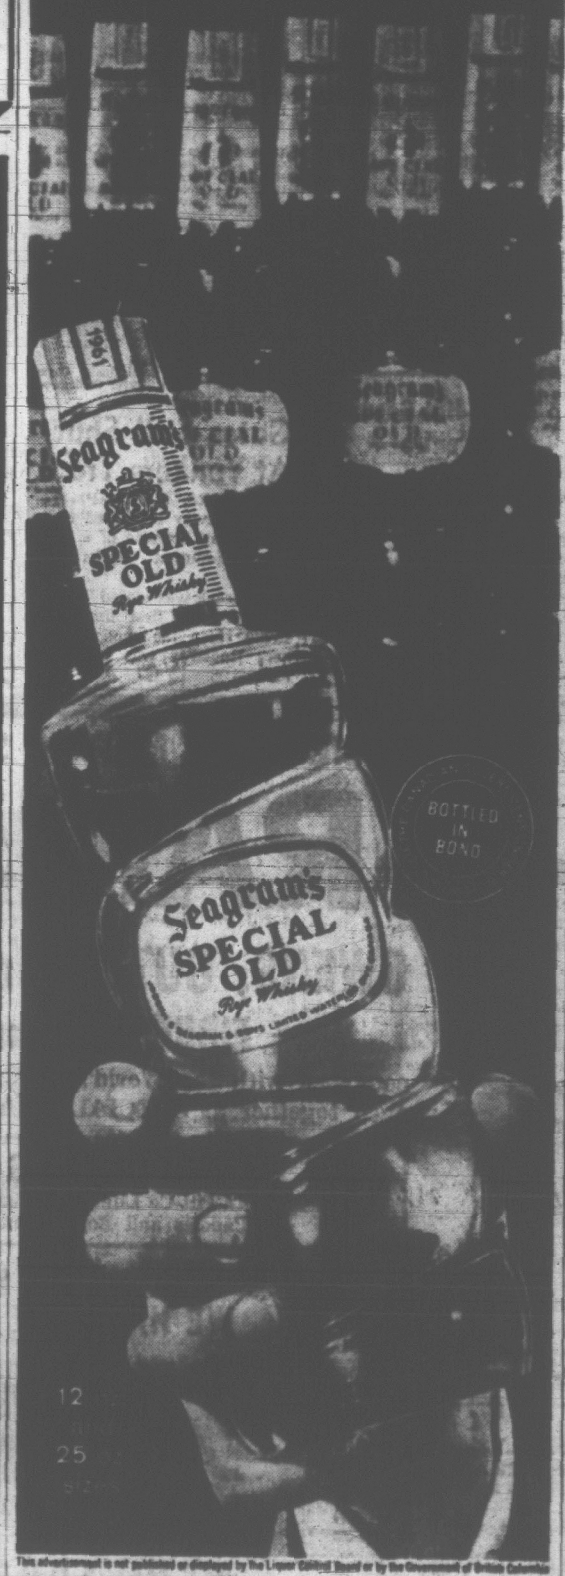

Women's Doubles—Mimi Nillson, Vancouver, and Daysmith, def. Ann Murray and Mary Ann Dubord, Winnipeg, 15-5, 15-7.

Mixed Doubles — Daysmith and Ed Paterson, Vancouver, def. Dorothy Tinline and T. H. Graham, Toronto, 15-11, 15-11; Pat Espley and Yves Pare, Montreal, def. Daysmith-Paterson, 15-13, 15-2, 15-9 (quarterfinals).

Junior Mixed Doubles — Irene Smith, White Rock, and Bill Chudyk, Victoria, def. Penny Vincent, Gravenhurst, Ont., and Jim Cunningham, Toronto, 13-8, 18-17.

POOLS-PLAYING HUGHES STRIKE IT RICH AGAIN

MENAI BRIDGE, Wales (AP) — The Hughes family hit the soccer pools jackpot Wednesday for the second time.

Eleven years ago, John Hughes and his wife won the equivalent of $210,000 on the pools, in which bettors try to pick games that will end in ties.

David Hughes, John's brother, learned Wednesday he had won $61,644. He staked five shillings (75 cents) on last Saturday's coupon and correctly forecast the draws.

Late Goal Puts Leeds In First FA Cup Final

LONDON (CP)—A last-minute goal by right-half Billy Bremner Wednesday night sent Leeds United into its first Football Association Cup final.

The Yorkshire side, newly promoted to the English league's first division and battling strongly for the league title, knocked off Manchester United 1-0 in the replay of their semi-final at Nottingham as Bremner produced the brilliant climax to nearly three hours of scoreless soccer between the two clubs.

That goal came when Norbert Stiles, the Manchester United left half, was called for a foul in the centre circle. John Giles, the Leeds right winger, took the indirect free kick and Bremner sneaked past the Manchester defence to back-head the ball into the net.

The defeat of Manchester United means a new champion will be crowned at Wembley Stadium May 1 since Liverpool, which will face Leeds, also has never won the cup.

Tradition was followed more closely in a Scottish Cup semi-final replay at Glasgow, where Celtic defeated Motherwell 3-0 to qualify for its sixth final in 12 years against Dunfermline. Dunfermline won its semi-final over Hibernian 2-0 Saturday.

SHORES BLANKED 1-0

Rough Play Mars Firefighters' Win

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver Firefighters increased their Pacific Coast Soccer League lead to three points over rival Vancouver Canadians by defeating North Shore Luckies, 1-0, in a rugged game played here in heavy rain and muddy conditions Wednesday night.

The Firemen got their goal from centre-forward Art Hughes at the 23-minute mark of the first half, then hung on grimly as North Shore put on pressure.

Three players were sent off the field by referee Dante Maeaglio as players fought grimly in the mud. Firefighters' fullback Gary Stevens was the first to go for talking back to the referee. Then Don Boyd of the Firemen and John Woods of North Shore were banished in the last minute of the game for throwing punches at each other.

The setback severely set back North Shore's hopes of making the four-team playoffs. The Shores, who play in Victoria on Saturday, now trail fifth-place New Westminster by five points and are six away from a playoff berth.

Teen-Age Addiction 'More' Than Report

VANCOUVER (CP) — A New York evangelist says Vancouver has a teen-age drug user problem 10 times worse than police say it is.

Rev. David Wilkerson, who has founded Teen Challenge narcotics treatment centres in New York, Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles and Toronto, said in an interview that police rely on convictions.

"There are at least 10 times as many as they think there are," he said.

"And the problem is growing because use of goof-balls and barbiturates is almost epidemic here among young people."

He was challenging statements made last October by Police Chief Ralph Booth who said there was little or no teen-age narcotics problem in the city.

"I'd like Chief Booth to go down to certain restaurants in this city," Mr. Wilkerson said.

"Drugs pass there as freely as I have seen it on the streets of Harlem. Of eight North American cities with drug addiction problems this is the easiest place to get a fix outside New York City."

WILL OPEN CENTRE

Mr. Wilkerson, an Evangelical Church pastor, plans to open a teen-age centre here in June with the aid of a Vancouver committee headed by Rev. Lester Pritchard.

Mr. Pritchard is handling a $50,000 fund-raising campaign for the centre.

He said in the treatment centres the users are offered the alternative of Christianity for drugs.

"And so far no one has come up with a better idea. Our places have a much higher incidence of success than most hospitals."

Twelfth Night Production Needs Extras

Five extras are required for the Seattle Repertory Theatre production of Shakespeare's Twelfth Night, which comes to the McPherson Playhouse, April 5, 6, and 7.

Three actresses, ranging in height from 5'4" to 5'9" and who can wear size 12 dresses, will be required as attendants to Olivia.

Three men, ranging in height from 5' 9" to 6' 1½" and in weight from 145 to 190 pounds are also required.

This is a lavishly set and richly costumed production which presents a unique opportunity for Victoria actors.

For further information contact McPherson Playhouse secretary, Mrs. L. McCullough, at 386-6400.

Creditor Apathy Aids Bankruptcy

Apathy on the part of creditors is making bankruptcy a lot easier and more attractive, it was suggested here Tuesday by Herbert L. Matthews, a Victoria lawyer.

Mr. Matthews was speaking in a panel discussion on bankruptcy at a consumer credit conference in the Empress Hotel.

"Too many creditors are inclined to say that an account is finished as soon as they receive a bankruptcy notice. Thousands of dollars in recoverable debts are lost this way every year."

Mr. Matthews said the bankruptcies in Canada could be cut by one-third if creditors bothered to follow up bankruptcy notices.

"The statement of the debtors accounts should be detailed because if the goods purchased are necessities they are not affected by bankruptcy and are reclaimable.

"If the creditors are not following these things through the legislation becomes a matter of routine."

Another panelist, lawyer John C. Cowan, told the group economic growth carries with it an increase in the number of bankruptcies.

"There has been much concern recently over the bankruptcy legislation because of a number of fraudulent schemes which have used it for their advantage.

"A great number of complaints could be cleared up by a greater awareness on the part of creditors," he said.

Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, president of the Victoria Bar Association, outlined the purposes of the Bankruptcy Act for the group.

The purposes of the act, he said, include:

- The orderly distribution of the property of a bankrupt person.
- To turn the property over to a trustee for distribution.
- To insure a proper investigation is made of the bankruptcy.

Hand Back Air Base

LONDON (AP)—The U.S. Air Force handed back the Brize Norton Air Base, in Oxfordshire, to the RAF Thursday. The Americans had it for 14 years. It was the third base returned because of the withdrawal of Strategic Air Command B-47 bombers from Britain. The last, at Upper Heyford, in Northamptonshire, will be returned soon.

Dr. Kildare Episode Brings Huge Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Last April, the Dr. Kildare series televised an episode called An Ungodly Act, depicting an unethical physician named Devlin who was also a lawyer and medical director of a small community hospital.

Wednesday, the show's producers, sponsors and stars were slapped with a $5,000,000 defamation suit.

It was filed by Dr. Edward D. Devlin, of Oceanside, who has a law degree and is medical director of the Oceanside Hospital in this small Southern California beachfront community.

Dr. Devlin contends that the television play could not have been coincidental, that it brought him scorn and ridicule and that his practise has decreased.

Named as co-defendants were Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Raymond Massey, Richard Chamberlain, the National Broadcasting Company, Time-Life Broadcasting Company and others involved in the show's production.

Heads Broadcasters

VANCOUVER (CP) — J. A. Pouliot of Quebec City Wednesday was named president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters at the annual meeting here.

KELOWNA BOUND, St. Matthias' Little Theatre Society crew was busy busy loading a truck Wednesday night for the trek to the Okanagan in its first bid for Dominion Drama Festival honors. Loading are, from left, Warren George, Bill Havard, Ken Bostock, Phyllis Gaskill, Jennifer Chaster, Jenefer Allen and Pam Truemar. The group will present the play, Wilde's The Importance of Being Ernest, Saturday night.

HUSH . . . HUSH, SWEET CHARLOTTE
Horror Unlimited
Capitol Theatre

Being perhaps rather cussed, I tend to grow cold and detached when it is evident that movie-makers are doing their darndest to scare the daylights out of us.

So it is with this hysterical, high-pitched adventure in terror. There are enough screams in the night, enough bodies tumbling out of closets, evil eyes peering through steamed windows, dismembered corpses and surprise assassinations to freeze a brass monkey.

Yet the whole thing add up to a farcical experiment in horror.

Perhaps that is what producer-director Robert Aldrich intended. He deals in suspense, mental anguish, murder and would-be murder and he is cleverly aided by four seasoned movie queens —Bette Davis, Olivia de Havilland, Agnes Moorehead and Mary Astor.

Joseph Biroc's black-and-white photography adds a glittering menace to the story atmosphere and there is an eerie musical score underlined with ghoulish sound effects.

★ ★

Olivia de Havilland is as aveldt and handsome as ever, after 30 years on the screen, and Bette Davis gives a performance worthy of Lady MacBeth in her role of the tortured Charlotte.

Back in 1927, her lover (Bruce Dern) is found brutally murdered in a darkened greenhouse on her father's southern estate. Her mind is affected and there is a suspicion that she killed him.

Years later Bette Davis returns to the old shadowy mansion and sends for her cousin, Olivia de Havilland.

Ostensibly, the cousin is a friend of the demented woman. But secretly she plots with her family doctor (Joseph Cotten) to drive her mad so that she will be committed to a mental hospital and they can share her fortune.

Distress Grant Deadline Set

B.C. strawberry growers and tree fruit farmers have until June 30 to apply for government loans under the Distress Areas Assistance Act.

A cabinet order set the deadline Tuesday. It also stated that a $5,000 ceiling would be set on all loans.

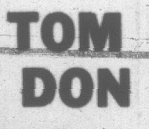

The loans, designed to help farmers hit by frost damage, carry 6 per cent interest and are repayable within five years.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, APRIL 1, 1965—PAGE 23

Arthur Mayse

The other day I heard a story about a Pearson Liberal who found himself seated at a banquet cheek-by-jowl with a Diefenbaker Tory.

"I was willing to be civil as long as he didn't start something," the Whig reported later. "But when the so-and-so asked for the salt, I couldn't help passing him the pepper!"

Well, as a newspaperman who likes to hear those presses rumble, my attitude toward radio is somewhat similar.

I have worked alongside some excellent radio hands, and there are programs I like. But even though I risk being clobbered with a steam iron, I can extend only qualified sympathy to a certain voice which has, for the moment at least, been muted if not stilled.

In the main, I think Pat Burns offered to his listeners, especially those busy at housewifery and cut off from family voices through their workday, an interesting diversion.

At his best, he was a keen interviewer, a bright and lively commentator, and a gifted master of ceremonies. I listened to many of his evening shows and enjoyed them.

Fairer than that, I cannot be. But to the several of you who have asked me to help crown the martyr with a lament from this corner, the answer must be no. Instead, I find my fingers reaching for the pepper.

★ ★ ★

At his worst—and I have heard him on those occasions, too—Pat Burns offered fare which only the ignorant and the bigoted could stomach.

On those occasions, the performance to which he lent his name and gifts could be matched only at a party one stage before the cops are called.

There was bullying of the weak, befogged and besotted.

There was such name-calling as even our most unpruned legislator wouldn't get away with.

There were vast, sweeping, fatheaded generalities. All lawyers crooked . . . all doctors grasping . . . all preachers phony . . . and, of course, that oft-repeated bromide, all newspapers unreliable.

None of this made good hearing, and because of it, regretfully, I can't quarrel with the decision of Mr. Burns' employers not to renew his contract.

I hope, however (and here I risk being felled with a newsroom typewriter) that he is able to make a comeback when he has mended the ways that were doing his communications medium a grave disservice.

This suggestion, I offer along with the pepper: Let the cooled hotliner quit his jumping up and down, and listen quietly for a spell while his radio colleague Barry Clark demonstrates how an audience-participation program should be handled.

★ ★ ★

Few things get my dander up quicker than to see some speaker or publication trample outrageously on truth and decency, then scurry to shelter behind freedom of speech or freedom of the press.

Both are stained with the blood of martyrs—real martyrs—and came too hard to be invoked frivolously.

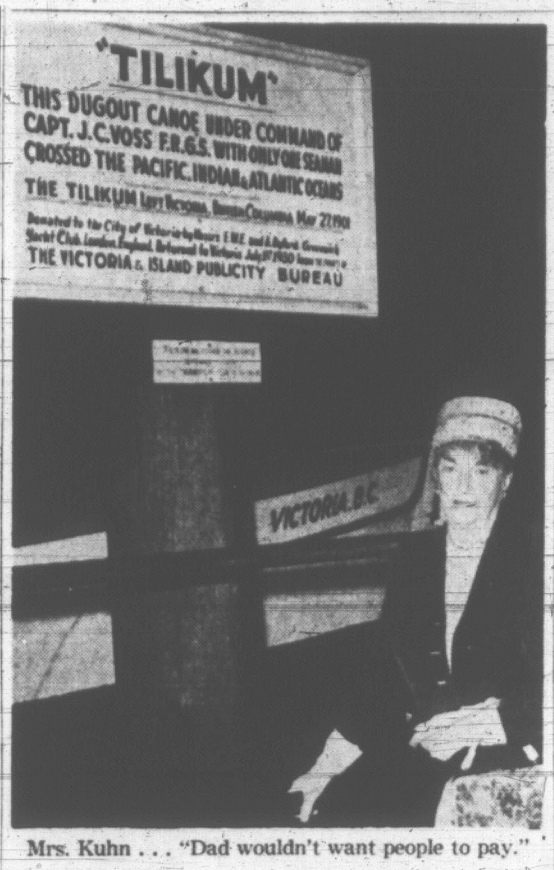

Mr. Burns, who is to write for a Vancouver newspaper, would do himself and the senior communications partner a service by keeping this in mind. Cold type isn't hot air, and press freedom is not to be confused with licence.

Newsmen are jealous of that freedom, and on all good papers, gladly accept the responsibilities that go with it. One of these is constant internal policing.

Even though Mr. Burns has insisted otherwise, we have no cause to be ashamed of the job we perform.

In this matter of internal policing, I am glad to note that the station which has created a teapot tempest by choosing not to renew, has pulled up its socks.

I was listening a while ago; and it struck me that a show which had become pretty sick has done a commendable job of mending its health.

Mrs. Kuhn . . . "Dad wouldn't want people to pay."

'Go After Grabbers' Of Famed Vessel; Protests Pouring In

By PETE LOUDON

The Keep-Tillikum-Free campaign billowed ahead today in a strong breeze of public support.

And one of the loudest objections to the plan to display the famed vessel for a fee, came from the daughter of the man who sailed her across three oceans—Mrs. B. F. Kuhn of Portland, Oregon.

Mrs. Kuhn told The Times by telephone that her father, the late John Voss would have objected to the transfer of his boat from Thunderbird Park to the new Maritime Musuem.

"I know my Dad wouldn't have approved. He wouldn't want people to have to pay," said Mrs. Kuhn.

She said she is going to write to Victoria City Council protesting the move and she will join city tour bus operator G. R. "Rebel" Mowat in his suggestion that Tilikum be shown free of charge in the proposed provincial centennial museum, when it is built, free of charge.

"That would be wonderful."

AWFUL SORRY

She said she was "awful sorry" to hear about the transfer of the vessel. She said she hopes to visit Victoria this summer and to meet Mr. Mowat.

Meanwhile Mr. Mowat said he received 100 letters from Victorians Wednesday and has added about 500 names to the petition he will send to city council.

"Go after the grabbers," "Keep up the good work" the letter writers told him. He said much of his mail came from "older people in good areas."

STORE OFFERS SPACE

Mr. Mowat said Metropolitan Stores has offered him the use of their doorway for collection of signatures.

Noted sportsman Dave Sadler, retired after 25 years in the navy, has volunteered to take names there Saturday.

Henry Hunt, well-known Indian carver, has offered to collect signatures from local Indians. The dugout was made by local tribes 105 years ago.

Mr. Mowat said G. M. Horton of Eatons offered use of the store's main doorway for collection of signatures and told him, "I believe you are doing a real service."

SAME OFFER

Woodward's manager Courtney Haddock made the same offer and said, "It's good that somebody is making a fight about this."

Wilson and Lenfesty Ltd. offered to take up a petition for Mr. Mowat also.

"The business people are supporting me. I've got some of the finest signatures you would want to see," said Mr. Mowat.

The dugout Tilikum has been openly displayed at two locations in Victoria, latterly at Thunderbird Park, for 35 years.

PAY ADMISSION

Suddenly this month it was moved to the Maritime Museum which now is moving into the old courthouse, where it will be necessary to pay admission to see it.

Mr. Mowat says the city owns the vessel, and the donors, a London yacht club, said in 1930 that it must never be other than a free exhibit. Mr. Mowat objected to Tilikum's removal by provincial authorities without recourse to the city.

He says if it must be preserved under cover it should be kept in a provincial museum where there is no door charge.

BCHIS Paid Ambulance Next Year?

It will be at least another year before the government takes over ambulance services for Vancouver and Victoria.

Health Minister Eric Martin told a delegation from Vancouver, Burnaby and New Westminster Wednesday that he would place their request, that ambulance services be brought under the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service, before the cabinet.

But he warned that the proposal, if approved, would require changes in provincial legislation which could not be affected until the next sitting of the legislature.

SIMILAR PLEA

For several years Victoria has made a similar plea to the government.

Mayor William Rathie, Vancouver, Mayor Stuart Gifford, New Westminster, and Reeve Alan Emmott, Burnaby, made up the delegation.

Mayor Rathie pointed out to the minister that the three municipalities subsidize ambulance services to the tune of $160,000 a year, yet ambulance trips still cost individuals $30 a call.

Saanich to Add 10 Policemen

Saanich Police Commission Wednesday night approved hiring of 10 additional constables and three dispatchers.

The new recruits will strengthen the force from 35 to 45 men.

Three have already been hired and one officer began work today. The other two will don uniforms April 15 and 30.

Remainder of the men will be hired throughout the year, police chief Bert Pearson said today.

EDUCATOR WANTS MORE INCENTIVES FOR STUDENTS

'Too Much Conformity' In Exams

By HUMPHRY DAVY

British Columbia's educational system is as good as any in Canada, in some cases better, but it would benefit by taking a few tips from European countries.

One of it's weaknesses is a tendency towards conformity in teaching. Another—it's less dramatically controlled than in Britain and some European countries.

These views come from scholarly Lloyd Brereton, 305 Windermere place, who has just completed a world-wide study on high school education systems and their influence on educational methods.

The study is the first of its kind to be made since 1930 when the Rockefeller Institute conducted a survey on the subject.

150 EXAMINERS

The educationist, a science-graduate from Cambridge University, was in charge of school examinations conducted by the university. He and his staff of 150 examiners were responsible for examining nearly 200,000 students from British Africa, Sudan, British West Indies, Malaysia, India and Pakistan on several school subjects.

Upon his retirement in 1961, he was granted a fellowship by the University of London to assist him in making a study of school examinations systems in other countries.

His findings are soon to be published in book form.

While Mr. Brereton is not prepared to say what country has the best educational system, he feels Canada should take a look at what's going on in Europe.

"The big problem in education is incentives—how to get our young people to apply themselves to education," he said.

EXAMS KEY

He has come to the conclusion that the key to the problem is in the school examination system.

"This is not the accepted view in Canada," he said. "Many people think examinations are a necessary evil. But I have found they have a profound effect on the whole education system — are the answers to incentives."

He said B.C. could improve its educational system by having as well as written, compulsory oral examinations.

"I'm certain if oral French examinations were conducted in schools, the standard of French would improve by leaps and bounds in Canada," he stated.

This has proved to be the case in Britain where both written and oral examinations are compulsory, he pointed out.

ORAL SECTION

He said the Scandinavian countries, Germany, France go one step further. They hold oral, as well as written examinations in social studies, literature and science.

"The results are that students in these countries can express themselves well in writing and in speech.

Mr. Brereton is dead against examining students by means of objective questions which is conducted on some subjects in Canada. Under this system, students merely fill in the right answers to a question.

His conclusions are that this system of testing influences the work throughout the school.

"Students become accustomed with only factual knowledge of a kind that can be tested by short questions," he stated. "It doesn't encourage them to organize their thoughts and to express themselves in prose.

"The only way to learn to write good English is to write and write," he added.

On this point, he said, he has the backing of many B.C. school teachers and the Chant report on education.

Mr. Brereton also took issue with the practice of tying teachers and high school students to a textbook on a certain subject.

RESEARCH PROJECTS

"This leads to a conformity of thought," he said. "All that a student has to do in order to do well in his examinations is to assimulate all the information in his textbook. He should be encouraged instead to look farther afield to undertake research projects."

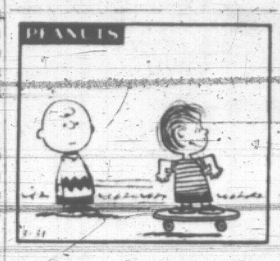

One of the things which surprised the educationist in his study was to find that examinations in Britain and certain western European countries were more democratically controlled than in Canada.

"Teachers in B.C. have not sufficient voice in deciding what type of examinations are to be given," he said.

'Mini' Chaos Feared In Wage Negotiations

Aldermen Continue Paring '65 Budget

Joint Services in Greater Victoria could create chaos in wage negotiations for public servants, city comptroller James Bramley warned city aldermen considering estimates today.

He said without a single overriding authority to control the functions included in a regional district, which the province now has authority to declare, each body could conduct its wage negotiations independently.

The matter arose when the committee came to Public Library estimates of $353,000, an increase of $36,000 over 1964—a "healthy increase," Mayor R. B. Wilson observed.

"I have been increasingly concerned about boards of this nature and the fact that they are doing things in isolation," city manager Dennis Young said.

"In the last few years we have been trying to co-ordinate agreements in the Greater Victoria area and we have been overlooking things right under our nose," the manager said.

He pointed to the library board's recent agreement with janitors, resulting in the highest janitor wage rate in Greater Victoria.

Mr. Bramley said it had been customary until the last few years to cut major items from the library budget. But recently the proposed budgets have gone through unaltered.

BRANCHES LEFT OUT

The budget brought to committee makes no provision for branch libraries, which are proposed soon.

Mr. Bramley said the situation illustrates the danger in joint services administration, which prompted the mayor to observe that joint services board members will be faced with sitting nearly constantly to cope with proplems after a half dozen functions are included.

"Within five years it will become obvious to everyone that amalgamation will be necessary," Mr. Young said.

The committee trimmed $9,000 from sundry estimates, covering juvenile and family courts, juvenile detention home, police court, debt charges and other items totalling $2,272,000. This brings total debt reduction to $26,170.

When sessions began Wednesday, aldermen faced an $865,000 increase in spending, worth 7.4 mills.

More than half of it will have to be eliminated, the mayor said. "It looks as though we are going to have to get half a million out of this total somehow."

Fire In Flue Causes $5,000 Damage to Hotel

Fire in a kitchen exhaust flue caused $5,000 damage at the Strathcona Hotel Wednesday afternoon.

Crews from four fire rigs had the flash-fire under control 45 minutes after the call was received at 2:53 p.m. but remained on duty for a further five hours in case of further outbreaks.

The fire is believed to have started when grease deposits from food were ignited by a spark from a stove below the vent.

The flue, specially designed with a series of traps to trap grease particles, was rendered useless by the blaze.

Work crews are expected to have a new flue installed by tonight and the kitchen back in operation late this evening or early Friday.

The only damage to the hotel was caused when firemen were forced to hack through the wall of a first-storey suite to get at the seat of the blaze.

It was not necessary to evacuate guests.

Youth Admits Thefts Totalling Nearly $700

A 17-year-old youth pleaded guilty in city court today to three break-ins involving theft of cigarettes and cash totalling nearly $700.

Phillip R. Issacson, 154 St. Lawrence, was remanded to April 9 for pre-sentence report and sentence.

City police juvenile officer Joseph Barlow testified Issacson stole 25 cartons of cigarettes valued at $85 from Smith's grocery store, 159 Menzies St., March 7.

Shortly before midnight he forced a side door of premises next door to gain entry, court was told.

TOOK BICYCLE

He then took a bicycle to make his gateaway, cached the merchandise in a lumber pile at Ogden Point and threw the bicycle into the water.

He sold the cigarettes to friends and none have been recovered.

March 18 he stole $42 in cash and $83 in cigarettes from the Shopping Basket Ltd., 1274 May St. He entered the rear of the store by forcing a window with a pair of bolt cutters.

He again hid the loot at Ogden Point but it was gone when he went back the next day, the officer testified.

He and a companion raided a third grocer March 21, stealing 151 cartons of cigarettes valued at $486 from Carlyle's store, 148 Superior St.

They broke a rear window in an adjacent shop to gain entry through a side door.

In court today Issacson denied strewing icing sugar and ink about the premises.

The cigarettes were recovered by police in a vacant store next to his residence.

Topics of the Day

Thieves early this morning got little for their trouble when they broke into a building at Mattick's Farm, 5325 Cadboro Bay Road.

A popcorn machine was smashed open and the coin box, containing about $3 in nickles and dimes, was stolen.

Entry was gained by smashing the window of a door at the rear of the building.

Crowds attending the Spring Flower Festival will be boosted by 125 pilots and passengers of small aircraft planning a fly-in April 17.

Mike Sealey, manager of the Victoria Flying Club, said Wednesday that he is expecting at least 50 aircraft, all carrying several passengers, to participate.

Last year more than 40 aircraft joined the fly-in coming from many parts of B.C., Washington and Oregon.

A driver was fined $100 in city police court today for failure to remain at an accident where he caused $30 damage.

Clarence E. Bryan, 3228 Wicklow, collision March 17 at Bay and Government St., fined $40.

Stabbing Sentence Suspended

Magistrate William Ostler today in city court gave a two-year suspended sentence to a city woman charged with assaulting her husband with intent to wound him.

Mrs. Martha Davis, 201 Ontario Street, pleaded guilty to the charge March 24.

The magistrate asked her husband, Lewis, 46, if he was willing to take her back.

He replied emphatically he was.

"Your husband is very generous in this matter and it was not all his fault as you seem to think," he told the woman.

"It would have been a tragic paradox if you had killed him because I believe you both love each other.

"I believe you are a good woman, mother and housekeeper."

He suggested the couple "get closer together" and "talk things out more often."

Mrs. Davis was charged March 23 with stabbing her husband between the shoulder blades with a short, bone-handled hunting knife.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you please tell me how to cure a rabbit pelt? K.S.

A. There are several methods of doing this and here is one of them:

Take the fresh pelt and remove two layers of membrane. Cover the skin side of the pelt with salt and roll it up for 48 hours.

Next, wash the salt off in cold, soapy water and rinse well. Then roll the pelt up in a towel and leave it for several hours.

Next, lay the pelt on a flat surface and rub alum into it. Then sprinkle with alum and leave to dry. Wash out the alum and rub pelt until it is soft.

Further information can be obtained from the livestock branch of the provincial government's agriculture department.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

THERE'S MORE TO SPRING CLEANING than meets the eye, especially when home happens to be the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory. Just the tiniest slip with this six-foot mirror would mean more than seven years bad luck—it would mean a $20,000 bill. The mirror was put back into place beneath the 72-inch telescope Wednesday after receiving a new coat of aluminum. Giving a last shine are technician Horace Draper and instrument maker James White. The public will get the benefit of the regular two-year overhaul when the observatory throws open its doors to them 8 to 10 p.m. every Saturday through to Nov. 30. Starting this Saturday they will get a chance to take a blown-up peek at the far-distant universe. Planets and stars will be magnified 250 times.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Advent of Sunshine Means Sunglasses Too

By Penny Saver

Summer is just around the corner. (It's a slightly sweeping statement seeing as spring is newly arrived, but, really, summer is not too far away.) So, Penny is rummaging through her closets, unpacking all of her bathing and sun suits and all the paraphernalia generally connected with sunshine, beaches and sunburns.

One thing I am lacking, however, is a pair of sunglasses. I always, at the end of each summer, pack the glasses away and forget where they are, or lose them the last day I'm at the beach. So, I decided to have a look about town to see if I could remedy the situation.

In one store, I discovered the greatest thing in glasses since Leeuwenhoek ground the first microscope. These are adjustable sunglasses adaptable to every nuance of sunlight and shade.

Let me tell you about the example that I saw. I held a piece of paper over one-half of one of the lens and held it in the sunlight for less than a minute. When I took the paper away, the uncovered part was several tones darker than the other half. These are perfect for motorists who do much travelling.

These glasses, selling at $4.95, are available in styles for both men and women. Also, for added protection, they come in a handy travelling case of plastic so the lenses cannot become scratched or marked.

I browsed about the store for awhile and discovered a four-way beauty treatment, ideal for teen-agers, especially. Although it has nothing to do with sunglasses, it does have something to do with the season. Any season.

You always want to look your best and this beauty treatment is perfect for removing those ugly blemishes and spots which mar your appearance.

The treatment consists of four bottles of "miracles" cleansing cream, pore cleanser and refiner, shampoo and medicated cream. The shampoo is wonderful because the oiliness of the hair is one reason why pimples and spots appear on the forehead. This also helps to clear up dandruff.

This treatment is produced by one of the leading drug companies and is selling for $2.98. Teen-agers, especially, take note.

Don't forget, Penny's number ... 382-3131.

Mrs. Harold Menzies, second from right, regent of the Florence Nightingale Chapter, IODE, will receive guests at the group's bridge tea, Friday, from 1:30 to 4 p.m. in the nurses' residence of the Royal Jubilee Hospital. Also in the picture are Mrs. James R. Stewart, who is co-convener for bridge with Mrs. G. C. Baker, and students, Miss Helen Taylor, left, and Miss Pamela Cheston, who will be among those acting as serviteurs. Bridge reservations may be made by phoning Mrs. Stewart at 477-2993 or Mrs. Baker at 386-7145.

GIFT FOR QUEEN

OTTAWA (CP)—A mink jacket, a memento for the Queen of her Canadian visit last October, has arrived safely at Buckingham Palace.

Paul Tailleter, Montreal press photographer who was active in arranging the gift, issued in Ottawa Tuesday a copy of a letter he received from Martin Chateris, a member of the Buckingham Palace staff.

The letter said the jacket "is exactly what the Queen wanted and she is quite delighted with it."

The Queen was offered the gift during a press reception at Quebec City as a gift from news reporters and photographers covering the royal tour. Later, it was disclosed that the jacket was to be donated by the Canadian Mink Breeders Association on condition that the money collected from the press group be turned over to charity.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. E. Davie Fulton will be the guest speaker on Friday when the Victoria Progressive Conservative Women's Association hosts the British Columbia Association at a tea in the Empress Hotel. The affair will be held in the small dining room following the quarterly meeting at 2 p.m. in the Prince Albert Room.

GIRL GUIDES

Marigold-Glanford — St. Christopher's Church Hall, Carey Road, will be the scene of a spring tea Saturday afternoon given by the Marigold-Glanford Local Association of Brownies and Guides. The affair will be from 2 to 4:30 p.m. and refreshments will be served. A cake contest is planned for all Guides and Brownies.

It's Big Game for This Grandmother

CALGARY (CP)—Big game hunters in the Rockies west of Calgary frequently are shaken by first sight of their guide—a diminutive, blonde grandmother.

"Their confidence is restored when they get their trophies, sometimes in much shorter time than they thought probable," Myrtle Raivio says.

Mrs. Raivio, just over five feet tall, is one of Canada's few women outfitters and guides.

"I wouldn't trade my life for any other I've ever heard of," says the mother of two sons and grandmother to a small girl.

"Sure its hard work and the weather's been miserable. But I just love it all."

Known as Shorty, Mrs. Raivio has won several trophies for game including the Rocky Mountain House Trophy for five years of registering the largest animals taken in the region.

"I won it with goat, sheep and moose," she says.

Mrs. Raivio learned the business from her father, Clarence Sands.

"Then I married a man who hated anything like outfitting and guiding. So I quit, but managed to work at least one trip a year with my father."

Following her husband's death in 1948, she started in business with 20 head of pack and saddle horses. Sons Clarence and Kenneth, are both guides and outfitters and their wives join the business as cooks.

Mrs. Raivio skins and salts trophy hides and heads bagged by the hunters. In the off-season, she may work as a cook for seismic crews, visit clients and their families or "take out a little timber" from their ranch 85 miles west of Red Deer.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice:

On a trip to Nova Scotia, my son purchased an expensive yard of wool plaid.

However, I simply can't straighten it out no matter how much I stretch and pull. What can I do to salvage it?

Mrs. J.E.

Dear Mrs. J.E.:

I would suggest treating this woollen fabric the same is if you were shrinking it. Lay a dampened sheet over the wool, roll the two together, cover with a plastic sheet and allow to stay rolled up overnight.

The next morning, the wool will be slightly damp all the way through and you can lay it on the carpet and pat it in shape beautifully. The carpet will keep it from slipping and the slight amount of moisture will not hurt the carpet. It should completely dry in a matter of hours and be ready to cut and sew.

TODAY'S RECIPE

SCOTCH EGGS

(deep fat fry or pan fry)

Six peeled hard-cooked eggs, ¼ cup flour (approx.), 1 lb. sausage meat, 1 egg beaten with 1 tablespoon water, fine dry bread crumbs or quick-cooking rolled oats.

Roll the eggs in flour. With flour coated hands, mould sausage meat around each egg to completely cover. Dip covered eggs in beaten raw egg and roll in the crumbs or rolled oats.

Fry in deep fat at 350 deg. F until sausage is cooked and surface is browned.

May be served hot or cold. Preferably cold with salad.

If using small-sized eggs, about 1½ lbs. of sausage should be enough for 12 eggs.

Queen Honors Woman Chemist

LONDON (AP) — Composer Benjamin Britten and biochemist Dr. Dorothy Hodgkin, a 1964 Nobel Prize winner, have been appointed members of the select Order of Merit.

Only one other woman has ever received the Order of Merit—Florence Nightingale in 1907.

The honor is conferred personally by the Queen and is limited to 24 members plus honorary foreign members. The honorary members now are former president Eisenhower, Dr. Albert Schweitzer and India's President Radhakrishnan.

The appointments replace two members who died this year, Sir Winston Churchill and poet T. S. Eliot.

On Salt Spring

One hundred members and their friends gathered at the Salt Spring Island Golf and Country Club on Saturday for a buffet dinner and evening of informal entertainment. Following dinner, Mr. Ed Richardson and Mr. Doug Cavaye gave a humorous skit while Mr. Lance Kennedy and Mr. Russ Hewer, Vancouver, provided banjo music for singing and dancing. Mrs. B. Earl Hardie was in charge of arrangements.

Four Victorians Get Together At Recent Reunion in Jamaica

Four well-known Victoria personalities had a reunion in Kingston, Jamaica, recently.

They were Frank Conibear, famed writer of animal stories, and Mrs. Conibear, and Rev. F. E. H. James, former minister of Metropolitan United Church, and Mrs. James.

Married here last December, Mr. and Mrs. Conibear visited Kingston during a three-month honeymoon aboard the Swedish freighter California.

Dr. James, who retired from Metropolitan church last July, went to Jamaica last January to conduct a two-year mission sponsored by the United Church and the English Methodist Union.

"We spent three days at Kingston and had a most enjoyable time with Dr. and Mrs. James," said Mrs. Conibear, formerly Queen Mae Lett of Gordon Head.

"They are full of enthusiasm for their new work, and Dr. James is planning a comprehensive tour of the island of Jamaica.

"He told us he had grown so used to working with the native peoples of Jamaica he no longer thought of them as colored."

En route to Jamaica, Mr. and Mrs. Conibear spent Christmas Day in San Francisco and New Year's Day in Los Angeles.

Mr. Conibear's book, The Wise One—the story of a black beaver in northern British Columbia—has been purchased by Walt Disney and will be produced as a full-length feature film late this year or early in 1966.

The book has been published in England, Canada, United States and Germany and still enjoys a good sale.

Mr. Conibear is also the inventor of a humane trap for fur-bearing animals, now used widely in Canada, the United States and European countries.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Pros and Cons!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have read your column for years, and have been tempted many times to write but, today, I can no longer restrain myself.

The letter "For Prayer" sends me into action. The writer (along with many others) has obviously misinterpreted the Supreme Court's ruling to ban prayers in the public schools.

The ruling does not forbid prayer in the public schools. It merely places a ban on prayers composed, prescribed or recommended by any agency, teacher or employee of the government. In other words, it is an effort to keep the state and church separated. Since, in our public schools, we have children whose religious beliefs differ, the Supreme Court ruled that in fairness to all, no one prayer should be the prescribed prayer for use in our public schools.

Sincerely,

MRS. J.A.C.

DEAR ABBY: "For Prayer" said he wished that we would go back to the "old way" and return prayers to our public schools. I hope you'll give equal voice to those of us who are also "For Prayer"—but not in our public schools.

I say if children pray at home and in church they don't need to pray in school. And if they don't pray at home or in church, why should they be expected to pray in school? When "For Prayer" speaks of the "old way," I wonder how "old" he means. I am 33 and I have never prayed in school. It is as out of place to pray in public school as it is to do arithmetic in church. So how old is "old-timer"—or did I go to an unusual school?

A SGT., FT. BENNING, GA.

DEAR SGT.: I went to grammar school in Sioux City, Iowa, and I recall having been led in The Lord's Prayer by Miss Nettie Olson, my third grade teacher at Hunt School in 1927. It was obviously Miss Olson's idea because when I passed into the fourth grade, that teacher did not lead the class in prayer. And I can't recall ever having prayed in school with that one exception.

DEAR ABBY: "FOR PRAYER" is sadly misinformed. No law on earth can prevent anyone from praying wherever he wishes. You see, a prayer can be silent communication with the Lord for the purpose of making a request, offering thanks, expressing adoration or even to make a confession. It need not be said aloud in a group led by a school teacher—nor should it be.

Yours very truly,

PRAYS ALONE

DEAR ABBY: I, for one, was glad to see the Supreme Court take prayers out of the public schools. I am now 50 years old, but I still vividly recall the discomfort endured by some of the Jewish children when the teacher who had charge of our school lunchroom made all the students bow their heads and thank their Lord, Jesus Christ, for the food they were about to eat.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Not many middle-aged women are the windblown type. Teenagers may look enchanting with their tresses flowing in the wind, but older women may just look frowsy. On the other hand, a hair style which is too severe can add years to a woman's appearance. After early youth it is best to adopt styles which are soft, but simple and well-groomed.

The kind of hair you have makes such a difference in the things you can do with it. Extremely fine hair is the most difficult of all. A permanent is essential. This should be of a soft mild type, just enough to add body to the hair. The new idea of leaving the ends uncurled will save many a head from fuzziness. The hair sprays are also a boon for this type hair.

If your hair is bristly and coarse you can have treatments for it which will help. There are also products for softening and controlling brushlike hair ends. A good haircut is the foundation of any successful hair styling, but it is especially important for this kind of hair.

When you are planning a new hairdo the shape of your face is the most important factor. However you should also take your build into consideration. If you are a small woman you will look odd with a big head of hair.

1. The oval face is considered the perfect shape. If you are lucky enough to own one you can wear your hair in many different ways, in fact you can wear it any way you wish.

2. If your face is round the hair should be flat at the sides and high on the top of the head.

3. Do the reverse if your face is long and thin—hair full at sides and flat on top.

4. The square face requires a combination hairdo. You need both height and breadth at the top and hair about the ears to soften the jawline.

Generally speaking, sweeping arrangements are good for the full face. Softer effects are flattering to the thin face.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Stars in Your Crown" (hair care) send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet 52 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

BE SMART—

Some Be Smart tricks you learn at your mother's knee and forget them until suddenly you discover that not everybody knows them. For example, did you know that when hemming a dress (or even a jacket) the back hem should be an inch shorter than the front hem?

CANADIAN FUR TOO EXPENSIVE FOR POLICEMEN

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario provincial policemen wear Persian lamb hats made of imported furs because hats made of beaver trapped in Ontario would be too expensive.

This was the reply given to Les Troy (L—North Bay) in the legislature Monday.

The attorney-general's department said the fur for the Persian lamb hats is imported mainly from Afghanistan, South Africa and Iran. In his question, Mr. Troy had suggested it came from the Soviet Union.

The answer did not state the exact relative costs.

Special Times Series

Benefits Available If Contributor Dies

(Last of Four Articles)

Certain benefits under the Canada Pension Plan, in addition to retirement benefits described previously in this series are available on the death of a contributor after Jan. 1, 1968. Disability benefits are available to contributors who become disabled after Jan. 1, 1971.

Death benefits are of three types — lump sum, widow's benefit and orphan's benefit. A contributor's estate or widow receives a lump-sum death benefit equivalent to six months' retirement pension with a maximum of $500.

If a husband or father has contributed to the plan for a minimum period, widow's and orphan's benefits will be paid. He qualifies if he has made contributions:

- For at least three calendar years and at least one-third of the total number of years in his contributory period, or . . .
- For at least 10 calendar years.

Widows under age 65 but over age 35 at the time of the contributor's death are entitled to a pension. The pension is a flat $25, plus 37½ per cent of the deceased's pension for those who:

- Are disabled . . .
- Have dependent children, or . . .
- Are over age 45.

Widows without dependent children will have their benefit reduced 10 per cent for each year they are less than age 45 at the time of the husband's death.

Widows over 65 at the time of the husband's deaths are entitled to the greater of:

- 37½ per cent of the husband's pension, plus their own pension earned while a contributor, or . . .
- 60 per cent of the sum of her own and her late husband's pension.

All widow's benefits cease on remarriage.

Orphan's benefits are payable with respect to dependent, unmarried children up to 18 years old, or to 25 if full-time education is continued by the children. The amount will be $25 monthly for each of the first four orphans, and $12.50 for each additional orphan.

Disability benefits are payable to people suffering from severe and prolonged mental or physical disabilities which are of indefinite duration and render them incapable of pursuing any substantially-gainful occupation.

Payments begin in the fourth month following disablement and end at age 65—the point at which retirement pension begins.

The payment is $25 monthly, plus 75 per cent of the retirement pension earned to the date of disability.

Other benefits include pensions to disabled widowers and payments to children of a disabled contributor.

Millions Visit Grave

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 8,000,000 persons have visited the Arlington National Cemetery grave of president John F. Kennedy, and they still come at the rate of about 10,000 each weekend.

'Like Throwing Dog Bone' French-Canadian Charges

TORONTO (CP)—An angry French-Canadian said Wednesday he and his fellows get a rough deal in Ontario, and he blamed Ontario government officials, English-language newspapers, businessmen, and new Canadians.

Lucien Chamberland, past president of Le Club Canadien-Francais of Oshawa, told the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism:

"What the French-Canadians get is given the way a bone is given to a dog—so he doesn't bother people too much."

Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, gave a different opinion, at least insofar as Ontario's government was concerned.

Appearing separately at the last of three days of commission sessions here, Mr. MacDonald said official Ontario is moving closer to recognition of French - Canadian aspirations. And he gave some credit to Conservative Premier Robarts.

Mr. Chamberland said politicians talk about bilingualism a lot during election campaigns, but otherwise it was impossible to get a reply to a letter in French from a government department.

REPLIES IN ENGLISH

English - language newspapers, he said, "make mountains out of molehills" concerning allegations against Quebec politicians and are trying to stir up feeling against the French.

And he complained that Ontario businessmen only want the French around as purchasers. "Don't be so naive as to think they are in favor of bilingualism."

He termed new Canadians "our greatest enemies—perhaps I shouldn't say that — opponents." He said immigrants do not want to become Canadians but prefer to cling to their own traditions.

Mr. MacDonald appeared before the commission during examination of a provincial NDP brief affirming complete equality between the French and English language groups.

GIVES CREDIT

Referring to Premier Robarts' share in recognizing the "French fact" in Ontario, Mr. MacDonald said "giving credit where credit is due, the premier's attitude is an important factor in creating the climate. . . ."

Good clean clothes. And dependability.
Isn't that what you want from an automatic washer?

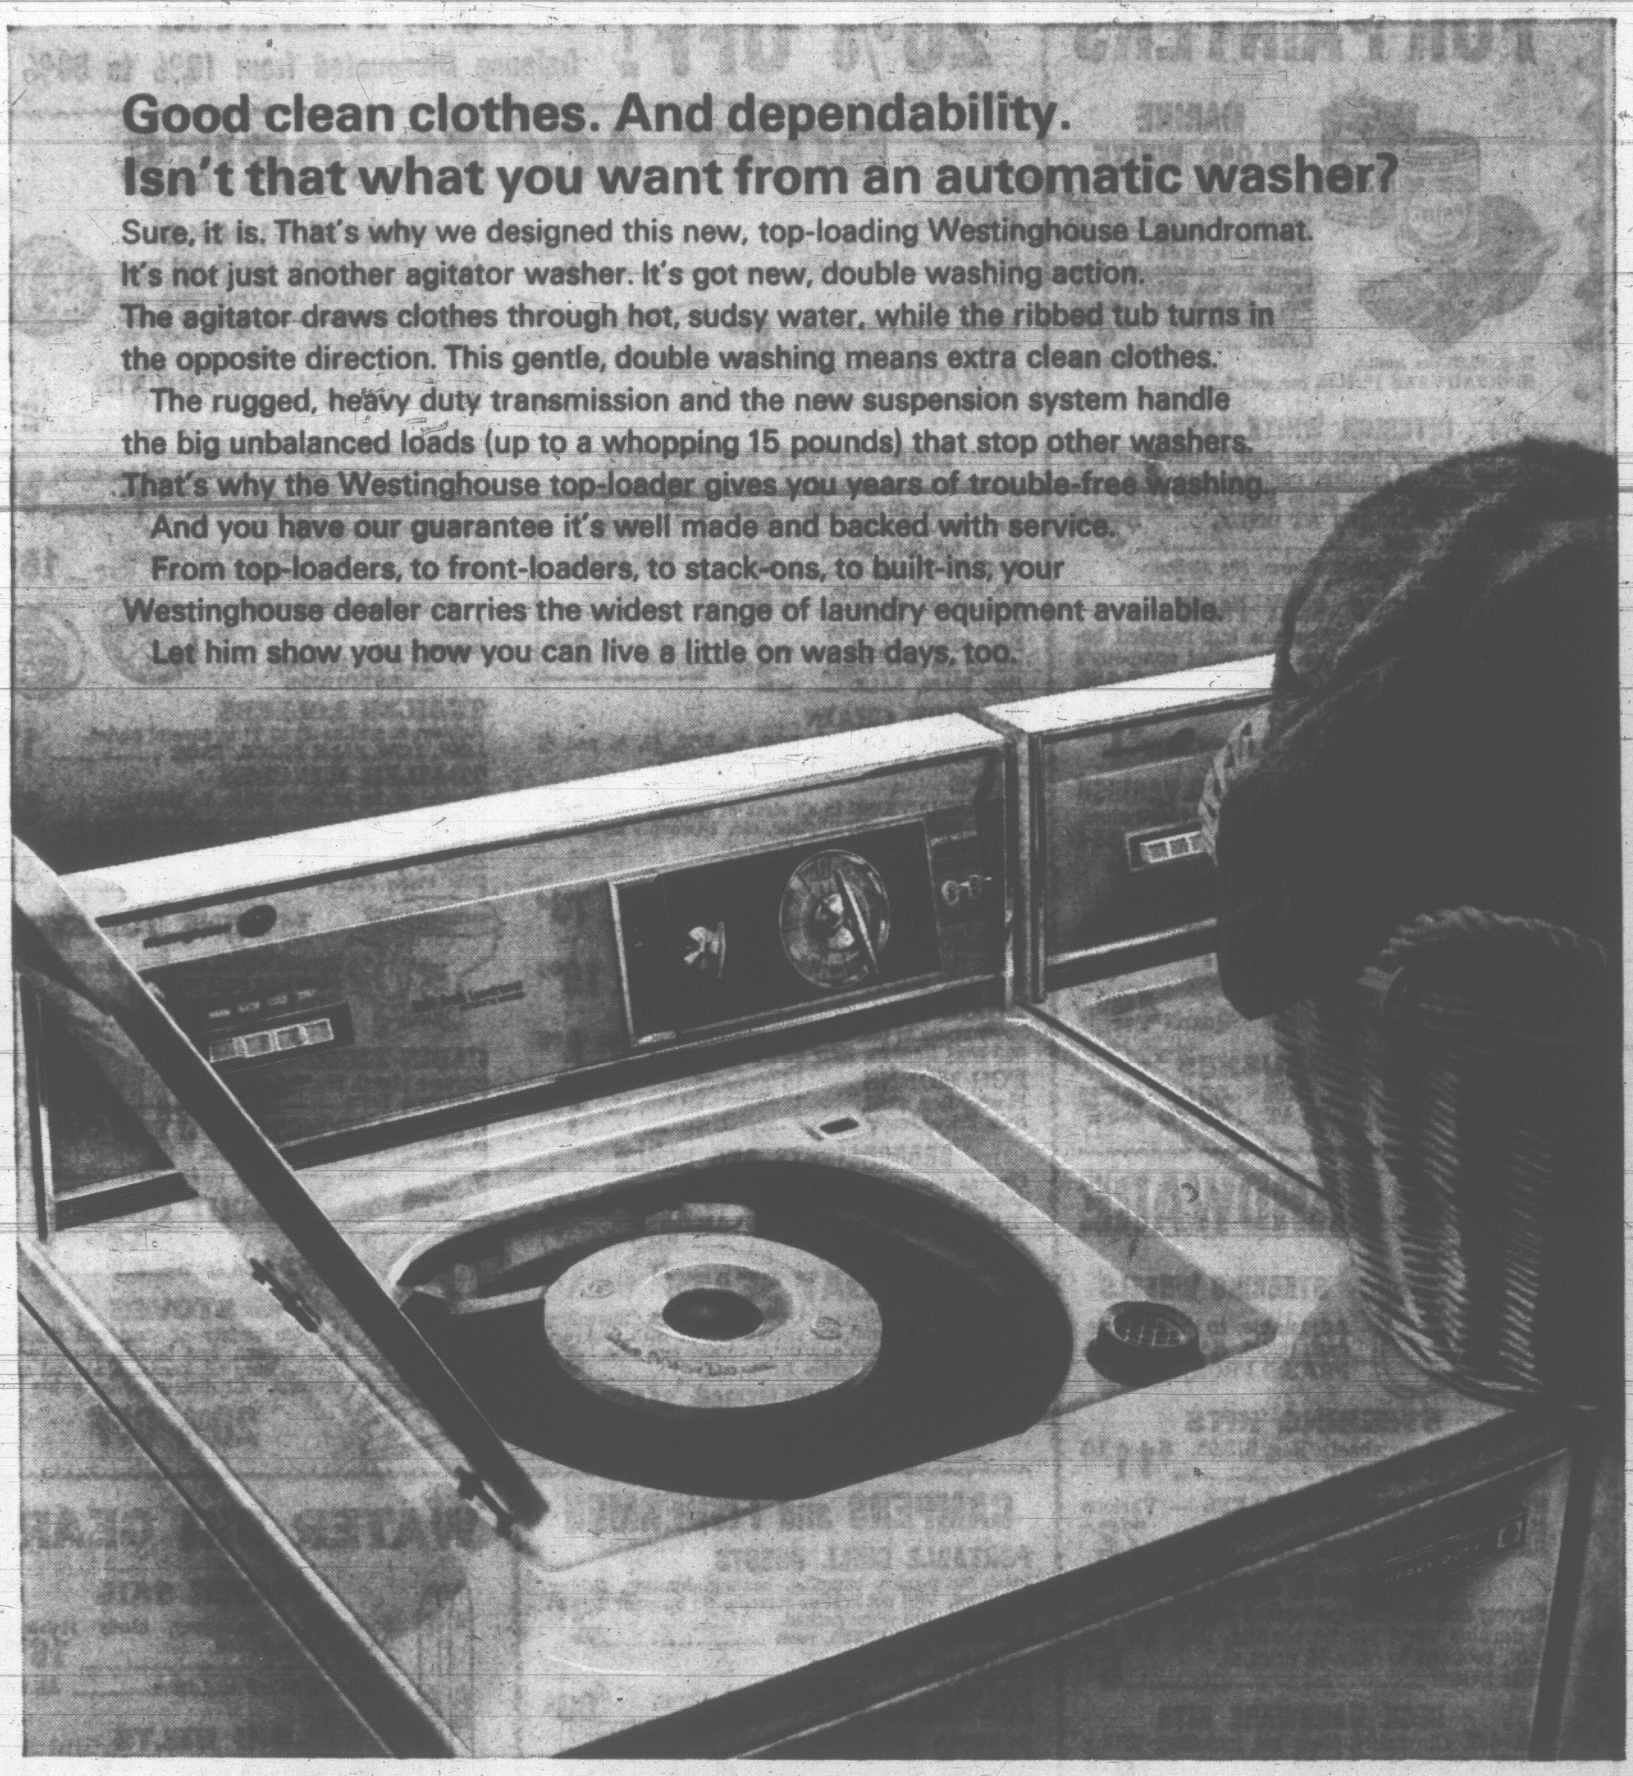

Sure, it is. That's why we designed this new, top-loading Westinghouse Laundromat. It's not just another agitator washer. It's got new, double washing action. The agitator draws clothes through hot, sudsy water, while the ribbed tub turns in the opposite direction. This gentle, double washing means extra clean clothes.

The rugged, heavy duty transmission and the new suspension system handle the big unbalanced loads (up to a whopping 15 pounds) that stop other washers. That's why the Westinghouse top-loader gives you years of trouble-free washing.

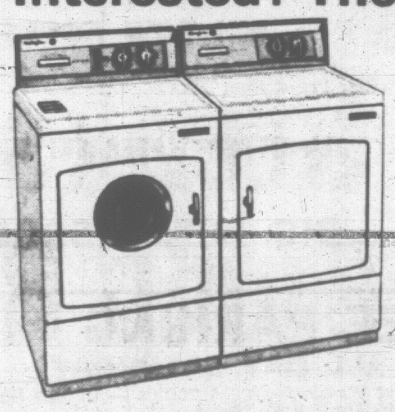

And you have our guarantee it's well made and backed with service.

From top-loaders, to front-loaders, to stack-ons, to built-ins, your Westinghouse dealer carries the widest range of laundry equipment available.

Let him show you how you can live a little on wash days, too.

BOAT LETHAL AS A SHARK

By MARK DICKINSON

Disaster was the consequence of "ignorance" for four men in a 42-foot cabin cruiser in July, 1962.

The craft had run aground on a reef near Sidney while it was under the control of an automatic pilot, designed to steer the boat on a straight course. The skipper expected the machine to navigate his craft around islands and dodge passing boats.

Disaster was the consequence of "foolhardiness" on a nearby lake for the skipper of a small speedboat one summer evening. He was towing a girl on skis when the boat turned suddenly, spilling him into the water.

The free-running boat passed over him. He died.

* * *

The accident might have been averted had the skipper obeyed the law that requires a second adult in the boat.

Disaster was the consequence of "taking a chance" some years ago when a boat owner was pumping gasoline from the bilge of his small cabin cruiser. A battery wire sparked a mixture of water and gasoline. There was an immediate fire that sank the boat and almost took the life of the skipper.

It is reported that there are approximately 100,000 pleasure power boats in British Columbia and this amount has increased by about 8 per cent each year for the past five years. During 1964 there were 476 recorded marine incidents on the west coast, reported the Canadian Coast Guard, and it is staggering to think of the much greater amount of misfortunes that escape the ears of the officials.

It is obvious that an irresponsible public is being drawn on to (and into) the water in a tremendously increasing number each year.

* * *

The public does not realize that a boat is as lethal as a car or a shark—the sharp bow from a speeding boat or the whirling blades of a propeller have no mercy.

It is futile to expect the public to accept the responsibility that is needed in crafts of all sizes. In the very near future police control must be enforced on the water, qualification certificates must be required by skippers and a complete knowledge of seamanship must be mastered by all mariners in British Columbia.

There has been a precedent set in some of our localities. RCMP attempt to control speed in minor waters and ensure regulation equipment is carried on boats. The Department of Transport requires that all boats 16 feet long, or under, with a power in excess of 9.9 horsepower, shall carry a plate stating the horsepower and maximum load recommended for it. Some yacht clubs, the British Columbia school board and the Canadian Power Boat Squadron hold classes for the learning of small and large boat handling.

True, most of us take to the water to escape the tensions and oppressions of daily life, and this solution to remedy the incompetence of mariners appears to kill that purpose—but I would rather have my boating pleasure killed than myself.

A local shipyard has received an order for an around-the-world, offshore diesel cruiser.

Philbrook's Boat Works of Sidney announced Monday that they have received an order from Mr. L. Felton of San Francisco for a William Garden-designed yacht. This yacht will be 42 feet long with a beam of 14.6 feet and powered with a 160-h.p. Cummins Diesel; her fuel tanks will give her a cruising range of 2,500 miles and this with her auxiliary sails will give an extensive range for a vessel of this size.

This vessel will have teak decks, teak trim throughout, all frame planking and beams will be extremely heavy making her the heaviest-constructed vessel ever to come out of the Philbrook yard.

The owner wishes to have his vessel look as "salty" as possible and with that in mind all deck hardware will be bronze and heavy-duty galvanized.

The ship will have an automatic pilot, ship-to-shore radio, electric deep-freeze and refrigeration, electric battery chargers, twin station control, depth sounder and the most up-to-date galley facilities.

Construction of the craft is expected to begin late this year.

Only Way to Shop

LONDON (AP)—Once or twice a month Mrs. Peter Eton pays $9.80 for a round-trip plane ticket from Britain to France and takes a five-hour shopping trip across the English Channel.

"I simply love fresh bread and vegetables," said the 36-year-old housewife, "and going to France is the real way to get them."

Mrs. Eton lives at Appledore, in County Kent, five miles from Lydd Airport. An air ferry runs from there to Le Touquet, the French seaside resort 50 miles away.

SEEKS INDEPENDENCE FROM BRITAIN

Rhodesia Calls Vote on 'Freedom'

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith said Wednesday he had called a general election in the hope of achieving an overwhelming majority in parliament to strengthen his hand in negotiating independence from Britain.

The major issue of the May 7 general election was expected to be "independence at any price" for this white-ruled British African colony.

Smith said his government was not contemplating any unilateral declaration of independence from Britain while negotiations with Britain continued.

"My negotiations with the British government on the question of our independence are still taking place," he said. "We have been told publicly that the grant of independence is dependent on the will of the country as a whole."

The dissolution of parliament was proclaimed Tuesday night and Rhodesia's political parties immediately began preparations for the general election.

An official proclamation said an election would be held May 7 and set April 14 as the closing date for nominations.

The election move came a few hours after a letter from British Prime Minister Wilson replying to correspondence from Smith on the subject of Rhodesian independence.

The contents of the letter were not revealed but there was speculation it set out Britain's terms for the colony's independence.

Smith's government wants independence on the basis of the present constitution, designed to lead eventually to majority rule in this land of 4,000,000 Negroes and 210,000 whites. Most Negroes, however, oppose the constitution on the ground it will prolong white rule.

In October, shortly after taking office, the British Labor government warned Smith about the dangers of a unilateral declaration of independence not approved by London. Britain wants Rhodesian independence to follow the usual pattern whereby power is handed over to a government based on the support of the majority of the people.

Political observers had speculated that if Wilson's latest letter contained no new proposals on the subject, the Rhodesian premier would call an election on the issue of a unilateral independence declaration.

Smith's Rhodesian Front party holds 37 of the 65 seats in Parliament. The opposition Rhodesia party, lead by David Butler, has 25 seats, while three are held by independents.

MINAUDO, CATALANOTTE

Mafia Suspect File Tabled in Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—Bulky immigration department files on suspected Mafia leaders Onofrio (Nono) Minaudo and Giuseppe (Cock - Eyed Joe) Catalanotte were tabled in the Commons Tuesday.

The bulk of the Minaudo file was made public in December.

The file on Catalanotte, 65, confirmed that he was deported to his native Italy last Nov. 5 because he has a criminal record.

The two settled in Windsor, Ont., in the late 1950s after being deported from the U.S. and expelled from Cuba after the Castro revolution. They were described in October, 1963, as Mafia syndicate lieutenants in the Detroit-Windsor area by Detroit Police Commissioner George Edwards.

Catalanotte at that time was reported to be in Mexico City. Confidential immigration documents tabled Tuesday said Catalanotte was arrested in Windsor last August after eluding the department for several years.

The documents said he is believed to have entered Canada as a visitor in 1958 and returned in October, 1961. He was deported from the U.S. to Cuba Sept. 5, 1957, after being convicted of narcotics trafficking.

LEFT FOR CUBA

Minaudo was ordered deported from Canada in 1956 and left voluntarily for Cuba two years later. He returned to Windsor in 1960 and was again ordered deported Feb. 9, 1961. The deportation was deferred until March 11, 1964, when Minaudo flew to Sicily.

Representations were made between 1957 and 1961 by three Windsor-area MPs on behalf of Minaudo's applications for permanent residence in Canada.

They were External Affairs Minister Martin, then an opposition MP and Windsor lawyer; Conservative party National Director Richard Thrasher, then MP for Essex South, and the late Don Brown, former Liberal MP for Essex West.

Mr. Martin dissociated himself from the case in September, 1963, after receiving a summary of the immigration file on Minaudo. He said in a statement last December that he was consulted as a lawyer in the Minaudo case in 1960 and received a fee.

Paint Victoria Beautiful, Mayor Tells Merchants

Storekeepers, businessmen and city council co-operating in Paint-up 65 can develop downtown streets with individual personalities, planners said Wednesday. Paint-up 65, second phase of Victoria's urban beautification and redevelopment program and was led off by a Victoria Real Estate Board luncheon attended by Mayor R. B. Wilson and members of council.

The mayor noted last year's phase made a decided impact on downtown. "Merchants were pleased and the city is happy.

"However, I might suggest that in some cases the owners and occupants of buildings might well adopt as their own the admonition 'lift up thine eyes'," the mayor added, referring to above-street improvements.

Scope of the program, co-ordinated through city hall, has been widened this year. Advice on colors, signs, outside furniture and related matters is provided by the city's architectural consulting staff.

Contributing Remand Set

An 18-year-old youth pleaded guilty in Saanich court Wednesday to contributing to the juvenile delinquency of a 15-year-old girl.

Arthur W. Kirkby, 1631 Elm, was remanded in custody for one week for a pre-sentence report.

Detective George Walton gave evidence that the accused provided beer for the girl at a party and later had sexual intercourse with her.

Huge Resources Study Urged for Area Needs

By PETE LOUDON

A full-scale study of community needs and resources was recommended to Greater Victoria Community Welfare Council Wednesday.

An independent committee on social planning set up last year told the council to start work now.

First step should be appointment of a nucleus committee to initiate the study along the lines of a similar probe conducted in Toronto, the committee reported.

The committee report was submitted by S. J. Cunliffe speaking for his colleagues Mrs. O. Phoebe Noble, Dr. R. J. Wride, Dr. D. E. Alcorn, Mr. A. Percy Rayment and A. H. Roberts. Their report was made to the annual meeting of the welfare council.

Mr Cunliffe said community welfare, health and recreational services in the capital region area were inedaquate and what there were are often duplicated.

"A new and better approach to social planning is required. The proper start is a needs and resources study.

"Admittedly such a study represents a prodigious and expensive effort, but with expenditure on health, welfare, youth and recreation running to some $18 million last year . . . you dare not continue in haphazard fashion."

Over $1 million was expended last year by "your own chest agencies," he said.

He said federal, provincial and municipal governments and voluntary agencies should share in both the cost and function of the study.

"Following the study, provision should be made for a continuing social planning function in the Community Welfare Council to provide co-ordination and control of social service and to forecast and provide for future developments," Mr. Cunliffe added.

"Needed services must be encouraged, but at the same time services which are not needed or are of low priority, should not be helped by council to draw from the public purse," he stated.

The committee, drawn from organizations outside the welfare council, praised the "piece meal" approach to social planning undertaken in the past in Greater Victoria. But it said the time has come for a cohesive, overall plan.

"The concern felt by the council with the current situation is certainly a valid one.

"The rapid growth in the area's population is resulting in an increase in the volume, seriousness and complexity of our social problems."

Cited were a 50 per cent increase in the number of children declared wards, increases in delinquencies, 319 cases of illegitimate births reported in one year, and a higher percentage of boys sent to industrial school than exists for urban areas of the province as a whole.

"In the face of this, the constructive planning being done to co-ordinate services, adjust geographical boundaries, eliminate duplication of services, or fill existing yoids is inadequate.

"There is a need for remedial measures," said Mr. Cunliffe.

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker hopes to make a visit to the Far East this year, it was learned today. He would likely include visits to Formosa and Japan. The trip depends on what happens in Parliament in the next few weeks.

Duplication Bared In Welfare Services

Victoria is loaded with organizations to care for the ill—so many there is duplication of effort, Community Welfare Council was told Wednesday.

An independent committee on social planning said also that many of the associations lack official representation from the medical profession.

The committee also said this was one example of the "hodge-podge" of health, welfare and recreational services in Victoria and listed these additional faults:

★ ★ ★

● Social assistance and associated services such as old age assistance and boarding home licencing are provided through city welfare office in Victoria, Saanich welfare office in Saanich and elsewhere in Greater Victoria by the provincial social welfare department.

● Child welfare protection, adoptions, services to unwed parents in Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich are handled by Family and Children's Service in its city office. The rest of the area is provided for by provincial district offices.

● Foster homes and ward care are administered throughout the whole capital area by Family and Children's Service.

● Victorian Order of Nurses provides home nursing in Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and View Royal. Saanich and the rest of the capital region is serviced by Saanich and South Vancouver Island Health Unit.

★ ★ ★

The first group operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week, the second on an eight-hour daily basis.

The VON charges for its service on an ability-to-pay basis. The public health nurse makes no charge but are compensated in part by taxes in Saanich.

Esquimalt and Oak Bay have their own recreation commissions. Victoria and Saanich have none.

Directors Elected for Council

Thirteen directors were elected by Community Welfare Council of Greater Victoria Wednesday night by acclamation.

Another six vacancies on the 30-member board were left to be filled by appointment by the incoming executive.

The new officers, elected to two-year terms are George Atumenko, George Bevis, Rev W. H. Bulloch, Brig. R. F. Frewing, J. S. Holdstock, William Hooson, J. D. Lorimer, Robert Manchester, Prof. F. L. Martens, Nelson C. Unicume, Dr. Roy E. L. Watson, Mrs. W. H. Wilson and Gordon R. Wright.

Glaring Service Lack Documented

When a special committee on social planning reported on Victoria's needs Wednesday, the list was so long it was attached as an appendix to the main report.

The Independent Committee on Social Planning listed these "glaring inadequacies in present services":

No where in B.C. are there specially designed facilities exclusively for psychotic children.

There is no residential institution for retarded children on Vancouver Island.

Family and Children's Court are "entirely inadequate. The probation staff is too small. There is no full-time judge, no full-time prosecutor.

There is no co-ordinated program of home care services of an acceptable nature in Greater Victoria.

Despite recent improvements, the Red Cross Homemaker service is inadequate to community need.

There is no specialized counselling service for adolescents.

There is no group program for deviant youngsters.

YOUTH PROBLEMS

There is no co-ordinated approach to youth problems by the various police forces.

There are no workshops for handicapped and retarded at lower levels of production than Goodwill Enterprises offer.

There are insufficient services to the aged—recreation, counselling, homemakers, specialized housing, employment.

There is no co-ordinated service approach to the multi-problem families.

There are no centralized diagnostic services for handicapped children.

HANDICAPPED

Improved day care and outpatient services are required for handicapped children.

The district needs improved co-ordination for care of neuromuscular diseases victims.

There is need for a study of duplicated services to discharged prisoners.

There is need for a central referral service in cases of family disaster.

There is need for review of the whole problem of financing health, welfare and recreation services.

There is need for a review of improvements in control of "charitable" fund-raising campaigns.

There are no services for the psychotic elderly, or psychotic children.

There are no official facilities for discharged mental patients.

There is no provision for occupational therapy in any private hospital.

CORONARY CASES

There is a lack of aftercare for coronary cases.

Home care services lack co-ordination.

There is lack of concern for the Chinese community.

There is a lack of low rental housing.

Stamp Out Obscenity, Urges Group

A Victoria lawyer Wednesday asked Greater Victoria Community Welfare Council to help stamp out "obscene" magazines.

But the welfare council's annual meeting took no action and did not discuss the matter.

Chairman Ald. Alfred Toone suggested anyone interested could go to a forthcoming meeting of the "Section 150 Committee" and discuss the subject there.

The lawyer, John N. Stone said he represented the committee, named after the section of the Canadian Criminal Code, which prohibits distribution and sale of such magazines.

"We are not trying to bring about censorship, just enforcement of existing laws," said Mr. Stone.

Mr. Stone showed copies of three magazines, Tip Top, Man's Age; Night and Day and French Spice. He said an advisory committee set up in Ontario had found them to be obscene. He said they were on sale here.

He asked the meeting to consider setting up a sub-committee which could work toward the appointment of an advisory committee by and for the attorney-general's department.

Private Plans Study Details

TORONTO (CP)—Passage of the Canada Pension Plan by the House of Commons is going to mean a lot of extra work for actuaries working for private insurance companies.

A check of several major insurance firms Wednesday indicated none is ready to comment yet on what effect the pension plan will have on private programs.

"We will have to study the details of the legislation and see how it applies to particular plans we have underwritten," said a spokesman for one company.

How can you tell if a shoe dealer really cares?

If he sells Packard shoes for children, he has a better than average concern for the fit of your child's shoe.

For a start, Packard shoes aren't as easy to stock as most brands because they come in a greater variety of shapes and sizes. But it's worth the trouble because children's feet also come in a variety of shapes and sizes.

There are high arches and low arches. There are wide heels and narrow heels. There are high insteps and low insteps. And every set of toes need space to spread, and room to grow.

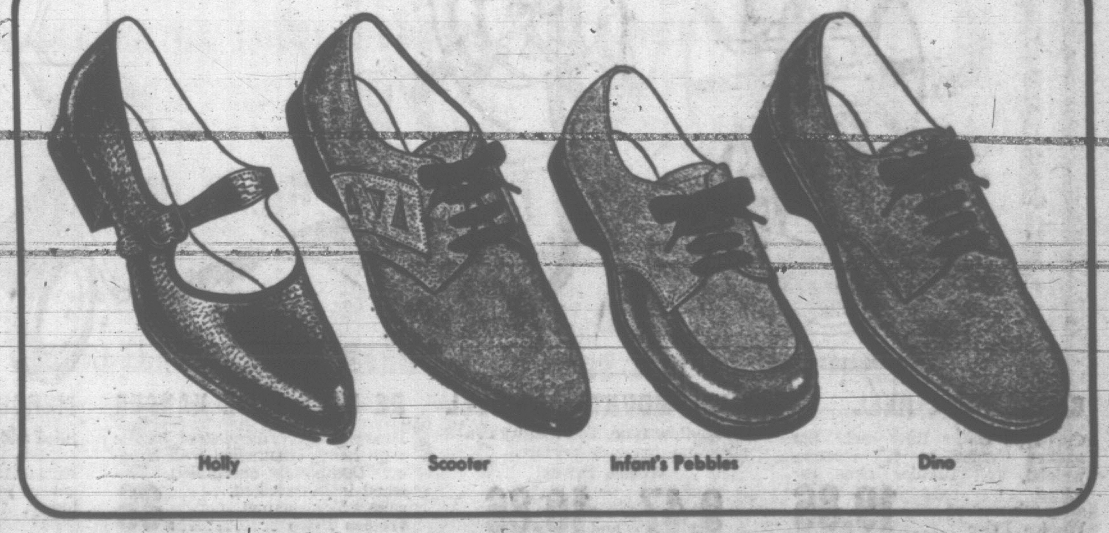

One more thing:

Packard shoes for children cost a little more to buy because they cost more to make. But in the long run, you can't find a better buy.

INDIANS SAY NO, EXPERTS YES

Will Native Tongues Survive?

By HUMPHRY DAVY

B.C. native languages are very much alive in all parts of the province today but there is disagreement on their survival chances.

Anthropologists and linguists say the languages are here to stay, but most Indians think they will go the way of the Latin of ancient Rome.

★ ★ ★

The fate of the languages was raised recently in the legislature by Frank Calder, Indian MLA for Atlin. He predicted their disappearance in 50 years.

He asked for a greater effort by the department of education and universities in preserving records of the languages.

But a survey of Indian tongues spoken in B.C. today indicates there is no reason for alarm—at least not for the present. There are 23 languages still spoken.

Only three have died out and this occurred when the native population was at its lowest ebb between 1860 and the early 1920s.

In addition, Chinook jargon, a trade language formerly used by fur traders and Indians, is still spoken.

Experts like Wilson Duff, provincial anthropologist, say the languages won't die because the native population is now increasing rapidly.

"This means Indians will speak their languages more and more," he said.

But George Clutesi, a well-known Indian artist, claims the languages are spoken less and less by the younger generation.

"They can understand the language of their native tribe," he said, "but rarely speak it. I'm afraid they will die out."

Henry Hunt, chief carver at Thunderbird Park and Chief John Albany of the Songhees Indian reserve, say the languages will gradually disappear as more Indians move to cities to find jobs.

Mr. Hunt blames the lack of interest in Indian languages on an inferiority complex. It springs from the days when teachers punished native children for speaking their languages in schools.

Indians disagree on the fate of the Chinook jargon, once the international language spoken in B.C.

Indians on the east coast of Vancouver Island say it is dying out. The Nootkans on the west coast don't think so.

The Nootkans, who claim to have created the language, still teach it to their children.

Chinook is a colorful jargon and has enriched the English language. It was derived from words taken from languages of 26 tribes. To this was added a dash of English and French.

Here are some examples: Nika tikegh muckamuck chuck, which means "I want drink"; tenas klootchman toketie—pretty girl; mesika shugopoots—"you rattlesnake"; hum oppots humm—skunk smells.

Chinook words commonly used today include chuck (water); tillicum (friend); and potlatch (party).

★ ★ ★

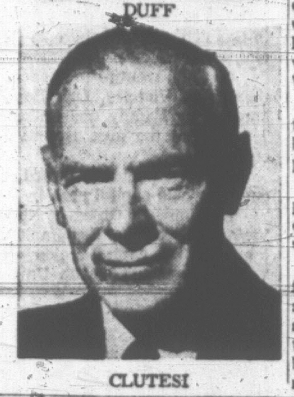

The University of British Columbia for some time has been preserving records of the various tongues. The University of Victoria and the new University of Simon Fraser also plan to keep records.

Are they worth preserving?

"A language is a system of thought" said Mr. Duff. "It's also a human accomplishment differing from any other, and for this reason alone is worth saving."

DUFF

CLUTESI

B.C. Indians Decimated By 1862 Smallpox Wave

The worst calamity to befall the Indians of British Columbia was the smallpox epidemic which broke out in Victoria in 1862, says Wilson Duff, anthropologist at the Provincial Museum.

"Within two years it had reached practically all parts of the province and killed about one-third of the native people," writes Mr. Duff in The Indian History of British Columbia, volume 1: The Impact of the White Man.

The natives were not only victims of white man's diseases, but also of his alcohol and gunpowder.

"Few Indians here, in comparison with other parts of the continent, were killed in battles with the white men.

"Along the coast there were a few small but spectacular massacres of the crews of trading ships, or of Indians attempting to capture them, and several bombardments of villages by naval vessels.

"The Indians' own tribal wars were quite another matter," says Mr. Duff. "The introduction of firearms made these much more lethal affairs, and the mortality rate, especially along the coast, came to be terribly high.

"It is difficult to gain an appreciation of the destructiveness of this warfare without going over, one by one, the traditional histories of each of the tribes.

"Murders, massacres to avenge them, and more massacres in retaliation form a constantly recurring pattern.

"Many small tribes were, in effect, exterminated. Some of the more powerful tribes, or alliances of tribes, embarked on contests of mutual annihilation. The wars continued without abatement into the 1860s."

Mr. Duff said 20 per cent of the deaths among Indians today are caused by accidents—drowning, alcohol, fire, car mishaps, poisoning and falls.

JUDY CONSIDERS BAN ON CBC CIGARETTE ADS

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Judy LaMarsh told the Commons Wednesday she is considering asking the CBC to stop broadcasting cigarette commercials on television and radio.

She was replying to P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe East), a physician, who said such a ban by the publicly-owned corporation would set a national example.

INFLUENTIAL ADVISOR TO DIEF

'Accuser' Nielsen Turns to Policy

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA—Its impact was lost in the unseemly rush to pass the government's opting-out formula, but the speech made by Erik Nielsen (PC-Yukon) in the commons late Tuesday afternoon was a highly significant statement of Conservative aims and intentions.

Nielsen's prominence as an accuser in the recent scandal charges against the Pearson administration has overshadowed his growing importance as an influential policy advisor to Opposiiton Leader John Diefenbaker.

Nielsen's views must be considered with great care by anyone trying to predict the stands Diefenbaker plans to take on national issues in the months ahead.

Memoranda

These views have been expressed by Nielsen publicly in his Tuesday afternoon speech attacking the Pearson opting-out provision and privately in two secret memoranda he has recently circulated to select members of the Conservative caucus.

The few Tories who have seen all three of these documents consider that they come close to being an outline of the strategy Diefenbaker would like to use in the next election campaign.

Even the slogans of such a campaign are clearly set out, among them a derogatory tag for the Pearson government's policies ("Deconfederation on the installment plan"); and a capsule summary of Diefenbaker's counter-attack ("we will decentralize but not deconfederate").

One of the confidential memoranda also includes the outline of an alterntive Conservative policy under the general "One Canada" label.

The theme which runs through the three documents is that the Liberal government is deliberately dismembering Canada, that Lester Pearson is the champion of a "relentless downgrading of confederation and the Canadian constitution," and that the only political group which "stands for Canada" is the Conservative party under John Diefenbaker.

The Liberal policy of co-operative federalism is dismissed as "the dismantling of Canada's constitutional structure and the surrender of national sovereighty."

Nielsen stressed that the Liberal program is all of a piece "you cannot dissociate 'opting out,' two pension plans and the constitutional changes," he writes.

"They are all part of the same design—leading to the setting up of two states . . . in a single country."

He represents Diefenbaker as a political leader who can stop this trend "by instinct, by conviction, by the record of his whole life.

NIELSEN
. . . campaign formula

"Without full control of our resources from coast to coast," he writes, "we cannot survive as a nation. This means keeping French Canada."

'One Canada'

His technique for accomplishing this large objective is outlined in the section of his memorandum describing his "one Canada policy." He recommends that in any area of Canada, where educational facilities do not presently exist in both French and English, the federal government (with the approval of the provinces) should contribute 50 per cent of the cost of establishing such bilingual schools.

Nielsen rejects the Fulton-Favreau constitutional amendment formula, charging that "Mr. Fulton has his own reasons for accepting the formula. He is personally identified with it in his own mind."

The substitute advocated by the Yukon MP would limit the right of constitutional amendment to approval by seven of the provinces (instead of four under the Fulton-Favreau proposal) plus two-thirds of the Senate and House of Commons.

The Nielsen plans are full of bold, centralizing measures and the advocacy of a Canada very much the opposite of the flexible co-operative confederation to which the Pearson government is committed.

Whether or not the Nielsen formula actually becomes the Conservative plaform will depend, in part, on his success in converting enough Tories to his ideas.

Overruled

Although he had John Diefenbaker's full backing in urging rigid opposition to the opting-out legislation, in the Tory caucus, Nielsen was overruled by Conservative moderates, and the bill was allowed to pass after a few hours of desultory debate.

Nielsen himself insists that Conservatives who disagree with him are traitors who should leave the party.

"One thing is clear," he concludes in one of his memoranda, "an election with divided voices in our own ranks is a betrayal not only of our party but of the many thousands of Canadians who look to this party for a strong and clear voice of leadership. Their betrayal will not be forgiven or forgotten."

Burnaby Spurns Merger Proposal

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mayor William Rathie said Wednesday there are no practical reasons why Vancouver and suburban Burnaby should not amalgamate.

But Reeve Allan Emmott of Burnaby said he opposes the idea.

Mayor Rathie said the time has come that it is economically feasible to join the two municipalities into one.

"There would be many more plusses in the deal than minuses for both municipalities," he said.

Husband Charged

KITIMAT, B.C. (CP)—RCMP have laid a capital murder charge against Harry James Parsley, 49, in the shooting Tuesday night of his wife Helen. The couple had lived in Kitimat since 1964, and had no children. Mrs. Parsley was a music teacher and church organist. Her husband is a welder.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

DISSA 'N' DATTA: There wasn't room yesterday to comment on Jonathan Winters' special Monday but it can't be ignored. It was the best thing the nimble-witted comedian has done this season. Of all his specials, this will have to stand out and for good reason. It was not a one-man show.

The past specials doted on Winters and his assorted comic characters. However, though he is superb in short spots, his humor leaves something to be desired over an hour-long stretch.

In "Jonathan and the Movies," he satirized the television documentary about the history of Hollywood.

Using the excellent narrative voice of Alexander Scourby as straight man, the program gamboled through the great moments in film history.

Buster Keaton, Julie Newmar, Agnes Moorehead, Peter Leeds and Cliff Norton aided and abetted Winter's satiric slaps at the movie industry.

There was the leading man hero with his Rolls-Royce-screaming fans entrance, the secret agent, the horror film and war movie spoof.

And if that wasn't enough, he even rang in some well-known Hollywood reporters, like Vernon Scott of UPI.

It was a good-humor hour which gave Winters the chance to run the gamut of his characters and still bounce fun off his guests.

Robert E. Kintner, president of NBC, says the three major U.S. television networks spent $125,000,000 to cover the news in 1964.

He said the NBC news division spent $53,000,000 or more than the company's total revenues 30 years ago. Kintner presented the information in an article in the April issue of Harper's magazine.

A re-creation of biblical history, filmed at ancient sites in Iran, Iraq, Egypt, Jordan and Israel, will be presented in a full-hour color television program, "The Inheritance," on NBC-TV Sunday, May 23.

It surveys the remains of great civilizations of antiquity in the Middle East—Persian, Babylonian, Assyrian, Sumerian, Egyptian and Israelite.

Alexander Scourby narrates.

From the department of useless information comes this little gem:

Millions of viewers who for nine years have been accustomed to seeing the right profile of Chet Huntley on the Huntley-Brinkley Report now can decide which is his "best side."

After introducing the story to be told on film, Huntley turns to the studio monitor to follow the story himself and get ready for his next cue.

Recently, at the daily program planning conference, Huntley said, "Why don't I turn the other way to watch the monitor?"

Since it involved only shifting the monitor to the other side of his desk, the move was made.

After nine years, habits become hard to break. But so far, he has not forgotten and looked to his left for the monitor no longer there.

COMMODORE REPLIES

Life Aboard Carrier 'Not Close to Hell'

HALIFAX (CP)—Living conditions are hot and crowded aboard the aircraft carrier Bonaventure, but it's a long way from "unmitigated hell," Commodore J. C. O'Brien said today.

He was commenting on remarks in the Commons March 25 by Harold Winch, New Democratic Party member for Vancouver East, who visited the ship with a parliamentary group off Puerto Rico.

Mr. Winch said some sailors on the carrier lived in "unmitigated hell" and there was extreme overcrowding. He said the destroyer-escort Annapolis was the opposite—too cold.

HOT SHIP

"Sure it's hot, it's always been a hot ship in the tropics," Commodore O'Brien told a press conference upon the carrier's return from a 2½-month exercise in the Caribbean.

"And it is crowded. We have 1,350 officers and men on board. We've modernized the ship a great deal—it is 20 years old—and we expect more improvements . . . next year.

"The air conditioning always gives trouble on a big bruiser like this."

He said the temperature aboard the Annapolis was generally kept at 68 degrees, "certainly adequate to support life," but might seem cold if one stepped into it from 90-degree tropic sunshine.

Commodore O'Brien commanded Canadian forces in the exercise held in conjunction with United States forces. He described the exercise as a complete success.

Red Cross Near Target For March

Red Cross March campaign reached 64.9 per cent of its $82,000 goal on the last day of the drive Wednesday. Contributions are still coming in.

More than 1,200 volunteer residential and business canvassers have returned $53,183.84 of their collections to Red Cross headquarters.

The B.C. Division quota is $653,900. Half of each dollar is used for the blood donors clinics. The balance supports other Red Cross activities such as the homemakers' service, the water safety service, Red Cross Lodge and the loan-cupboard of the Red Cross.

Through the loan-cupboard the public can borrow crutches, wheelchairs and hospital beds free of charge for a period up to three months.

Officials expect late returns will bring the total of the campaign to its $82,000 goal.

NEW REGULATIONS

Experts Set Course On Insecticide Use

Department of agriculture experts will soon be hitting the road to conduct short courses in how to handle insecticides.

Minister of Agriculture Frank Richter said Tuesday that at least one team will be active within the next few weeks.

After conducting courses in Vancouver and Victoria the team will visit main centres in the rest of the province to conduct similar three or four days' periods of instruction.

Following the course each participant will be granted a licence certifying him as qualified to handle highly toxic weed and pest killers.

Under the new program all outlets selling such poisons will require at least one licence staff member.

At the present time all pharmacists and veterinarians are qualified to sell poisons. They and other university graduates trained in the handling of poisons will not require the new licence.

The courses will be open to all personnel of hardware, garden supply or feed stores.

GARDEN POISONS

In addition to the training program all stores selling dangerous garden poisons will have to obtain the signature of the purchaser before the poison can be released.

Mr. Richter says that such precautions will readily keep track of the purchase and also give the sales clerk an opportunity to instruct the customer in its use and its dangers.

Stores selling weed killer or plant sprays of the non-deadly variety will not need their clerks to take the course, but they will be compelled to store such products well away from foodstuffs.

Mr. Richter said he anticipated a heavy demand for the training offered in the Okanagan Valley where heavy spraying of fruit trees occurs each year.

"It will be of particular value to all farmers who use sprays to control farm pests," he said. "And it should eliminate entirely the danger of the occurrences in the Grand Forks area."

In Grand Forks earlier this year cumulative pesticides contaminated milk, beef cattle and hogs.

CHRYSLER PLAN

80,000 Cars For Export Over Border

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Chrysler Canada Ltd. will build about 80,000 cars at its plant here next year for export to the United States under the terms of the Canada-United States auto free-trade plan, company sources say.

The program is dependent on the United States Congress approving the plan, signed by Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson last January.

It was estimated the export additional 1,000 workers. Chrysler cars could mean jobs for an additional 1,000 workers. Chrysler announced last week it was hiring 1,000 men to man a second shift.

Chrysler's production last year was 116,000 cars and trucks.

The Chrysler program is the first to be reported from the Big Three auto makers following the signing of the free-trade plan.

Officials of General Motors, at Oshawa, Ont., and Ford of Canada, at Oakville, Ont., say the plan still is under study.

PROPOSAL 'EFFRONTERY'

N. Saanich to Fight Annex Bid by Sidney

North Saanich property owner associations will fight a move by Sidney to annex their district.

Their spokesman, Dr. A. B. Nash said the Sidney proposal to the minister of municipal affairs was "effrontery."

Coun. Douglas Taylor of Sidney told the village council that as a district municipality with wider boundaries, Sidney's borrowing power would be expanded.

Dr. Nash said that's all Sidney is interested in. He said North West Mount Newton District Property Owners' Association, of which he is president, criticized the Sidney proposal Tuesday.

The meeting favored independent incorporation of North Saanich instead — with no ties with Sidney. The executive will take this recommendation to a meeting with Deep Cove, North Sidney and Dean Park property owners' associations April 21 in North Saanich Secondary School.

"It's amazing that Sidney would go to the government without even consulting property owners in North Saanich," said Dr. Nash.

"We don't want to be involved in the type of administration that presently runs the village of Sidney," he added.

This was a reference to a recent report by the municipal affairs department which criticized Sidney's village administration.

$215,000 Arena for Centennial?

NORTH COWICHAN — North Cowichan electors can expect to vote in late May on a bylaw proposing a $215,000 ice arena as their centennial project.

The municipal recreation commission Wednesday night retained the firm of Wade, Stockdill, Armour and Partners, Victoria and Vancouver, as its architects for the project.

Peter Blewett, on behalf of the firm, promised sketch plans by May 1.

The arena will be built on a 40-acre site near Fullers Lake. It will have an ice sheet approximately 85 feet by 210 feet and an area of some 33,000 square feet.

Additional facilities will include a banquet room, snack bar and changing rooms.

Commissioner Jack Efford said: "We want the minimum of frills with the maximum of utility."

Commissioner Ivan Beggs said the architects should envisage a building to accommodate everything from skating, indoor tennis, lacrosse and bingo to a convention.

Coun. Dennis Hogan, chairman, said: "We've got to keep the cost within bounds."

ISLAND DIGEST

GOLD RIVER MILL GETS BOARD APPROVAL

Directors of the Tahsis Company Ltd. gave approval Wednesday for company plans to construct a $60,000,000 bleached kraft pulp mill at Gold River on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

The mill is expected to produce 750 tons a day when production is started in June, 1967. Plans for the mill were revealed last October by Premier Bennett and Tahsis president J. V. Christiansen.

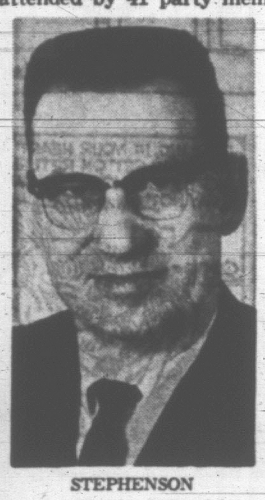

The company statement Wednesday in Vancouver said construction of the mill and townsite would start immediately.

About 1,200 men will be employed in the construction. The mill and wood operations will employ about 600 when in operation.

Teen-Agers Present Case For Own Centre

DUNCAN — Duncan's teen town organization is looking for a site on which to build its own dance hall.

Chairman Jim Quaife took the problem to North Cowichan's recreation commission Wednesday evening.

He reminded Coun. Dennis Hogan, chairman: "You told us to come back when we had something concrete — now we think we have."

He said: "We have 212 paid up members and an average of 350 teen-agers turn out to our monthly dances."

They have outgrown the use of Duncan Elementary School gymnasium, and the building they had in mind to erect could be a community effort.

Mr. Quaife said he hoped to introduce hobby courses as part of the teentown program, but this was impossible without storage facilities. With volunteer labor and donations he thought a suitable hall could be built for $25,000.

FUND STARTED

He said that as a "token step in the right direction" the teen towners had started a building fund and raised $120.

Local businessmen were being approached for financial support.

Mr. Quaife, who said his group drew members from an area bounded by Shawnigan Lake, Westholme and Lake Cowichan, said Mayor Jack Dobson of Duncan had promised the city would "pick up part of the tab" toward providing facilities.

He added: "Looking building a hall is a big undertaking, but the care of teen-agers is a big undertaking."

The commission agreed to recommend to council that it consider finding the teen-agers a suitable site near Duncan.

Canadian Held On Drug Charge

ATHENS (Reuters) — Dobbin Gordon Murray, 20, a Canadian student from Saskatoon, and Clifford Bruce Stockell, 23, a school teacher from Christchurch, N.Z., were charged today by the Athens prosecutor with illegal possession of narcotics.

The two youth were arrested Wednesday by the Athens security police while they were trying to sell 2.2 pounds of hashish (opium) they allegedly bought in Tangier, Morocco, for about $12, the police said.

'Thar She Blows'

The cry of "Thar She Blows" reverberated off the West Coast today as a sturdy breed of men began the annual whaling season.

Five whale catchers of the Western Canada Whaling Co. fleet earlier set sail from Vancouver to participate in one of the world's oldest industries.

Crew members are British Columbians, Newfoundlanders, Japanese and Norwegians, all with previous whaling or deep-sea fishing experience.

The whale-catchers — Westwhale-Four, Five, Six, Seven and Eight—built in Japan and Norway, have crews of about 18 men, who sign on for a six-month season. The 14 Newfoundlanders are flown out.

The company, owned jointly by B.C. Packers Ltd. and Taiyo Gyogyo Fishing Co. of Japan, is one of the last in the world to carry on the thrilling battle of man against the whale.

At the height of the season 150 men are employed. They operate from Coal Harbor on the west coast of Vancouver Island, where the whales come to feed on plankton.

Six types of whales are commonly found in the coastal waters. The biggest is the blue whale, which grows up to 100 feet. There also are the finback whales, up to 85 feet, the sei, up to 60 feet, the humpback, up to 50 feet, the sperm, up to 60 feet, and the killer, which grows up to 30 feet.

Last season the fleet caught 880 whales.

Boating Mishap Claims Man, 63

ALERT BAY (CP)—A 63-year-old man died Tuesday of exposure after a boating accident near here.

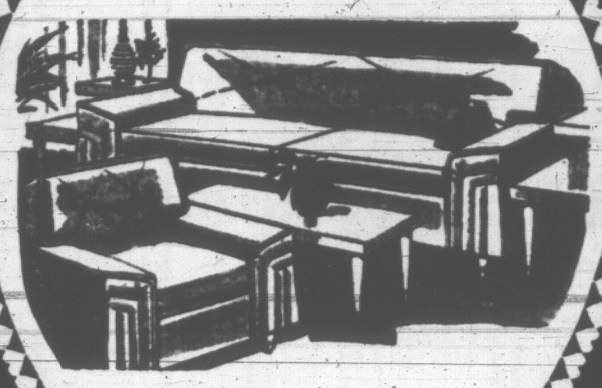

Eric Francis Roberts, of this tiny island community 200 miles northwest of Victoria, was thrown into the water when his dinghy capsized as he was fishing.

RCMP said he was rescued by an RCMP boat, but was dead on arrival at Alert Bay Hospital.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

MISS MIDNIGHT'S DIARY: Look for a small war between Peter O'Toole and Sam Spiegel. O'Toole now gets about a million dollars a film, give or take a little on percentages, but he owes Mr. Spiegel one picture at the embarrassingly low figure of $56,000, his fee in the dark days before he became a star. To complicate the situation, Peter isn't keen on playing a cowpoke in "The Chase," which is what the producer has in mind. O'Toole as a cowboy! . . . Insiders in the recording field are gabbing about a fantastic new kind of tape that will create big news in the music industry. According to the scuttlebut, it will be able to unreel 26 hours of music on a single (four-track stereo) reel, and hold more than 200 songs. It's expected to revolutionize the entire disc industry.

Composer Bart Howard will write the words and music to a new Broadway show titled "Smile Harry, Love Is Blind." The libretto was suggested by Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales." Bart had been working on the musical about Gertrude Lawrence, which has been postponed . . . Charlton Heston has left for Minneapolis to see a sneak preview of "The Agony and the Ecstasy." He'll return early in the week to tape a network TV special on Michaelangelo to be aired nation wide on Good Friday . . . Major recording firms are vying for the rights to the Bob Bach-Richard Lewine film, "The Days of Wilfred Owen." Not surprising; the narration was done by Richard Burton, himself . . . "The Yellow Rolls-Royce" has so many stars in it that billing complications are rearing ugly heads and lawyers are appearing on the scene.

Paul Newman returned exhausted from doing "Lady L" in Europe and took off with Joanne Woodward for a long rest in Westport. Their latest baby is expected next month . . . Police are keeping a special watch on a street in the forties between 6th and 7th Avenue. It boasts more clip joints than any other midtown block.

The American ballet theatres new presentation, "Sargasso," ought to be a hit. It's a wild one. Wow! Tiny Rita Pavone, the Rock 'n' Roll idol from Italy, has been startling customers at La Scala by smoking a pipe filled with real tobacco—not grape leaves . . . There's a new movie about a musician called "The Legend of Jimmy Blue Eyes." Does the real live Jimmy Blue Eyes of Las Vegas, Miami, Broadway, etcetera—no musician, he—know about this?

★ ★ ★

Tennessee Williams is busy writing—for the third time—"The Milk Train Doesn't Stop Here Any More." The play has flopped twice here, but he's determined to make it a hit, and more power to him. Certainly the original version deserved better notices and a longer run than it got.

Seven Arts executives who flew over to see Ken Hlman's controversial flicker, "The Hill," think it showcases Sean Connery as a "great dramatic actor." This we've got to see . . . . Dolores Del Rio will film Ibsen's "Ghosts" in Spanish in Mexico City. This we've got to see, too. She's a beautiful lady—but Ibsen?

Society is bracing itself for the publication of Philip Van Rensselaer's book, "The Golden Door." Everyone hears it's a shocker, naming names and heiresses . . . Thornton Wilder saw "Hello, Dolly!" for the sixth time the other night . . . The Sardi Set hears that a show now in rehearsal is $40,000 short of its budget. The quick demise of "Kelly" hasn't made it easier to raise money for Broadway.

Arithmetic Symbol Life

By JACK HUTTON

The letter, bearing a Calgary postmark, looked as if the writer had scrawled it in both haste and desperation. And she had. The opening paragraph read:

"I am a mother begging for your help. Maybe I'm the world's worst dunce but I don't know what the binary system is and my two children treat me like an idiot.

"Your last column said computers use this system of mathematics. I don't dare ask my son in Grade 9 or my daughter in Grade 11 how. Please throw a lifeline. Signed: Dunce Mother.

Madam, you have written to another dunce. But the binary system (it simply means use of two symbols, 0 and 1) is so simple you can understand it in 10 minutes.

And, to prove it to you, I'm sticking several problems in binary arithmetic at the bottom of this column. By the time you've reached them I'm betting you'll be able to find the answers as quickly as your know-it-all offspring.

Unit System

First, you understand that mathematics must be clothed in language or symbols. And because our ancestors had 10 fingers and 10 toes we customarily think in units (or sets, as they say today) of 10.

But what is 10? Aha. The car speedometer rolls to 9, jumps back to 0 and puts a 1 in front of it. And you do the same thing when adding up your grocery bill.

In other words, you use up all the symbols you have—0, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9—and indicate you have one more than the group of numbers. You might have fun sometime pretending a small group of symbols exist.

For example, use only 0, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7. Nothing else exists. Add 14 and 15. The numbers 4 and 5 are two more than 7 so you put down 0 and 2. Your answer is 40.

Two Symbols

But what if we have only two symbols, 0 and 1?

Our decimal system (based on 10) refers to 0 and 1 in the same way as the binary system. But the comparison stops there. The binary system has no other symbols but these two.

Let's add 1 and 1. And if you pass this one step you've mastered binary arithmetic. Think of the car speedometer and your every-day arithmetic. What can you do?

What's that? You're right. 1 plus 1 is more than 1, so you put down 0 and carry 1 to the left. The answer—or the equivalent of our 2—is 10.

Now on to the equivalent of our 3. Add another 1 to 10. And, since 1 plus 0 is 1 with nothing to carry, the answer is 11. Nothing very difficult there, is there?

Speedometer

Let's look at the binary equivalent of 4. We're adding 1 to 11. (Think of the speedometer again. I find it helps me) 1 plus 1 must be 0, carry 1. But you're again adding 1 plus 1. So your answer is two zeros with 1 at the left—100.

Now, while you're flushed with success, take a sheet of paper and write our symbols from 0 to 12 down the lefthand side. Work out the equivalents for each, starting with 1, 1, 10 and so on.

All through? You should be looking at 1, 1, 10, 11, 100, 101, 110, 111, 1000, 1001, 1010, 1011 and 1100. Reread the last six paragraphs if you went wrong anywhere. Work out equivalents again on another sheet of paragraph regardless of whether you were correct.

Ready for the problems? Add 4 plus 3; plus 3; 6 plus 4; 7 plus 4. Consult your sheet and convert each number to its binary equivalent to add. (The answers are below: don't peak).

Computer Use

Who'd want to add this way, you ask? No one. You'd fill up pages with simple problems. But there is a special use for the binary system—the computer.

The system is perfectly suited to electricity. The electrical current is either on or off. And an electrical impulse stands for the positive—1. A break in the current stands for the negative—0.

Some of the original computers were based on our standard system. But scientists found this slowed them down. Problems can be solved far more quickly using only the two symbols.

I hear what you're saying now, madam: "So that's all there is to it! I thought it was something like magic." Well, all numbers have magical qualities, but that is the basis of the binary system.

I only wish I could hear you at the dinner table tonight!

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Theresa Prucha, age 13, of Muscoy, Calif., for her question:

How can we tell a planet from a star?

You may need more than a quick glance to spot a planet in the star-studded sky, but an expert could find one at once because he knows just where to look. If you are in doubt whether what you see is a planet or star, you would use a small telescope or watch it move for a time across the heavens.

The word planet means a wanderer, and the wandering planets have been baffling stargazers since before the dawn of history. With the Space Age, however, they wandered right into the news and became items of great interest to everyone. The distant stars appear in fixed patterns and wheel across the heavens in an orderly parade. The parade of constellations changes with the seasons and repeats year after year.

The stars, of course, are suns like our own starry sun. The planets are worlds like the earth. They circle the sun at different speeds in different orbits. They are members of the solar system and very close to us, as heavenly distances go. The stars are at immense distances from us, and they are radiant furnaces of blazing light.

The light of the distant stars is bent and scattered somewhat as it comes through our atmosphere. This is why stars seem to sparkle and twinkle. The light from the nearby planets does not twinkle. The quickest way to tell a planet from a star is to notice whether it twinkles or sparkles. If it shines with a steady light, it is a planet.

Revolves Around Earth Twice

If you use a telescope, you see the stars as tiny points of light. But a telescope shows a planet as a round disc. If the telescope is sharp enough you may see surface markings on the faces of Mars and Jupiter and the golden rings that circle the planet Saturn. But you see no features on the face of a star.

Each planet travels at its own speed around its own orbit. Mercury completes its orbit in 88 earth-days, Venus completes one orbit in 224 earth-days. The earth revolves around the sun almost twice while Mars is making only one revolution. The year of Jupiter is almost 12 earth-years long, and the year of Saturn is longer than 29 earth-years. As they travel their never-ending orbits, the planets seem to wander this way and that way across the background of fixed stars. If an object wanders from its position in the orderly parade of heavenly bodies, it is a planet.

Mercury and Venus are closer to the sun than we are. During a year they move from one side to the other side of the sun. For awhile golden Venus appears in the east at dawn and plays the role of the morning star. Mercury is too close to the sun for normal observation. The distant planets, Jupiter and Saturn, take several years to wander back and forth through the constellations as they complete their long orbits around the sun.

PROPOSED $30 MILLION FREEWAY SYSTEM
. . . to cope with 250,000 people, 90,000 cars by 1981

24 TOO MUCH

Bus Route Cuts Urged in Report

The radial system of bus routes in Greater Victoria could be modified, the Capital Region Planning Board's transportation study suggested today.

As suitable cross-town streets are built, buses could use them to improve coverage and reduce the number of radial routes.

At present, B.C. Hydro has 24 routes, all of which come into the downtown area.

The report said 24 routes "is a rather high number when compared with other cities." There was duplication as the routes converged.

The bus service also extends into thinly-populated areas producing low passenger revenue while requiring substantial route mileage.

REDUCE SERVICE

Where population decreases below a certain level, bus usage declines to a point where service no longer is economically feasible, the report said.

Elimination or reduction of service in such areas would improve service in more densely-populated areas and might increase bus patronage.

The study found that of the average number of trips made each day by all persons was about 315,000, of which only 10.7 per cent was on buses.

Transit trends in Greater Victoria and other parts of North America showed a continuing decline in patronage. As long as car ownership increased, it could be assumed transit riding would decline.

BUSES EFFECTIVE

The report emphasized, however, that transit is effective in keeping traffic volumes down and is vital for those without cars.

Other types of transit travel such as rail, monorail and conveyor were ruled out because they needed very high density population to justify the expense of installation.

"It is unlikely that Victoria ever will develop to this extent and the transit system will therefore have to remain bus oriented," the report said.

ONE-WAY STREETS, NEW BRIDGE URGED

Four pairs of one-way streets in the city were recommended in a traffic study issued today.

Quadra would serve southbound traffic with Vancouver taking the northbound load in a plan envisioned by the Capital Region Planning Board's transportation study.

Bay would be one-way west with Queens running east; Pandora would be west and Johnson east, and Wharf south and Government north to Pandora.

The one-way routes would require changes, including a new bridge across Rock Bay.

The report also recommended changes in the timing of traffic signals to provide smoother flow of vehicles.

EXTRA 4,000

More Parking Downtown

An extra 4,000 parking spaces will be needed in downtown Victoria by 1981, a traffic study indicated today.

These spaces will be required because of projected increases in commercial acreage and floor space, said the Capital Region Planning Board's transportation study.

The report said thought should be given to the fact that new buildings will replace vacant land now used for parking.

Precise locations for new parking areas would depend on a detailed study by city officials.

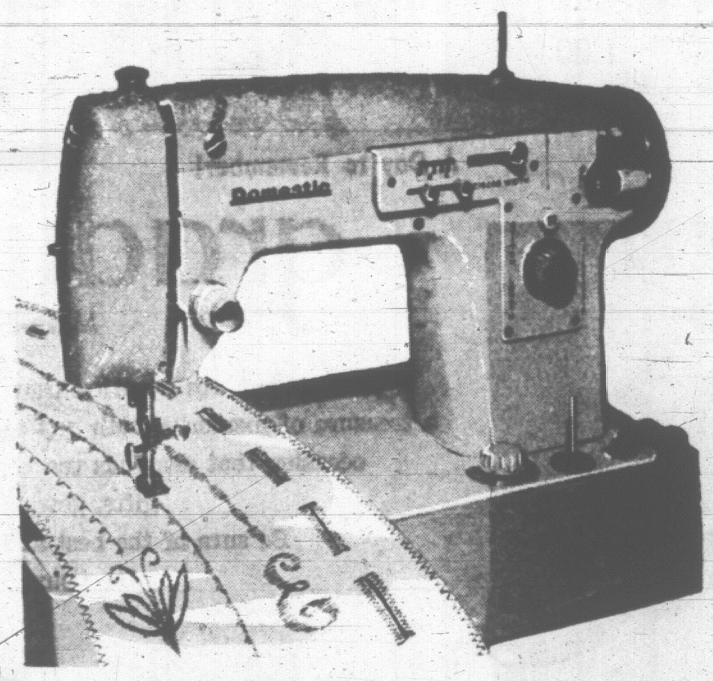

The report studied an area bounded roughly by Humboldt, Quadra, Cormorant and the waterfront and found 5,605 parking spaces, all but 1,319 of them off the street.

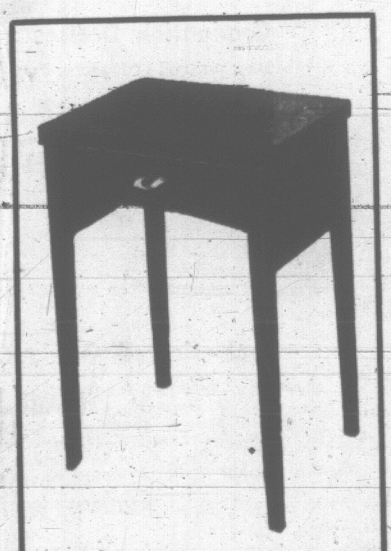

U.S. Pavilion Set

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States pavilion at Expo 67 in Montreal will be a 20-storey steel and plastic dome costing about $4,000,000, it was revealed today. The dome will be the work of American architect R. SALARY FIGHT

Health Officer Seeks Increase

Victoria's medical health officer Wednesday made a determined, single-handed request for a $2,383 salary increase.

Aldermen facing formidable 1965 budget estimates resisted with equal vigor before deferring action on the salary of senior medical officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

Mayor R. B. Wilson spotted a $10,000 hike in what health department salaries cost last year in the proposed $18,785 salary bill.

He also noted more than $2,300 over the $14,640 Dr. Whitbread received as basic salary in 1964.

"How has this been arrived at?" the mayor asked.

Dr. Whitbread referred back to the origin of Metro Health, when it was agreed that nursing salaries would be hinged to the provincial government scale and medical health officer to the salary of a divisional director of the provincial health branch.

SAME SALARY

"When I came over I was on the same salary as a regional director," Dr. Whitbread said.

The doctor asks for $17,023 as 1965 salary, which would be slightly more than that of a medical specialist in the provincial field.

He said the Vancouver medical health officer gets $19,200; "a man with basic qualifications in the provincial health branch received $13,080 in 1964; with a health diploma he gets $14,220, and with certification as a specialist he gets $15,300.

COMPLETES TRAINING

That will be what Dr. Whitbread's deputy, Dr. G. P. Evans, will get next year when he completes post-graduate training.

Dr. Evans would then be earning more than his superior, Dr. Whitbread said.

A medical specialist in the provincial branch is entitled to $16,980, Dr. Whitbread said.

"I would like my salary brought up to a medical specialist or a provincial divisional director."

He said he had been assured that a "federal health grant to cover the increase would be approved."

City manager Dennis Young said the deputy health minister gets only $18,000 a year. "Responsibilities of the deputy minister of health would appear to be extensive compared to yours, doctor," the manager said.

MORE RESPONSIBILITIES

Dr. Whitbread said he received $1,000 a month when he took the post in 1961. Because it is a metro area, the responsibilities are more involved than in smaller areas.

Mayor Wilson noted that the requested increase is 15 per cent.

Mr. Young said the doctor got a salary adjustment just over a year ago.

This was "still not as much as a provincial medical specialist," Dr. Whitbread replied.

Mr. Young said the committee should not be "deluded by these federal health grants. We should still look at these things in the light of their propriety."

Dr. Whitbread is allowed a $600 car allowance and $200 incidental expenses per year. In addition, he gets fringe benefits such as pension payments which bring his total salary request up to $19,300.

'Weird Pair' Unite

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alan Best, curator of the Stanley Park Zoo, expressed surprise Wednesday when a female Humbolt penguin paired with a Galapagos penguin laid two eggs. "These two are really a weird pair — in the first place you don't usually get eggs until June and in the second place I have never heard of this kind of crossing of the species," said Best. "I don't really know what the score is."

Man Hangs For Rights Bomb Death

PRETORIA (AP) — Frederick J. Harris, a white opponent of South Africa's racial laws, was hanged today for the death of a white woman killed in the bombing of the main Johannesburg railway station last year.

Harris, a 27-year-old teacher, had been chairman of South Africa's non-racial Olympics committee and campaigned publicly against apartheid in sports. His particular target was the exclusion of non-whites from South African Olympic teams.

He admitted planting the bomb in the station concourse during an evening rush hour in protest against the apartheid policy of racial segregation. The court rejected his plea of temporary insanity.

In the bombing an elderly white woman was fatally injured and several white adults and children were badly hurt.

FREIGHTER AGROUND ON SAN JUAN ISLAND

VANCOUVER (CP) RCAF rescue officials reported here today the 25,000-ton freighter Olympic Palm went aground about 11:30 a.m., PST, on Orcas Island, in the San Juan Islands, about 45 miles south of here.

The spokesman said the 571-foot vessel en route from Port Alberni, B.C., apparently struck heavily and was resting about ten feet above the waterline. There were no reports of any injuries.

Island Tug and Barge Limited dispatched two tugs to the scene.

$30 Million Freeway Plan Proposed for Area Traffic

LONG, DRY SPELL in Victoria meant earlier-than-usual growth on Beacon Hill Park's famed Fruit Salad tree. "Only in Victoria could the fruit be so well advanced by April 1," says park stroller Miss C. S. Dench of Rose Manor. A retired school teacher who taught for many years in Alaska, Miss Dench predicted a fine tourist season. Early tourists told The Times the spring crop bears out the Bennett government claims about B.C. and makes them believe all its other claims on April Fool's Day.

Senators Give Nod To Pension

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate passed the Canada Pension Plan bill today.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate banking committee has approved the Canada Pension Plan and was to send it back to the Senate for third reading, usually a formality, this afternoon.

After questioning Health Minister Judy LaMarsh and Revenue Minister Benson for three quarters of an hour this morning on various aspects of the bill, the committee voted to report it without amendment.

It was probably the last time Miss LaMarsh will have to answer searching questions about the pension plan before it becomes law.

The health minister, who piloted the plan through most of its stormy passage through the Commons, wound up her brief statement to the senators by saying she believes the pension legislation is "only one half of the apple."

An increased program of social assistance to those who did not come under the contributory pension plan was the other half.

PLANNED INCREASES

She said the government planned to make further increases in the flat-rate old age security pension, should conditions demand it.

The flat-rate pension, now $75 a month for everyone 70 and over, will apply to everyone 65 and over by 1970.

Miss LaMarsh also told the committee Canada could overcome poverty. "We don't have to accept the inevitability of the poor anymore."

Report Urges More Parking

By ROGER STONEBANKS

A $30 million freeway program for Greater Victoria was recommended today in a massive report on transportation needs.

In addition, $14 million should be spent on a number of east-west extensions and other improvements, the report states.

The recommenations were made by a Toronto consulting company hired by the Captital Region Planning Board two years ago.

The 116-page report was received this afternoon by the board at a special meeting in city hall.

The improvements were recommended to cope with a 76 per cent increase in vehicle trips expected by 1981.

See Map, Stories on Page 45

As well as freeways, the report also recommends four pairs of one-way streets in the city; an additional 4,000 parking spaces in downtown Victoria, and a modification of all bus routes.

The 15.5-mile freeway system would replace the Patricia Bay Highway south of Telegraph Road in Central Saanich and the Trans-Canada Highway east of Thetis Lake.

A third freeway would run from James Bay across a bridge over the Inner Harbor linking with the Patricia Bay Freeway in the Douglas-Cloverdale area.

Would Parallel Present Route

The Pat Bay Freeway would roughly parallel the existing road and finish at the Blanshard Street extension now being built.

The Trans-Canada Highway would depart from the existing road at Portage Inlet and join the Pat Bay Freeway in the Douglas-McKenzie area.

All the freeways would be four lanes except on the Pat Bay route between the Trans-Canada and Victoria West interchanges where it would be six lanes.

Beyond Telegraph Road, the report recommended widening the Pat Bay Highway to four lanes with control of driveway access.

The report said realignment of the existing Pat Bay Highway where a freeway is proposed would generally parallel the existing route.

This created the least disruption in existing land use and accomplished the basic requirement for a safer, high speed and high capacity road.

Cost of this freeway was estimated at $9.1 million and the route could be built from interchange to interchange from the south to allow traffic to use finished portions.

Widening Proposal Ruled Out

The report rejected rerouting the highway west of Elk Lake or through Cordova Bay or widening the existing route.

Widening was ruled out first because it would not provide satisfactory service nor provide for future capacity.

The Elk Lake rerouting was ruled out because of rough ground and because the existing highway would still need to be widened to serve east coast needs.

The Cordova Bay route was ruled out because it would cost $10.9 million since the right-of-way passes through residential areas requiring removal of many homes.

The Trans-Canada Freeway would leave the existing highway at Portage Inlet and link up with the Patricia Bay Freeway in the Douglas-McKenzie area.

A better facility was needed than exists at present and the new route would fit in with freeway and arterial road development.

The report said many streets are running at practical capacities. Routes from the west were saturated while those from the north and east were running at 74 to 89 per cent of capacity.

It was projected the area's population would increase 50 per cent to 248,800 persons in 1981, while the number of cars would rise to 90,600 from 48,700 in 1963.

Freeways provide rapid and safe travel, the report said, and by removing access traffic enable other streets to perform their functions.

Minimum Speed In Peak Times

Over-all speeds of 35 to 60 miles an hour should be possible and there should be minimum speeds of 35 miles an hour during peak periods.

In rural areas, freeways would have wide centres and landscaping. In urban areas their level would be depressed where possible.

Four-lane freeways can carry up to 50,000 vehicles a day with six lines handling 70,000.

The 1963 traffic flow on the proposed six-lane freeway area was 25,000 vehicles a day.

The report said arterial highways should be co-ordinated with freeways to distribute traffic to and from local streets.

There was a lack of cross-town roads north of Hillside and

Birmingham Mayor Threatened By Bomb: Negro Home Blasted

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A dynamite bomb damaged a Negro home today and two other bombs were disarmed at the homes of Mayor Albert Boutwell and city councilwoman Nina Miglionico.

Police cars were dispatched immediately to the homes of the eight other council members.

The bomb at Miss Miglionico's house was found on the second step of her front porch by her father when he came out to get the morning paper. Police said he reached inside the box containing the bomb and ripped the timing mechanism.

Police who were dispatched to the mayor's house about a mile away found a bomb at the side of the brick structure. Officers disarmed it.

There was no warning, no threats of the bombing of the residence of Negro accountant T. L. Crowell across town from the mayor's home.

His son, Weymouth, 13, was treated for a cut head.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

"My little boy, he was crying," said the frightened mother, an elementary school teacher. "They took him to the hospital. He was bleeding, but he was more frightened than hurt."

It was the first actual bombing in Birmingham since Sept. 24 1963, when a shrapnel explosive hurled bolts and pieces of metal over a wide area in a quiet Negro neighborhood. Only a few days before, a bomb killed four Negro children attending Sunday school in the 16th Street Baptist Church. Two other Negroes died in the violent aftermath.

WALLACE SAYS FIEND LOOSE IN ALABAMA

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. George Wallace today branded the bombing of a Negro home and the attempted dynamiting of two official residences as the work of a 'fiend" and offered a $5,000 reward for information leading to arrests.

The governor said he hoped other citizens would add to the reward and make it more than $100,000 to entice someone to come forward to disclose information.

Johnson Inherits Top Crisis

Nothing of importance has turned out as John F. Kennedy, the international statesman, had hoped, writes Bruce Hutchison in a new series of articles starting in today's Times.

His successor, Lyndon B. Johnson, has "inherited a crisis even larger than Lincoln's since it embraces all mankind." The United States, with all its power, no longer controls the times or the revolution convulsing them, Mr. Hutchison notes. As a result of this there is frustration and disillusion in Washington, a "sense of loneliness and abandonment."

Mr. Hutchison's intimate and penetrating reports from Washington begin today on Page 5.

Friday End Predicted For Session

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Prorogation of the second session of the 26th parliament—the longest in Canada's history—now appeared certain for Friday.

The Senate passed the Canada Pension Plan through its banking committee with little difficulty Thursday morning. It was sent back to the upper house for third reading this afternoon.

The "opting out" legislation will then be taken up by the senate. It too may be sent to a committee but indications were that it would pass the senate in short order.

Meantime in the Commons interim supply was expected to be concluded today or Friday at the latest. The MPs may wind up their business to take off a few hours Friday waiting for the senate to complete its business then prorogation could take place Friday night.

The government hopes to open the third session Monday with the throne speech.

17 Neutrals Issue Appeal On Viet Nam

(Times News Services)

WASHINGTON — Seventeen neutralist nations formally appealed today for both sides in the Viet Nam conflict to enter negotiations "without prior conditions."

A copy of the written appeal, drafted at a conference of non-aligned nations at Belgrade, March 15, was handed to Secretary of State Dean Rusk today by the ambassadors of Afghanistan, Ghana, Ethiopia and Yugoslavia.

The group expressed "deep concern" over "the ever worsening dangerous situation in Viet Nam."

Rusk promised that the United States would "consider profoundly and seriously this appeal."

However, there was no sign that the Southeast Asia struggle was actually headed for the conference table. U.S. officials said North Viet Nam has yet to show it intends to abandon its attacks on the south—and without such intent by Hanoi, peace talks would be worthless.

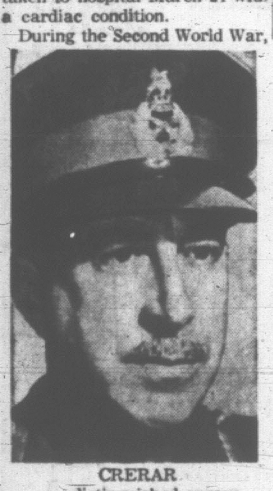

The same appeal was being presented by the countries to Britain, Russia, France, Red China, North and South Viet Nam, Poland, Canada, the Communist national liberation front in South Viet Nam, and to United Nations Secretary General U Thant."

Wartime Commander General Crerar Dies

OTTAWA (CP)—Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, 76, commander of the 1st Canadian Army in the Second World War, died here today.

Gen. Crerar had been in ill health for some time. He was taken to hospital March 24 with a cardiac condition.

During the Second World War, Gen. Henry Duncan Graham Crerar became the first Canadian general to command Canadian forces in the field. In the First World War, as a young lieutenant, he fought through the Battle of Ypres, surviving the gas attack launched by the Germans in April, 1915.

CRERAR

He retired from the army in 1946 when he was 57 years old. His 35 years in the army had been climaxed by the Second World War, during which he emerged as the most distinguished military leader in Canada's history.

Gen. Crerar, a native of Hamilton, had won the Distinguished Service Order and the Military Cross in the First World War. In the Second World War he was made a Companion of Honor and Company of the Order of the Bath. From the United States he received the Legion of Merit and the Distinguished Service Medal; from France, the Legion d'Honneur and Croix de Guerre avec palme; from The Netherlands, the Grand Cross of the Order of Orange Nassau with swords.

SPECTACULAR SHOW FIRST THOUGHT TO BE METEOR SHOWER

Northwest Sky Lighted Up by Satellite's Return

A flaming ball which streaked across Western Canada Wednesday night was almost certainly a U.S. space satellite.

Officials were still trying to confirm the satellite's landing at press time.

They believe it to be satellite 48a which was due to enter the earth's atmosphere between 11 a.m. Wednesday and 11 a.m. Friday.

At first it was believed the bright ball of fire was a large meteorite.

It streaked across Western Canada travelling from north-east to south-west.

In it's wake it left shooting flames and explosions which kept police and an astrophysical observatory switchboards busy with calls from bewildered people wanting to know what had happened.

Dr. Kenneth Wright, of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, Victoria, said the object appeared to have landed in the vicinity of Vernon.

Today aircraft were being used to aid ground searchers in tracing wreckage of the missile.

Meanwhile official phone calls between the Queen Elizabeth Planetarium, Edmonton, Washington and New York, tried to establish for certain if satellite 48a had definitely come down.

Dr. Wright said the object appeared to be taking the same track the satellite was to have taken.

He estimated speed at the point of landing to be in the region of 360,000 miles an hour.

On its passage across Canada the ball showered sparks across the countryside, lit up areas in its path and reportedly exploded on several occasions.

Dr. Wright said the explosions would probably be caused by pieces splitting off under intense heat and pressure.

The flashing, streaking object was reported from areas as far apart as Kamloops, across the Okanagan and the Kootenays in the southeast to Fort St. John in the north. It was also spotted from Nanaimo and in parts of Washington and Idaho.

It was not seen in Victoria due to overcast skies.

In some cases observers reported rumblings which shook houses, rattled windows and made lighting fixtures swing.

The satellite was launched last year from the U.S. Air Force base at Vandenburg, Calif.

LONDON — A teen-ager asked Britain's Prince Philip Wednesday if he would like to "chuck it all" and retire to a desert island.

The Prince, with a grin, said he wouldn't.

The question was one of many put to Queen Elizabeth's husband by four teen-agers in the BBC radio program "Let's Find Out" which will be broadcast on Sunday.

The Prince also was asked about his travels, his schooldays and the role of the monarchy in a democracy.

One teen-ager said later, when asked about the Duke's reaction to the desert island question: "He gave the impression that he enjoys his role tremendously, and the last thing he would want would be to be on a desert island."

PARIS — The West German airline Lufthansa proudly embarked its passengers at Orly airport here today for its inaugural Boeing 727 Paris-Frankfurt flight.

But the driver of a tarmac bus thought the Boeing's wing was higher than the bus. It wasn't.

The Boeing will be in the hangars for three days for repair of the damaged wing. The inaugural flight passengers were transferred to another airline (Air France) for their trip to Frankfurt.

LONDON — Smellovision has arrived, said Professor Samuel Tolansky on a BBC television program Wednesday night as he fed coffee beans and sliced onions into a complicated scientific apparatus.

He urged viewers to position themselves in front of their sets and take a deep sniff. Those who smelled the odors should tell the BBC not later than midday today.

Dozens of viewers fell for the April Fool's Day gag. One even called the BBC to congratulate it for its "historic transmission of smell."

CAMBRIDGE, Eng. — The biggest critics of birth control pills for women are men, a Cambridge University scientist said today.

And the reason may be that men dislike the idea of women being free to enjoy sexual intercourse at all times, Professor Alan Parkes, 64, said.

"Almost all the hostile comment on this tremendous advance has come from men—who do not carry the baby. Their instincts may well have been offended by the idea of women being given a biological carte blanc for intercourse," he said.

FARCET, Eng. — Residents of this Huntingdonshire village are up in arms because the local vicar sent out Easter greeting cards asking for help in paying his gasoline bills.

On the foot of the colorful cards sent by the Rev. William Maloney was this postscript:

"Do you know that by ancient custom all collections on Easter Day are given to the vicar? Now don't tell me you thought I was paid by the state.

"This is a good opportunity for you to help me to pay my petrol bills."

Recipients of the cards said they were "insulting" and "saucy."

But the vicar was unrepentant.

"I had something to say and I don't give a damn who is annoyed," he said.

Windsor Couple Attend Service For Princess

LONDON (UPI) — The Duke and Duchess of Windsor today attended a memorial service in Westminster Abbey for the Princess Royal. It was their first public appearance in Britain since he abdicated 29 years ago.

A large crowd standing outside the abbey cheered the former King Edward VIII and his American-born duchess as they arrived in a chauffeur-driven maroon Rolls-Royce.

At the same time, Queen Elizabeth II led other members of the royal family to the private funeral of the princess, her aunt, near Leeds. The Princess Royal was the duke's only sister. She died Sunday.

The duke, who is recovering from three eye operations, was forbidden by his doctors to travel to Leeds for the funeral. He and his wife were the only members of the royal family among the crowd of 2,500 at Westminster Abbey. Other mourners included Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Lady Churchill, Sir Winston Churchill's widow, who celebrated her 80th birthday today.

VISIT ENGLAND

The duke abdicated the throne in 1936 to marry the duchess, a divorcee. Since then they have lived in exile abroad, visiting England occasionally but never taking part in official ceremonies where her lack of status as a "royal highness" would have been evident.

The problem did not arise today, as they were the sole representatives of the royal family. Court experts said their attendance did not affect her standing. But it was seen as another indication that they might soon end their self-imposed exile from Britain and return here to live.

The funeral was held in a tiny church near Harewood House, home of the princess' elder son, Earl Harewood, where she collapsed and died last Sunday. She was 67.

HOME GARDEN

Bait Those Slugs To Save Delphiniums

By JACK BEASTALL

The delphinium ranks high with most gardeners, for the variety of color and magnificence of the spikes far excel the meagre specimens that satisfied our grandparents.

Hilda

The colors, rather than the size, are their greatest attraction, the astonishing range of blues, the shot silk mixtures of blue or lavender and pink, and the lovely whites with their black centres looking at you so seriously.

The evolution of our garden hybrids remains a mystery, for the delphinium is so widely distributed over the globe that nobody is quite sure where or when the first hybrid appeared.

In the wild the plants range from California to Tibet and China, over the Alps and eastward into Russia, Persia, Kashmir, Sikim, up the foothills of the Himalayas and down into Abyssinia and Kenya.

Their trail covers half the globe, but these wildings bear little resemblance to the delphiniums of our gardens.

Nor are we gardeners the only lovers of delphiniums. Slugs believe the young shoots to be the finest spring delicacy their palates can encounter.

Little wonder that gardeners so often report their delphiniums are not producing spring growth. The growths were there, and so were the slugs, but the gardener was not present with the metaldehyde bait, which to a slug, surpasses the most succulent delphinium.

Burial will be in Royal Oak Burial Park. Flowers are declined.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, APRIL 1, 1965—PAGE 23

Arthur Mayse

The other day I heard a story about a Pearson Liberal who found himself seated at a banquet cheek-by-jowl with a Diefenbaker Tory.

"I was willing to be civil as long as he didn't start something," the Whig reported later. "But when the so-and-so asked for the salt, I couldn't help passing him the pepper."

Well, as a newspaperman who likes to hear those presses rumble, my attitude toward radio is somewhat similar.

I have worked alongside some excellent radio hands, and there are programs I like. But even though I risk being clobbered with a steam iron, I can extend only qualified sympathy to a certain voice which has, for the moment at least, been muted if not stilled.

In the main, I think Pat Burns offered to his listeners, especially those busy at housewifery and cut off from family voices through their workday, an interesting diversion.

At his best, he was a keen interviewer, a bright and lively commentator, and a gifted master of ceremonies. I listened to many of his evening shows and enjoyed them.

Fairer than that, I cannot be. But to the several of you who have asked me to help crown the martyr with a lament from this corner, the answer must be no. Instead, I find my fingers reaching for the pepper.

★ ★ ★

At his worst—and I have heard him on those occasions, too—Pat Burns offered fare which only the ignorant and the bigoted could stomach.

On those occasions, the performance to which he lent his name and gifts could be matched only at a party one stage before the cops are called.

There was bullying of the weak, befogged and besotted.

There was such name-calling as even our most unpruned legislator wouldn't get away with.

There were vast, sweeping, fatheaded generalities. All lawyers crooked . . . all doctors grasping . . . all preachers phony . . . and, of course, that oft-repeated bromide, all newspapers unreliable.

None of this made good hearing, and because of it, regretfully, I can't quarrel with the decision of Mr. Burns' employers not to renew his contract.

I hope, however (and here I risk being felled with a newsroom typewriter) that he is able to make a comeback when he has mended the ways that were doing his communications medium a grave disservice.

This suggestion, I offer along with the pepper: Let the cooled hotliner quit his jumping up and down, and listen quietly for a spell while his radio colleague Barry Clark demonstrates how an audience-participation program should be handled.

★ ★ ★

Few things get my dander up quicker than to see some speaker or publication trample outrageously on truth and decency, then scurry to shelter behind freedom of speech or freedom of the press.

Both are stained with the blood of martyrs — real martyrs—and came too hard to be invoked frivolously.

Mr. Burns, who is to write for a Vancouver newspaper, would do himself and the senior communications partner a service by keeping this in mind. Cold type isn't hot air, and press freedom is not to be confused with licence.

Newsmen are jealous of that freedom, and on all good papers, gladly accept the responsibilities that go with it. One of these is constant internal policing.

Even though Mr. Burns has insisted otherwise, we have no cause to be ashamed of the job we perform.

In this matter of internal policing, I am glad to note that the station which has created a teapot tempest by choosing not to renew, has pulled up its socks.

I was listening a while ago; and it struck me that a show which had become pretty sick has done a commendable job of mending its health.

Mrs. Kuhn . . . "Dad wouldn't want people to pay."

'Go After Grabbers' Of Famed Vessel; Protests Pouring In

By PETE LOUDON

The Keep-Tillikum-Free campaign billowed ahead today in a strong breeze of public support.

And one of the loudest objections to the plan to display the famed vessel for a fee, came from the daughter of the man who sailed her across three oceans—Mrs. B. F. Kuhn of Portland, Oregon.

Mrs. Kuhn told The Times by telephone that her father, the late John Voss would have objected to the transfer of his boat from Thunderbird Park to the new Maritime Musuem.

"I know my Dad wouldn't have approved. He wouldn't want people to have to pay," said Mrs. Kuhn.

She said she is going to write to Victoria City Council protesting the move and she will join city tour bus operator G. R. "Rebel" Mowat in his suggestion that Tilikum be shown free of charge in the proposed provincial centennial museum, when it is built, free of charge.

"That would be wonderful."

AWFUL SORRY

She said she was "awful sorry" to hear about the transfer of the vessel. She said she hopes to visit Victoria this summer and to meet Mr. Mowat.

Meanwhile Mr. Mowat said he received 100 letters from Victorians Wednesday and has added about 500 names to the petition he will send to city council.

"Go after the grabbers," "Keep up the good work" the letter writers told him. He said much of his mail came from "older people in good areas."

STORE OFFERS SPACE

Mr. Mowat said Metropolitan Stores has offered him the use of their doorway for collection of signatures.

Noted sportsman Dave Sadler, retired after 25 years in the navy, has volunteered to take names there Saturday.

Henry Hunt, well-known Indian carver, has offered to collect signatures from local Indians. The dugout was made by local tribes 105 years ago.

Mr. Mowat said G. M. Horton of Eatons offered use of the store's main doorway for collection of signatures and told him, "I believe you are doing a real service."

SAME OFFER

Woodward's manager Courtney Haddock made the same offer and said, "It's good that somebody is making a fight about this."

Wilson and Lenfesty Ltd. offered to take up a petition for Mr. Mowat also.

"The business people are supporting me. I've got some of the finest signatures you would want to see," said Mr. Mowat.

The dugout Tilikum has been openly displayed at two locations in Victoria, latterly at Thunderbird Park, for 35 years.

PAY ADMISSION

Suddenly this month it was moved to the Maritime Museum which now is moving into the old courthouse, where it will be necessary to pay admission to see it.

Mr. Mowat says the city owns the vessel, and the donors, a London yacht club, said in 1930 that it must never be other than a free exhibit. Mr. Mowat objected to Tilikum's removal by provincial authorities, without recourse to the city.

He says if it must be preserved under cover it should be kept in a provincial museum where there is no door charge.

BCHIS Paid Ambulance Next Year?

It will be at least another year before the government takes over ambulance services for Vancouver and Victoria.

Health Minister Eric Martin told a delegation from Vancouver, Burnaby and New Westminster Wednesday that he would place their request, that ambulance services be brought under the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service, before the cabinet.

But he warned that the proposal, if approved, would require changes in provincial legislation which could not be affected until the next sitting of the legislature.

SIMILAR PLEA

For several years Victoria has made a similar plea to the government.

Mayor William Rathie, Vancouver, Mayor Stuart Gifford, New Westminster, and Reeve Alan Emmott, Burnaby, made up the delegation.

Mayor Rathie pointed out to the minister that the three municipalities subsidize ambulance services to the tune of $160,000 a year, yet ambulance trips still cost individuals $30 a call.

Saanich to Add 10 Policemen

Saanich Police Commission Wednesday night approved hiring of 10 additional constables and three dispatchers.

The new recruits will strengthen the force from 35 to 45 men.

Three have already been hired and one officer began work today. The other two will don uniforms April 15 and 30.

Remainder of the men will be hired throughout the year, police chief Bert Pearson said today.

EDUCATOR WANTS MORE INCENTIVES FOR STUDENTS

'Too Much Conformity' In Exams

By HUMPHRY DAVY

British Columbia's educational system is as good as any in Canada, in some cases better, but it would benefit by taking a few tips from European countries.

One of it's weaknesses is a tendency towards conformity in teaching. Another—it's less dramatically controlled than in Britain and some European countries.

These views come from scholarly Lloyd Brereton, 305 Windermere place, who has just completed a world-wide study on high school education systems and their influence on educational methods.

The study is the first of its kind to be made since 1930 when the Rockefeller Institute conducted a survey on the subject.

150 EXAMINERS

The educationist, a science-graduate from Cambridge University, was in charge of school examinations conducted by the university. He and his staff of 150 examiners were responsible for examining nearly 200,000 students from British Africa, Sudan, British West Indies, Malaysia, India and Pakistan on several school subjects.

Upon his retirement in 1961, he was granted a fellowship by the University of London to assist him in making a study of school examinations systems in other countries.

His findings are soon to be published in book form.

While Mr. Brereton is not prepared to say what country has the best educational system, he feels Canada should take a look at what's going on in Europe.

"The big problem in education is incentives—how to get our young people to apply themselves to education," he said.

EXAMS KEY

He has come to the conclusion that the key to the problem is in the school examination system.

"This is not the accepted view in Canada," he said. "Many people think examinations are a necessary evil. But I have found they have a profound effect on the whole education system — are the answers to incentives."

He said B.C. could improve its educational system by having as well as written, compulsory oral examinations.

"I'm certain if oral French examinations were conducted in schools, the standard of French would improve by leaps and bounds in Canada," he stated.

This has proved to be the case in Britain where both written and oral examinations are compulsory, he pointed out.

ORAL SECTION

He said the Scandinavian countries, Germany, France go one step further. They hold oral, as well as written examinations in social studies, literature and science.

"The results are that students in these countries can express themselves well in writing and in speech.

Mr. Brereton is dead against examining students by means of objective questions which is conducted on some subjects in Canada. Under this system, students merely fill in the right answers to a question.

His conclusions are that this system of testing influences the work throughout the school.

"Students become accustomed with only factual knowledge of a kind that can be tested by short questions," he stated. "It doesn't encourage them to organize their thoughts and to express themselves in prose.

"The only way to learn to write good English is to write and write," he added.

On this point, he said, he has the backing of many B.C. school teachers and the Chant report on education.

Mr. Brereton also took issue with the practice of tying teachers and high school students to a textbook on a certain subject.

RESEARCH PROJECTS

"This leads to a conformity of thought," he said. "All that a student has to do in order to do well in his examinations is to assimulate all the information in his textbook. He should be encouraged instead to look farther afield to undertake research projects."

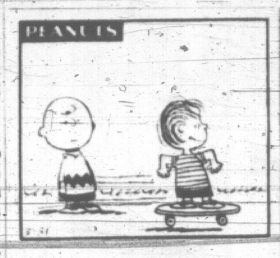

One of the things which surprised the educationalist in his study was to find that examinations in Britain and certain western European countries were more democratically controlled than in Canada.

"Teachers in B.C. have not sufficient voice in deciding what type of examinations are to be given," he said.

'Mini' Chaos Feared In Wage Negotiations

Aldermen Continue Paring '65 Budget

Joint Services in Greater Victoria could create chaos in wage negotiations for public servants, city comptroller James Bramley warned city aldermen considering estimates today.

He said without a single overriding authority to control the functions included in a regional district, which the province now has authority to declare, each body could conduct its wage negotiations independently.

The matter arose when the committee came to Public Library estimates of $353,000, an increase of $36,000 over 1964—a "healthy increase," Mayor R. B. Wilson observed.

"I have been increasingly concerned about boards of this nature and the fact that they are doing things in isolation," city manager Dennis Young said.

"In the last few years we have been trying to co-ordinate agreements in the Greater Victoria area and we have been overlooking things right under our nose," the manager said.

He pointed to the library board's recent agreement with janitors, resulting in the highest janitor wage rate in Greater Victoria.

Mr. Bramley said it had been customary until the last few years to cut major items from the library budget. But recently the proposed budgets have gone through unaltered.

The budget brought to committee makes no provision for branch libraries, which are proposed soon.

Mr. Bramley said the situation illustrates the danger in joint services administration, which prompted the mayor to observe that joint services board members will be faced with sitting nearly constantly to cope with proplems after a half dozen functions are included.

"Within five years it will become obvious to everyone that amalgamation will be necessary," Mr. Young said.

The committee trimmed $9,000 from sundry estimates, covering juvenile and family courts, juvenile detention home, police court, debt charges and other items totalling $2,272,000. This brings total debt reduction to $26,170.

When sessions began Wednesday, aldermen faced an $865,000 increase in spending, worth 7.4 mills.

More than half of it will have to be eliminated, the mayor said. "It looks as though we are going to have to get half a million out of this total somehow."

Fire In Flue Causes $5,000 Damage to Hotel

Fire in a kitchen exhaust flue caused $5,000 damage at the Strathcona Hotel Wednesday afternoon.

Crews from four fire rigs had the flash-fire under control 45 minutes after the call was received at 2:53 p.m. but remained on duty for a further five hours in case of further outbreaks.

The fire is believed to have started when grease deposits from food were ignited by a spark from a stove below the vent.

The flue, specially designed with a series of traps to trap grease particles, was rendered useless by the blaze.

Work crews are expected to have a new flue installed by tonight and the kitchen back in operation late this evening or early Friday.

The only damage to the hotel was caused when firemen were forced to hack through the wall of a first-storey suite to get at the seat of the blaze.

It was not necessary to evacuate guests.

Youth Admits Thefts Totalling Nearly $700

A 17-year-old youth pleaded guilty in city court today to three break-ins involving theft of cigarettes and cash totalling nearly $700.

Phillip R. Issacson, 154 St. Lawrence, was remanded to April 9 for pre-sentence report and sentence.

City police juvenile officer Joseph Barlow testified Issacson stole 25 cartons of cigarettes valued at $85 from Smith's grocery store, 159 Menzies St., March 7.

Shortly before midnight he forced a side door of premises next door to gain entry, court was told.

TOOK BICYCLE

He then took a bicycle to make his gateaway, cached the merchandise in a lumber pile at Ogden Point and threw the bicyle into the water.

He sold the cigarettes to friends and none have been recovered.

March 18 he stole $42 in cash and $83 in cigarettes from the Shopping Basket Ltd., 1274 May St. He entered the rear of the store by forcing a window with a pair of bolt cutters.

He again hid the loot at Ogden Point but it was gone when he went back the next day, the officer testified.

He and a companion raided a third grocer March 21, stealing 151 cartons of cigarettes valued at $486 from Carlyle's store, 148 Superior St.

They broke a rear window in an adjacent shop to gain entry through a side door.

In court today Issacson denied strewing icing sugar and ink about the premises.

The cigarettes were recovered by police in a vacant store next to his residence.

Topics of the Day

Thieves early this morning got little for their trouble when they broke into a building at Mattick's Farm, 5325 Cadboro Bay Road.

A popcorn machine was smashed open and the coin box, containing about $3 in nickles and dimes, was stolen.

Entry was gained by smashing the window of a door at the rear of the building.

Crowds attending the Spring Flower Festival will be boosted by 125 pilots and passengers of small aircraft planning a fly-in April 17.

Mike Sealey, manager of the Victoria Flying Club, said Wednesday that he is expecting at least 50 aircraft, all carrying several passengers, to participate.

Last year more than 40 aircraft joined the fly-in coming from many parts of B.C., Washington and Oregon.

Greater Victoria school board has accepted a tender of $223,800 from Patterson Construction Ltd., Victoria, for a 10-room addition to Colquitz Junior High School.

The architect's estimate was $217,665. Other tenders were E. J. Hunter and Son, $239,875; Wakeman and Trimble, $240,686, and G. H. Wheaton Ltd. $249,850.

A nine-year-old Saanich boy was taken to Jubilee Hospital Wednesday afternoon after he ran into the path of an oncoming car.

William James Hallam, 1265 Downham, suffered head and shoulder injuries but was reported in good condition today.

The accident took place on Union Avenue near Blenkinsop. Driver of the car was identified by police as Barbara N. Duker, 3291 Albion.

A driver was fined $100 in city police court today for failure to remain at an accident where he caused $30 damage.

Stanley Schwartz, 219 Howe, pleaded guilty to the charge.

He backed into a car on the first level of the city's Yates St. car park March 16, court was told.

Careless Drivers

In city police court today:

James R. Davies, 1039 Fort Bay Rd., collision March 16 while making left-hand turn at Oak Bay Ave. and Bank St., fined $40.

Clarence E. Bryan, 3228 Wicklow, collision March 17 at Bay and Government St., fined $40.

Stabbing Sentence Suspended

Magistrate William Ostler today in city court gave a two-year suspended sentence to a city woman charged with assaulting her husband with intent to wound him.

Mrs. Martha Davis, 201 Ontario Street, pleaded guilty to the charge March 24.

The magistrate asked her husband, Lewis, 46, if he was willing to take her back.

He replied emphatically he was.

"Your husband is very generous in this matter and it was not all his fault as you seem to think," he told the woman.

"It would have been a tragic paradox if you had killed him because I believe you both love each other.

"I believe you are a good woman, mother and housekeeper."

He suggested the couple "get closer together" and "talk things out more often."

Mrs. Davis was charged March 23 with stabbing her husband between the shoulder blades with a short, bone-handled hunting knife.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you please tell me how to cure a rabbit pelt? K.S.

A. There are several methods of doing this and here is one of them:

Take the fresh pelt and remove two layers of membrane. Cover the skin side of the pelt with salt and roll it up for 48 hours.

Next, wash the salt off in cold, soapy water and rinse well. Then roll the pelt up in a towel and leave it for several hours.

Next, lay the pelt on a flat surface and rub alum into it. Then sprinkle with alum and leave to dry. Wash out the alum and rub pelt until it is soft.

Further information can be obtained from the livestock branch of the provincial government's agriculture department.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem alone to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

THERE'S MORE TO SPRING CLEANING than meets the eye, especially when home happens to be the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory. Just the tiniest slip with this six-foot mirror would mean more than seven years bad luck—it would mean a $20,000 bill. The mirror was put back into place beneath the 72-inch telescope Wednesday after receiving a new coat of aluminum. Giving a last shine are technician Horace Draper and instrument maker James White. The public will get the benefit of the regular two-year overhaul when the observatory throws open its doors to them 8 to 10 p.m. every Saturday through to Nov. 30. Starting this Saturday they will get a chance to take a blown-up peek at the far-distant universe. Planets and stars will be magnified 250 times.

FREIGHTER AGROUND ON SAN JUAN ISLAND

Two Victoria-based tugs were racing to the grounded freighter Olympic Palm at press time.

The 21,729-ton vessel became stranded off Orcas Island in the San Juan group about 11:30 this morning. She was fully loaded, carrying 11 million board feet of lumber.

Going to her rescue are the Island Mariner and Island Monarch, towboats of Island Tug and Barge Ltd.

$30 Million Freeway Plan Proposed for Area Traffic

LONG, DRY SPELL in Victoria meant earlier-than-usual growth on Beacon Hill Park's famed Fruit Salad tree. "Only in Victoria could the fruit be so well advanced by April 1," says park stroller Miss C. S. Dench of Rose Manor. A retired school teacher who taught for many years in Alaska, Miss Dench predicted a fine tourist season. Early tourists told The Times the spring crop bears out the Bennett government claims about B.C. and makes them believe all its other claims on April Fool's Day.

Senators Give Nod To Pension

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate passed the Canada Pension Plan bill today.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate banking committee has approved the Canada Pension Plan and was to send it back to the Senate for third reading, usually a formality, this afternoon.

After questioning Health Minister Judy LaMarsh and Revenue Minister Benson for three quarters of an hour this morning on various aspects of the bill, the committee voted to report it without amendment.

It was probably the last time Miss LaMarsh will have to answer searching questions about the pension plan before it becomes law.

The health minister, who piloted the plan through most of its stormy passage through the Commons, wound up her brief statement to the senators by saying she believes the pension legislation is "only one half of the apple."

An increased program of social assistance to those who did not come under the contributory pension plan was the other half.

PLANNED INCREASES

She said the government planned to make further increases in the flat-rate old age security pension, should conditions demand it.

The flat-rate pension, now $75 a month for everyone 70 and over, will apply to everyone 65 and over by 1970.

Miss LaMarsh also told the committee Canada could overcome poverty. "We don't have to accept the inevitability of the poor anymore."

Report Urges More Parking

By ROGER STONEBANKS

A $30 million freeway program for Greater Victoria was recommended today in a massive report on transportation needs.

In addition, $14 million should be spent on a number of east-west extensions and other improvements, the report states.

The recommenations were made by a Toronto consulting company hired by the Captital Region Planning Board two years ago.

The 116-page report was received this afternoon by the board at a special meeting in city hall.

The improvements were recommended to cope with a 76 per cent increase in vehicle trips expected by 1981.

See Map, Stories on Page 45

As well as freeways, the report also recommends four pairs of one-way streets in the city; an additional 4,000 parking spaces in downtown Victoria, and a modification of all bus routes.

The 15.5-mile freeway system would replace the Patricia Bay Highway south of Telegraph Road in Central Saanich and the Trans-Canada Highway east of Thetis Lake.

A third freeway would run from James Bay across a bridge over the Inner Harbor linking with the Patricia Bay Freeway in the Douglas-Cloverdale area.

Would Parallel Present Route

The Pat Bay Freeway would roughly parallel the existing road and finish at the Blanshard Street extension now being built.

The Trans-Canada Highway would depart from the existing road at Portage Inlet and join the Pat Bay Freeway in the Douglas-McKenzie area.

All the freeways would be four lanes except on the Pat Bay route between the Trans-Canada and Victoria West interchanges where it would be six lanes.

Beyond Telegraph Road, the report recommended widening the Pat Bay Highway to four lanes with control of driveway access.

The report said realignment of the existing Pat Bay Highway where a freeway is proposed would generally parallel the existing route.

This created the least disruption in existing land use and accomplished the basic requirement for a safer, high speed and high capacity road.

Cost of this freeway was estimated at $9.1 million and the route could be built from interchange to interchange from the south to allow traffic to use finished portions.

Widening Proposal Ruled Out

The report rejected rerouting the highway west of Elk Lake or through Cordova Bay or widening the existing route.

Widening was ruled out first because it would not provide satisfactory service nor provide for future capacity.

The Elk Lake rerouting was ruled out because of rough ground and because the existing highway would still need to be widened to serve east coast needs.

The Cordova Bay route was ruled out because it would cost $10.9 million since the right-of-way passes through residential areas requiring removal of many homes.

The Trans-Canada Freeway would leave the existing highway at Portage Inlet and link up with the Patricia Bay Freeway in the Douglas-McKenzie area.

A better facility was needed than exists at present and the new route would fit in with freeway and arterial road development.

The report said many streets are running at practical capacities. Routes from the west were saturated while those from the north and east were running at 74 to 89 per cent of capacity.

It was projected the area's population would increase 50 per cent to 248,800 persons in 1981 while the number of cars would rise to 90,600 from 48,700 in 1963.

Freeways provide rapid and safe travel, the report said, and by removing access traffic enable other streets to perform their functions.

Minimum Speed In Peak Times

Over-all speeds of 35 to 60 miles an hour should be possible and there should be minimum speeds of 35 miles an hour during peak periods.

In rural areas, freeways would have wide centres and landscaping. In urban areas their level would be depressed where possible.

Four-lane freeways can carry up to 50,000 vehicles a day with six lines handling 70,000.

The 1963 traffic flow on the proposed six-lane freeway area was 25,000 vehicles a day.

The report said arterial highways should be co-ordinated with freeways to distribute traffic to and from local streets.

There was a lack of cross-town roads north of Hillside and

Birmingham Mayor Threatened By Bomb: Negro Home Blasted

WALLACE SAYS FIEND LOOSE IN ALABAMA

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. George Wallace today branded the bombing of a Negro home and the attempted dynamiting of two official residences as the work of a 'fiend" and offered a $5,000 reward for information leading to arrests.

The governor said he hoped other citizens would add to the reward and make it more than $100,000 to entice someone to come forward to disclose information.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A dynamite bomb damaged a Negro home today and two other bombs were disarmed at the homes of Mayor Albert Boutwell and city councilwoman Nina Miglionico.

Police cars were dispatched immediately to the homes of the eight other council members.

The bomb at Miss Miglionico's house was found on the second step of her front porch by her father when he came out to get the morning paper. Police said he reached inside the box containing the bomb and ripped the timing mechanism.

Police who were dispatched to the mayor's house about a mile away found a bomb at the side of the brick structure. Officers disarmed it.

There was no warning, no threats of the bombing of the residence of Negro accountant T. L. Crowell across town from the mayor's home.

His son, Weymouth, 13, was treated for a cut head.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

"My little boy, he was crying," said the frightened mother, an elementary school teacher. "They took him to the hospital. He was bleeding, but he was more frightened than hurt."

It was the first actual bombing in Birmingham since Sept. 24 1963, when a shrapnel explosive hurled bolts and pieces of metal over a wide area in a quiet Negro neighborhood. Only a few days before, a bomb killed four Negro children attending Sunday school in the 16th Street Baptist Church. Two other Negroes died in the violent aftermath.

WRECKS GARAGE

The blast at the Crowell home wrecked a garage in the rear. Police said the explosive had been placed on a concrete slab in the alley about 25 feet from the Crowell house. The garage

Johnson Inherits Top Crisis

Nothing of importance has turned out as John F. Kennedy, the international statesman, had hoped, writes Bruce Hutchison in a new series of articles starting in today's Times.

His successor, Lyndon B. Johnson, has "inherited a crisis even larger than Lincoln's since it embraces all mankind." The United States, with all its power, no longer controls the times or the revolution convulsing them, Mr. Hutchison notes. As a result of this there is frustration and disillusion in Washington, a "sense of loneliness and abandonment."

Mr. Hutchison's intimate and penetrating reports from Washington begin today on Page 5.

17 Neutrals Issue Appeal On Viet Nam

(Times News Services)

WASHINGTON — Seventeen neutralist nations formally appealed today for both sides in the Viet Nam conflict to enter negotiations "without prior conditions."

A copy of the written appeal, drafted at a conference of nonaligned nations at Belgrade, March 15, was handed to Secretary of State Dean Rusk today by the ambassadors of Afghanistan, Ghana, Ethiopia and Yugoslavia.

The group expressed "deep concern" over "the ever worsening dangerous situation in Viet Nam."

Rusk promised that the United States would "consider profoundly and seriously this appeal."

However, there was no sign that the Southeast Asia struggle was actually headed for the conference table. U.S. officials said North Viet Nam has yet to show it intends to abandon its attacks on the south—and without such intent by Hanoi, peace talks would be worthless.

The same appeal was being presented by the countries to Britain, Russia, France, Red China, North and South Viet Nam, Poland, Canada, the Communist national liberation front in South Viet Nam, and to United Nations Secretary General U Thant."

Friday End Predicted For Session

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Prorogation of the second session of the 26th parliament—the longest in Canada's history—now appeared certain for Friday.

The Senate passed the Canada Pension Plan through its banking committee with little difficulty Thursday morning. It was sent back to the upper house for third reading this afternoon.

The "opting out" legislation will then be taken up by the senate. It too may be sent to a committee but indications were that it would pass the senate in short order.

Meantime in the Commons interim supply was expected to be concluded today or Friday at the latest. The MPs may wind up their business to take off a few hours Friday waiting for the senate to complete its business then prorogation could take place Friday night.

The government hopes to open the third session Monday with the throne speech.

Wartime Commander General Crerar Dies

OTTAWA (CP)—Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, 76, commander of the 1st Canadian Army in the Second World War, died here today.

Gen. Crerar had been in ill health for some time. He was taken to hospital March 24 with a cardiac condition.

During the Second World War, Gen. Henry Duncan Graham Crerar became the first Canadian general to command Canadian forces in the field. In the First World War, as a young lieutenant, he fought through the Battle of Ypres, surviving the gas attack launched by the Germans in April, 1915.

CRERAR
. . . distinguished career

He retired from the army in 1946 when he was 57 years old. His 35 years in the army had been climaxed by the Second World War, during which he emerged as the most distinguished military leader in Canada's history.

Gen. Crerar, a native of Hamilton, had won the Distinguished Service Order and the Military Cross in the First World War. In the Second World War he was made a Companion of Honor and Company of the Order of the Bath. From the United States he received the Legion of Merit and the Distinguished Service Medal; from France, the Legion d'Honneur and Croix de Guerre avec palme; from The Netherlands, the Grand Cross of the Order of Orange Nassau with swords.

SPECTACULAR SHOW FIRST THOUGHT TO BE METEOR SHOWER

Northwest Sky Lighted Up by Satellite's Return

A flaming ball which streaked across Western Canada Wednesday night was almost certainly a U.S. space satellite.

Officials were still trying to confirm the satellite's landing at press time.

They believe it to be satellite 48a which was due to enter the earth's atmosphere between 11 a.m. Wednesday and 11 a.m. Friday.

At first it was believed the bright ball of fire was a large meteorite.

It streaked across Western Canada travelling from northeast to southwest.

In it's wake it left shooting flames and explosions which kept police and an astrophysical observatory switchboards busy with calls from bewildered people wanting to know what had happened.

Dr. Kenneth Wright, of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, Victoria, said the object appeared to have landed in the vicinity of Vernon.

Today aircraft were being used to aid ground searchers in tracing wreckage of the missile.

Meanwhile official phone calls between the Queen Elizabeth Planetarium, Edmonton, Washington and New York, tried to establish for certain if satellite 48a had definitely come down.

Dr. Wright said the object appeared to be taking the same track the satellite was to have taken.

He estimated speed at the point of landing to be in the region of 36,000 miles an hour.

On its passage across Canada the ball showered sparks across the countryside, lit up areas in its path and reportedly exploded on several occasions.

Dr. Wright said the explosions would probably be caused by pieces splitting off under intense heat and pressure.

The flashing, streaking object was reported from areas as far apart as Kamloops, across the Okanagan and the Kootenays in the southeast to Fort St. John in the north. It was also spotted from Nanaimo and in parts of Washington and Idaho.

It was not seen in Victoria due to overcast skies.

In some cases observers reported rumblings which shook houses, rattled windows and made lighting fixtures swing.

The satellite was launched last year from the U.S. Air Force base at Vandenburg, Calif.

Trouble with white-hot things flyin' through th' air these days—it allus might be somebody y' know.

INDIANS SAY NO, EXPERTS YES

Will Native Tongues Survive?

By HUMPHRY DAVY

B.C. native languages are very much alive in all parts of the province today but there is disagreement on their survival chances.

Anthropologists and linguists say the languages are here to stay, but most Indians think they will go the way of the Latin of ancient Rome.

★ ★ ★

The fate of the languages was raised recently in the legislature by Frank Calder, Indian MLA for Atlin. He predicted their disappearance in 50 years.

He asked for a greater effort by the department of education and universities in preserving records of the languages.

But a survey of Indian tongues spoken in B.C. today indicates there is no reason for alarm—at least not for the present. There are 23 languages still spoken.

Only three have died out and this occurred when the native population was at its lowest ebb between 1860 and the early 1920s.

In addition, Chinook jargon, a trade language formerly used by fur traders and Indians, is still spoken.

Experts like Wilson Duff, provincial anthropologist, say the languages won't die because the native population is now increasing rapidly.

"This means Indians will speak their languages more and more," he said.

But George Clutesi, a well-known Indian artist, claims the languages are spoken less and less by the younger generation.

"They can understand the language of their native tribe," he said, "but rarely speak it. I'm afraid they will die out."

Henry Hunt, chief carver at Thunderbird Park and Chief John Albany of the Songhees Indian reserve, say the languages will gradually disappear as more Indians move to cities to find jobs.

Mr. Hunt blames the lack of interest in Indian languages on an inferiority complex. It springs from the days when teachers punished native children for speaking their languages in schools.

Indians disagree on the fate of the Chinook jargon, once the international language spoken in B.C.

Indians on the east coast of Vancouver Island say it is dying out. The Nootkans on the west coast don't think so.

The Nootkans, who claim to have created the language, still teach it to their children.

Chinook is a colorful jargon and has enriched the English language. It was derived from words taken from languages of 26 tribes. To this was added a dash of English and French.

Here are some examples: Nika tikegh muckamuck chuck, which means "I want drink"; tenas kloochman toketie—pretty girl; mesika shugopoots—"you rattlesnake"; hum oppots humm—skunk smells.

Chinook words commonly used today include chuck (water); tillicum (friend); and potlatch (party).

The University of British Columbia for some time has been preserving records of the various tongues. The University of Victoria and the new University of Simon Fraser also plan to keep records.

Are they worth preserving?

"A language is a system of thought" said Mr. Duff. "It's also a human accomplishment differing from any other, and for this reason alone is worth saving."

CLUTESI

B.C. Indians Decimated By 1862 Smallpox Wave

The worst calamity to befall the Indians of British Columbia was the smallpox epidemic which broke out in Victoria in 1862, says Wilson Duff, anthropologist at the Provincial Museum.

"Within two years it had reached practically all parts of the province and killed about one-third of the native people," writes Mr. Duff in The Indian History of British Columbia, volume 1: The Impact of the White Man.

The natives were not only victims of white man's diseases, but also of his alcohol and gunpowder.

"Few Indians here, in comparison with other parts of the continent, were killed in battles with the white men.

"Along the coast there were a few small but spectacular massacres of the crews of trading ships, or of Indians attempting to capture them, and several bombardments of villages by naval vessels.

"The Indians' own tribal wars were quite another matter," says Mr. Duff. "The introduction of firearms made these much more lethal affairs, and the mortality rate, esplecially along the coast, came to be terribly high.

"It is difficult to gain an appreciation of the destructiveness of this warfare without going over, one by one, the traditional histories of each of the tribes:

"Murders, massacres to avenge them, and more massacres in retaliation form a constantly recurring pattern.

"Many small tribes were, in effect, exterminated. Some of the more powerful tribes, or alliances of tribes, embarked on contests of mutual annihilation. The wars continued without abatement into the 1860s."

Mr. Duff said 20 per cent of the deaths among Indians today are caused by accidents—drowning, alcohol, fire, car mishaps, poisoning and falls.

JUDY CONSIDERS BAN ON CBC CIGARETTE ADS

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Judy LaMarsh told the Commons Wednesday she is considering asking the CBC to stop broadcasting cigarette commercials on television and radio.

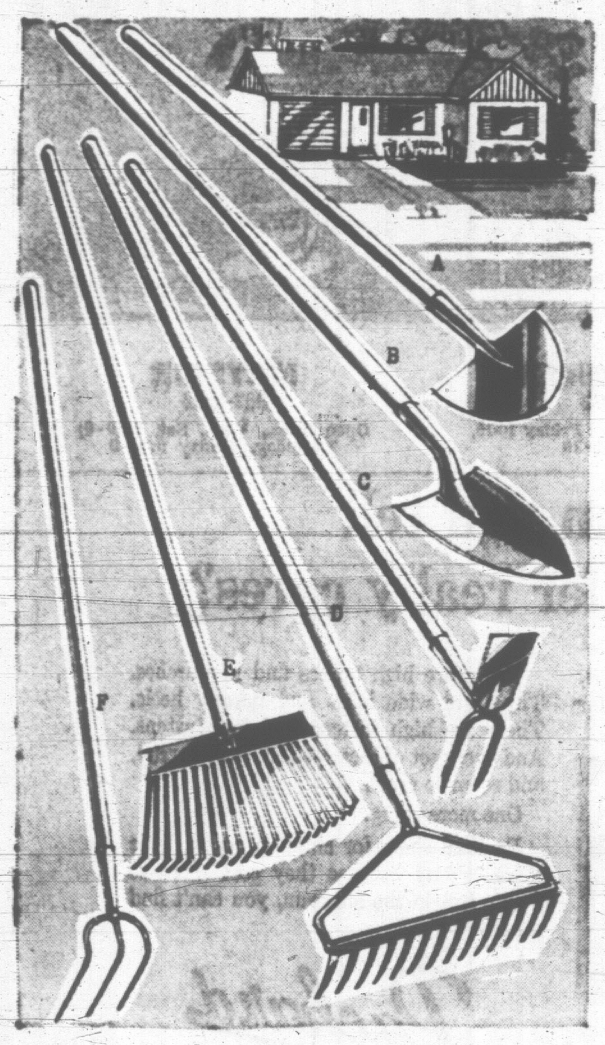

She was replying to P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe East), a physician, who said such a ban by the publicly-owned corporation would set a national example.

PROPOSAL 'EFFRONTERY'

N. Saanich to Fight Annex Bid by Sidney

North Saanich property owner associations will fight a move by Sidney to annex their district.

Their spokesman, Dr. A. B. Nash said the Sidney proposal to the minister of municipal affairs was "effrontery."

Coun. Douglas Taylor of Sidney told the village council that as a district municipality with wider boundaries, Sidney's borrowing power would be expanded.

Dr. Nash said that's all Sidney is interested in. He said North West Mount Newton District Property Owners' Association, of which he is president, criticized the Sidney proposal Tuesday.

The meeting favored independent incorporation of North Saanich instead — with no ties with Sidney. The executive will take this recommendation to a meeting with Deep Cove, North Sidney and Dean Park property owners' associations April 21 in North Saanich Secondary School.

"It's amazing that Sidney would go to the government without even consulting property owners in North Saanich," said Dr. Nash.

"We don't want to be involved in the type of administration that presently runs the village of Sidney," he added.

This was a reference to a recent report by the municipal affairs department which criticized Sidney's village administration.

$215,000 Arena for Centennial?

NORTH COWICHAN — North Cowichan electors can expect to vote in late May on a bylaw proposing a $215,000 ice arena as their centennial project.

The municipal recreation commission Wednesday night retained the firm of Wade, Stockdill, Armour and Partners, Victoria and Vancouver, as its architects for the project.

Peter Blewett, on behalf of the firm, promised sketch plans by May 1.

The arena will be built on a 40-acre site near Fullers Lake. It will have an ice sheet approximately 85 feet by 210 feet and an area of some 33,000 square feet.

Additional facilities will include a banquet room, snack bar and changing rooms.

Commissioner Jack Efford said: "We want the minimum of frills with the maximum of utility."

Commissioner Ivan Beggs said the architects should envisage a building to accommodate everything from skating, indoor tennis, lacrosse and bingo to a convention.

Coun. Dennis Hogan, chairman, said: "We've got to keep the cost within bounds."

GOLD RIVER MILL GETS BOARD APPROVAL

Directors of the Tahsis Company Ltd. gave approval Wednesday for company plans to construct a $60,000,000 bleached kraft pulp mill at Gold River on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

The company statement Wednesday in Vancouver said construction of the mill and townsite would start immediately.

About 1,200 men will be employed in the construction. The mill and wood operations will employ about 600 when in operation.

'Thar She Blows'

The cry of "Thar She Blows" reverberated off the West Coast today as a sturdy breed of men began the annual whaling season.

Five whale catchers of the Western Canada Whaling Co. fleet earlier set sail from Vancouver to participate in one of the world's oldest industries.

Crew members are British Columbians, Newfoundlanders, Japanese and Norwegians, all with previous whaling or deep-sea fishing experience.

The whale-catchers — Westwhale-Four, Five, Six, Seven and Eight—built in Japan and Norway, have crews of about 18 men, who sign on for a six-month season. The 14 Newfoundlanders are flown out.

The company, owned jointly by B.C. Packers Ltd. and Taiyo Gyogyo Fishing Co. of Japan, is one of the last in the world to carry on the thrilling battle of man against the whale.

At the height of the season 150 men are employed. They operate from Coal Harbor on the west coast of Vancouver Island, where the whales come to feed on plankton.

Six types of whales are commonly found in the coastal waters. The biggest is the blue whale, which grows up to 100 feet. There also are the finback whales, up to 85 feet, the sei, up to 60 feet, the humpback, up to 50 feet, the sperm, up to 60 feet, and the killer, which grows up to 30 feet.

Last season the fleet caught 880 whales.

Teen-Agers Present Case For Own Centre

DUNCAN — Duncan's teen town organization is looking for a site on which to build its own dance hall.

Chairman Jim Quaife took the problem to North Cowichan's recreation commission Wednesday evening.

He reminded Coun. Dennis Hogan, chairman: "You told us to come back when we had something concrete — now we think we have."

He said: "We have 212 paid members and an average of 150 teen-agers turn out to our monthly dances."

They have outgrown the use of Duncan Elementary School gymnasium, and the building they had in mind to erect could be a community effort.

Mr. Quaife said he hoped to introduce hobby courses as part of the teentown program, but this was impossible without storage facilities. With volunteer labor and donations he thought a suitable hall could be built for $25,000.

FUND STARTED

He said that as a "token step in the right direction" the teen towners had started a building fund and raised $120.

Local businessmen were being approached for financial support.

Mr. Quaife, who said his group drew members from an area bounded by Shawnigan Lake, Westholme and Lake Cowichan, said Mayor Jack Dobson of Duncan had promised the city would "pick up part of the tab" toward providing facilities.

He added: "I realize building a hall is a big undertaking, but the care of teen-agers is a big undertaking."

The commission agreed to recommend to council that it consider finding the teen-agers a suitable site near Duncan.

Boating Mishap Claims Man, 63

ALERT BAY (CP)—A 63-year-old man died Tuesday of exposure after a boating accident near here.

Eric Francis Roberts, of this tiny island community 200 miles northwest of Victoria, was thrown into the water when his dinghy capsized as he was fishing.

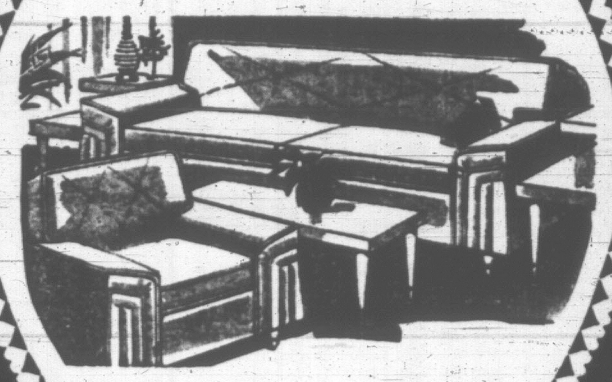

RCMP said he was rescued by an RCMP boat, but was dead on arrival at Alert Bay Hospital.

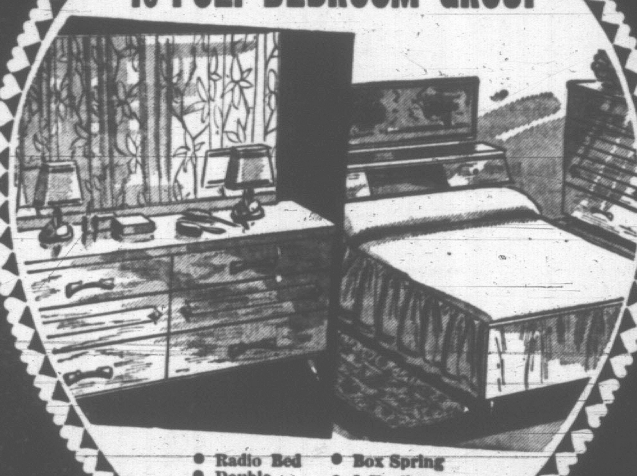

Canadian Held On Drug Charge

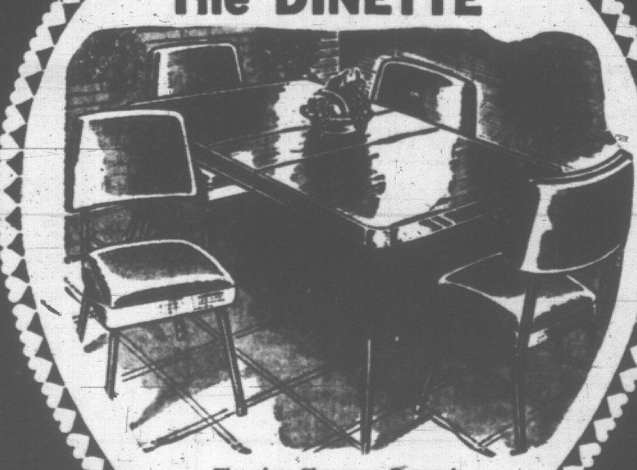

ATHENS (Reuters) — Dobbin Gordon Murray, 20, a Canadian student from Saskatoon, and Clifford Bruce Stockell, 23, a school teacher from Christchurch, N.Z., were charged today by the Athens prosecutor with illegal possession of narcotics.

The two youth were arrested Wednesday by the Athens security police while they were trying to sell 2.2 pounds of hashish (opium) they allegedly bought in Tangier, Morocco, for about $12, the police said.

City Badminton Star Scores Upset

EDMONTON (CP)—Bill Chudyk of Victoria, who scored an upset victory in the British Columbia junior singles final two weeks ago, was up to his old tricks again today in the opening round of junior competition at the Canadian badminton championships.

He scored a convincing 15-9, 15-11 triumph over fourth-ranked Jim Cunningham of Toronto, the only upset in the opening round of the men's and women's junior singles.

Peterson Approves ITU Strike Vote

VANCOUVER (UPI)—Provincial Labor Minister Leslie Peterson has granted a union application for a government-supervised strike vote by printers employed by the Vancouver Sun and Province newspapers.

Conciliation officer George Carmichael will conduct the vote among members of the Vancouver Typographical Union who earlier rejected a majority conciliation board report.

Gas Main Cracked Before Explosion

MONTREAL (CP)—A metallurgical engineer testified today before a fire-commissioner's inquiry that a gas main at LaSalle Heights where 28 persons died in an apartment explosion one month ago was cracked three-quarters of the way around the pipe circumference.

William Malcolm Williams, associate professor of metallurgical engineering at McGill University, said he concluded from a visual examination of the pipe "that it was certainly broken before the explosion and was not a result of the explosion."

Williamson Seeks to Quash Summons

VANCOUVER (CP)—T. R. Braidwood, counsel for public relations man Al Williamson of Vancouver, has served notice of a bid to quash the summons issued against Mr. Williamson for two counts of forgery.

Mr. Braidwood's claim is that the summons shows no offence known to law, and is sufficiently vague as to not give the accused proper notice of the charge in order to prepare a defence.

BIG FREEWAY PLAN FOR VICTORIA AREA

Report Urges More Parking

By ROGER STONEBANKS

A $30 million freeway program for Greater Victoria was recommended today in a massive report on transportation needs.

In addition, $14 million should be spent on a number of east-west extensions and other improvements, the report states.

The recommenations were made by a Toronto consulting company hired by the Captital Region Planning Board two years ago.

The 116-page report was received this afternoon by the board at a special meeting in city hall.

The improvements were recommended to cope with a 76 per cent increase in vehicle trips expected by 1981.

See Map, Stories on Page 45

As well as freeways, the report also recommends four pairs of one-way streets in the city; an additional 4,000 parking spaces in downtown Victoria, and a modification of all bus routes.

The 15.5-mile freeway system would replace the Patricia Bay Highway south of Telegraph Road in Central Saanich and the Trans-Canada Highway east of Thetis Lake.

A third freeway would run from James Bay across a bridge over the Inner Harbor linking with the Patricia Bay Freeway in the Douglas-Cloverdale area.

Would Parallel Present Route

The Pat Bay Freeway would roughly parallel the existing road and finish at the Blanshard Street extension now being built.

The Trans-Canada Highway would depart from the existing road at Portage Inlet and join the Pat Bay Freeway in the Douglas-McKenzie area.

All the freeways would be four lanes except on the Pat Bay route between the Trans-Canada and Victoria West interchanges where it would be six lanes.

Beyond Telegraph Road, the report recommended widening the Pat Bay Highway to four lanes with control of driveway access.

The report said realignment of the existing Pat Bay Highway where a freeway is proposed would generally parallel the existing route.

This created the least disruption in existing land use and accomplished the basic requirement for a safer, high speed and high capacity road.

Cost of this freeway was estimated at $9.1 million and the route could be built from interchange to interchange from the south to allow traffic to use finished portions.

Widening Proposal Ruled Out

The report rejected rerouting the highway west of Elk Lake or through Cordova Bay or widening the existing route.

Widening was ruled out first because it would not provide satisfactory service nor provide for future capacity.

The Elk Lake rerouting was ruled out because of rough ground and because the existing highway would still need to be widened to serve east coast needs.

The Cordova Bay route was ruled out because it would cost $10.9 million since the right-of-way passes through residential areas requiring removal of many homes.

The Trans-Canada Freeway would leave the existing highway at Portage Inlet and link up with the Patricia Bay Freeway in the Douglas-McKenzie area.

A better facility was needed than exists at present and the new route would fit in with freeway and arterial road development.

The report said many streets are running at practical capacities. Routes from the west were saturated while those from the north and east were running at 74 to 89 per cent of capacity.

It was projected the area's population would increase 50 per cent to 248,800 persons in 1981 while the number of cars would rise to 90,600 from 48,700 in 1963.

Freeways provide rapid and safe travel, the report said, and by removing access traffic enable other streets to perform their functions.

Minimum Speed In Peak Times

Over-all speeds of 35 to 60 miles an hour should be possible and there should be minimum speeds of 35 miles an hour during peak periods.

In rural areas, freeways would have wide centres and landscaping. In urban areas their level would be depressed where possible.

Four-lane freeways can carry up to 50,000 vehicles a day with six lines handling 70,000.

The 1963 traffic flow on the proposed six-lane freeway area was 25,000 vehicles a day.

The report said arterial highways should be co-ordinated with freeways to distribute traffic to and from local streets.

There was a lack of cross-town roads north of Hillside and

Senators Give Nod To Pension

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate passed the Canada Pension Plan bill today.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate banking committee has approved the Canada Pension Plan and was to send it back to the Senate for third reading, usually a formality, this afternoon.

After questioning Health Minister Judy LaMarsh and Revenue Minister Benson for three quarters of an hour this morning on various aspects of the bill, the committee voted to report it without amendment.

It was probably the last time Miss LaMarsh will have to answer searching questions about the pension plan before it becomes law.

The health minister, who piloted the plan through most of its stormy passage through the Commons, wound up her brief statement to the senators by saying she believes the pension legislation is "only one half of the apple."

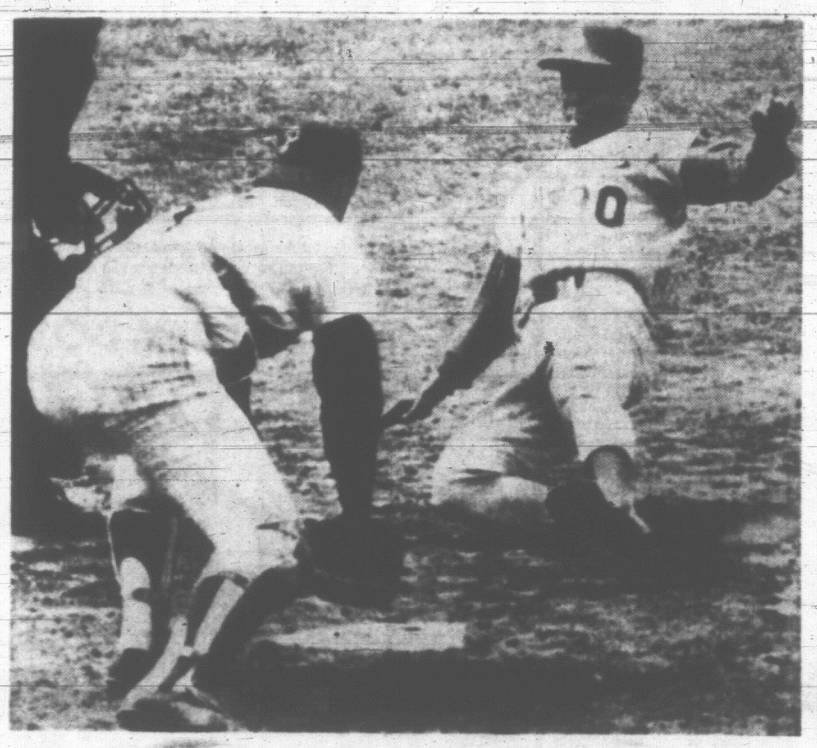

An increased program of social assistance to those who did not come under the contributory pension plan was the other half.

PLANNED INCREASES

She said the government planned to make further increases in the flat-rate old age security pension, should conditions demand it.

The flat-rate pension, now $75 a month for everyone 70 and over, will apply to everyone 65 and over by 1970.

Miss LaMarsh also told the committee Canada could overcome poverty. "We don't have to accept the inevitability of the poor anymore."

Freighter Ashore On Orcas Island

Two Victoria-based tugs were racing to reach the grounded freighter Olympic Palm at press time.

The 24,729-ton vessel became stranded off Orcas Island in the San Juan group about 11:30 this morning. She was fully-loaded, carrying 11 million board feet of lumber.

Going to her rescue are the Island Mariner and Island Monarch, towboats of Island Tug and Barge, Ltd.

The Mariner dropped a car barge tow in Port Townsend while en route to Seattle and was expected to arrive at the scene at 3 p.m.

The Monarch left Vancouver and was expected to arrive at 4 p.m.

REFLOAT TRY

An attempt to refloat the single-screw bulk carrier was to be made at 5 p.m. during a nine-foot tide. If this fails another attempt will be made during a 10-foot high water period at 5 a.m. Friday.

The two tugs have a combined horsepower of 3,000.

"The tides are not too good and we may have to unload her to lighten her," an Island Tug spokesman said today.

"This means we will have to get hold of every available scow on the coast."

The 571-foot freighter grounded so hard, her water line was 10 feet above the sea when inspected by RCAF search and rescue aircraft.

The Japanese-built Olympic Palm, launched four months ago, is of Liberian registry and carries Greek officers and crew.

She called in Victoria last week to load most of her lumber on her maiden voyage.

Other stops were made at Port Alberni and Nanaimo where lumber was loaded for the eastern U.S. coast.

The $3.5 million ship was built at Nippon Kokan Kabushiki Kaisha shipyard in Shimizu, Japan. Her crew was flown from Greece and she began her sea-going career four weeks ago.

Friday End Predicted For Session

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Prorogation of the second session of the 26th parliament—the longest in Canada's history—now appeared certain for Friday.

The Senate passed the Canada Pension Plan through its banking committee with little difficulty Thursday morning. It was sent back to the upper house for third reading this afternoon.

The "opting out" legislation will then be taken up by the senate. It too may be sent to a committee but indications were that it would pass the senate in short order.

Meantime in the Commons interim supply was expected to be concluded today or Friday at the latest. The MPs may wind up their business to take off a few hours Friday waiting for the senate to complete its business then prorogation could take place Friday night.

The government hopes to open the third session Monday with the throne speech.

Compulsory Breathalyzer Tests Due

OTTAWA — Changes in the criminal code to provide for compulsory breathalyzer tests for impaired driving suspects are likely in the near future.

A top justice department official said today the changes would also provide for stiffer penalties for impaired driving offences.

BIRMINGHAM MAYOR THREATENED

Bomb Blasts Negro Home

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A dynamite bomb damaged a Negro home today and two other bombs were disarmed at the homes of Mayor Albert Boutwell and city councilwoman Nina Miglionico.

Police cars were dispatched immediately to the homes of the eight other council members.

The bomb at Miss Miglionico's house was found on the second step of her front porch by her father when he came out to get the morning paper. Police said he reached inside the box containing the bomb and ripped the timing mechanism.

Police who were dispatched to the mayor's house about a mile away found a bomb at the side of the brick structure. Officers disarmed it.

There was no warning, no threats of the bombing of the residence of Negro accountant T. L. Crowell across town from the mayor's home.

His son, Weymouth, 13, was treated for a cut head.

"My little boy, he was crying," said the frightened mother, an elementary school teacher. "They took him to the hospital. He was bleeding, but he was more frightened than hurt."

It was the first actual bombing in Birmingham since Sept. 24 1963, when a shrapnel explosive hurled bolts and pieces of metal over a wide area in a quiet Negro neighborhood. Only a few days before, a bomb killed four Negro children attending Sunday school in the 16th Street Baptist Church. Two other Negroes died in the violent aftermath.

WRECKS GARAGE

The blast at the Crowell home wrecked a garage in the rear. Police said the explosive had been placed on a concrete slab in the alley about 25 feet from the Crowell house. The garage

Helicopter Rushes Seaman to Hospital

An injured seaman was rushed to hospital in Victoria by helicopter this afternoon after an accident aboard the department of transport vessel Camsell.

R. E. Graham, address unknown, is in good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

He was treated for lacerations to the face and admitted after an hour-long trip in the helicopter.

The 'copter is standard equipment carried on the Camsell which was servicing lighthouse stations on the west coast.

At the time of the accident the ship was sailing off Cape Beale, about 120 miles northwest of Victoria.

Mr. Graham was injured when a canvas sling grazed across his face.

Northwest Sky Lighted Up by Satellite's Return

A flaming ball which streaked across Western Canada Wednesday night was almost certainly a U.S. space satellite.

Officials were still trying to confirm the satellite's landing at press time.

They believe it to be satellite 48a which was due to enter the earth's atmosphere between 11 a.m. Wednesday and 11 a.m. Friday.

At first it was believed the bright ball of fire was a large meteorite.

It streaked across Western Canada travelling from north-east to south-west.

In it's wake it left shooting flames and explosions which kept police and an astrophysical observatory switchboards busy with calls from bewildered people wanting to know what had happened.

Dr. Kenneth Wright, of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, Victoria, said the object appeared to have landed in the vicinity of Vernon.

Today aircraft were being used to aid ground searchers in tracing wreckage of the missile.

Meanwhile official phone calls between the Queen Elizabeth Planetarium, Edmonton, Washington and New York, tried to establish for certain if satellite 48a had definitely come down.

Dr. Wright said the object appeared to be taking the same track the satellite was to have taken.

He estimated speed at the point of landing to be in the region of 36,000 miles an hour.

On its passage across Canada the ball showered sparks across the countryside, lit up areas in its path and reportedly exploded on several occasions.

Dr. Wright said the explosions would probably be caused by pieces splitting off under intense heat and pressure.

The flashing, streaking object was reported from areas as far apart as Kamloops, across the Okanagan and the Kootenays in the southeast to Fort St. John in the north. It was also spotted from Nanaimo and in parts of Washington and Idaho.

It was not seen in Victoria due to overcast skies.

In some cases observers reported rumblings which shook houses, rattled windows and made lighting fixtures swing.

The satelltie was launched last year from the U.S. Air Force base at Vandenburg, Calif.

Trouble with white hot things flyin' through th' air these days—it allus might be somebody y' know.
